No Separate Exhibit in Southern Oregon Booth

According to the plans finally decided upon by the Southern Oregon Panama-Pacific International Exposition Association, the counties of Klamath, Josephine, Jackson and Douglas will have a composite display, known as the Southern Oregon exhibit. It was decided that this would be a more effective way of bringing out the individual county than it would be to have each county exhibit grouped off by itself.

The names of the four counties will be very prominently displayed. The produce on exhibition will be very carefully labeled on small cards giving the name and address of the grower.

It will be up to the individual representatives at the booth to point out the produce of his county and take care of his county's interests.

The booth of the association will be located in the Oregon building, with an aisle on each side and each end. The booth will be 50 feet long, 10 feet wide and 12 feet high. A wall running down the center of the booth will allow 1,200 feet of wall space.

Each of the counties in the association, with the exception of Klamath county, has arrangements completed to take care of the expense of their exhibit. In order to look after the interests of Klamath county it will be necessary to raise a fund of not less than $1,500.

To raise this amount of money, the World's Fair Bureau of Klamath county has been opened at the Chamber of Commerce building. All money subscribed to take care of Klamath county interests at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition must be subscribed through this bureau, and all exhibits from all parts of Klamath county to be considered in the Klamath county display, must go by the way of the Klamath Chamber of Commerce.

George C. Blower, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, has been appointed by the World's Fair committee of Klamath county to represent the county's interests at the fair, and to take charge of the management of raising the $1,500 fund and the handling of all produce.

CALLS SUBMARINE A MINOR WEAPON

ADMIRAL FLETCHER SAYS THE OPERATIONS OF UNDER-WATER CRAFT THIS YEAR HAS NOT BEEN DECISIVE

United Press Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 11.—Admiral Fletcher appeared before the house naval committee, and informed that august body that the war in Europe hasn't shown submarines to be a decisive weapon. Among other things the admiral said:

"A skillful enemy need not give the submarines any opportunity to do disastrous work." He declared that the battleships were still the deciding factor of the war.

A five reel program, Star theater, tonight only.

Men, Listen!

Ever hear about killing two birds with one stone? Sure; everybody knows that. But did you know it is possible to kill three? What? Yes you can; sure thing. Here is how:

Bird One—You love your wife, and of all the gifts you buy you want her's to be one that shows how you appreciate her and her help in making your life worth while.

Bird Two—If possible you want that present to make things easier for her by making house work as light as possible.

Bird Three: (Here is where you come in)—You want her to enjoy good health, and you want to live in a house that you can breathe pure air.

Now don't you think that a Christmas gift that can do all that and more will touch the right spot in her heart? If you have any doubts just drop a hint that you were thinking about getting her a vacuum sweeper for Christmas, and see if she don't not only give you a fine plum pudding for Christmas dinner, but will have time to do it often, and you won't have to beat rugs and carpets when she cleans house.

Just drop into "The Home of Sensible Christmas Gifts," and have them set one aside for you. Don't wait; do it now.

How much? Just $10 and $15.

MOVING PICTURES

"The Sunset Tide," the fifth episode of the "Trey o' Hearts," will be the main attraction at the Orpheus tonight. This serial has proved by far the most interesting yet exhibited in this city, and its followers are weekly increasing in number. "The Dear Hunter," a laugh producer, and "Love's Refrain," featuring "Little Mary" Pickford and King Baggot, complete the bill.

For Sunday and Monday the Orpheus management has secured what is without doubt one of the greatest film productions yet exhibited in Klamath Falls, "The Soldiers of Fortune," one of the most widely read works of fiction today, and it has lost none of its interest in the movie portrayal. Dustin Farnum, America's favorite actor, is seen as Robert Clay, the young American mining engineer whose activities in a small South American republic, lead to a revolution and numerous exciting adventures.

For next Thursday, December 18th, the Orpheus has secured the greatest historical picture ever filmed, "Indian Wars Re-Fought by the United States Army" is the name of this attraction, which shows "Buffalo Bill" and General Miles, U. S. A., in their original roles. The United States army co-operated with the producers in the making of this picture, and every event is guaranteed to be absolutely authentic.

One of the best mid-week programs ever offered at the Star is the three reel production of "The Plum Tree," the Ladies' World prize serial story, with Francis X. Bushman, the prize movie actor, in the leading role. The picture deals with the blighting of the hero's career by one who sought the hand of the heroine, and coerced her father by reason of mortgages due.

After making a remark about suddenly becoming rich, the hero leaves his beloved at their trysting place, the plum tree, and goes, supposedly to help look for a fortune, but in reality to get into a trap that causes him to be sent to the penitentiary for train robbery. While he is in prison the heroine marries the man of her father's choice, believing the hero guilty on account of his remark regarding the money, but his memory is kept green within her by daily visits to the plum tree.

Following his release, the hero, in his wanderings, reaches the coast, where he stumbles into a plot, fostered by the man who sent him to prison to surprise a Mexican garrison and take the town. This the hero prevents by escaping from the vessel and warning the troops, who, in turn, surprise and defeat the rebels.

In the course of a hand-to-hand fight between the hero and his prosector, the latter is wounded, and before his death makes a confession, absolving the hero of any complicity in the train robbery. Armed with this the hero has no trouble in carrying the heart of the lady of his choice by storm. There are some exciting action pictures in this, especially the lighting in the west coast country.

Mary Pickford, America's Sweetheart, will be seen at the Star theater Saturday and Sunday, in Daniel Frohman's production, "Caprice." This is positively one of the best attractions that the Star has received from the Famous Players. Manager Houston, who has had the pleasure of reviewing "Caprice" at a private exhibition says: "It is an American story, made in America, played by American actors. It is a grand production. Meritorious in America's pictures in the future."

"Why does a chicken cross the street?"—Song: "My Hoolery."

Others because the picking is better. The smartest chicken known is the one who picked the hands from an alarm clock, so it would have hands and feet and plenty of time to lay around.
