THIS "HARD TIMES" TALK

IF A MAN sleeps badly, does not enjoy his breakfast, if on his way down town a friend tells him he is looking badly; if he meets a second one who tells him he looks run down and advises him to take a trip to the sea shore, and a third tells him that he has noticed for some time that yellow gray in his complexion which indicates that his heart or liver or kidneys are not cheerfully performing their work, by the time he reaches his office he wants a doctor called. And all the time there is not a thing the matter with him, except that he ate a big dinner on the previous evening.

It is the same way when the raven croak of "hard times" is in everybody's throat. It becomes an epidemic in a little while. It cannot be stopped by vaccination; no anti-toxin will relieve it, but every man who has a few loose dollars looks them up, every man contemplating engaging in some new enterprise sides to wait; every rich firm looks over its affairs and figures how many employees it can discharge, a stricter economy in household expenses is adopted and the grocer and butcher and candlestick maker swell the cry; the bankers are afraid to loan a cent, lest their depositors make a rush upon them some morning with the result that hell is to pay.

Now, despite this, if a survey was made today, it would show that Klamath County has not shrunk a bit. Every acre of land is still here, all of the splendid streams which attract the sportsman, all of the ranches that are becoming more productive each year, in fact, everything the county has ever had is still with us; and there has just started what is destined to be a great year for Klamath Falls, with thousands of visitors from all over the world. If we want to feel down and out, all we have to do is talk about it, and we can soon convince ourselves that we are in a terrible plight.

But we don't want to. The same means that can cause a "psychological panic" can cause a "psychological boom," and if this lasts long enough we're all going to reap the benefits.

SOME TRAVELLING MEN try to attain notoriety by means unconventional, but hardly by attempting to force open the back door of a restaurant.

AND AMONG other live issues, we have the Ankeny Canal.

BE TUN going to the booster luncheon and election this evening? Better turn out and get an ear full of enthusiasm. Learn why officers are glad they live in Klamath.

WHICH SOUNDS best?—"I live at 114 Fourteenth"; or "Go down this street three blocks, turn to your right as you go to your left a block and a half, go through the alley, recross the street, and you are at Mr. Blanks. We live in the second cream-colored house with brown trimmings, barring one, to the south of Blanks' right hand neighbor." Get a number, Mister, get a number.

WHILE THE COUNTY OFFICERS now have their deputships all settled (County Judge's office excepted), the poor members of the Legislature are getting it hotter every day, from men all over the state who know they are qualified for all the clerkships.

"Mystery of August" Exposed by Officers of French Army

Germans' Quick Advance Toward Paris Was Part of a Plan Outlined by French Commander, Which Drew Germans From Base of Supplies

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY AT THE FRONT, Nov. 25.—(By mail to New York)—After talking with officers here who took part in the fighting and who have since made an exhaustive study of the situation, I am now able to throw additional light on the "mystery of August," that period of the war leading up to the battle of the Marne and about which practically nothing thus far has been made public.

The official communique during August were short and contained no details. All that the world knew was that fierce fighting was in progress; that the French and English armies were in retreat; that Paris was in gloom, with most of her lights out, her population fleeing southward and the government preparing to move to Bordeaux.

Just what was going on at the front the public did not know. Rumor had it, towards the first of September that the Germans were in the Paris suburbs, and the exodus was increased, railway stations were packed and many people with first class tickets were glad to find plank seats in freight cars bound for the South.

At this precise moment, without the public knowing it, the tide had turned: the Germans had abandoned Paris as their objective; General Joffre, had outplayed Generals von Kluck and von Bulow and set the stage for the Germans check and retreat.

It now appears that General Joffre deliberately led the Germans into believing his army definitely beaten and the British expeditionary forces completely done for, letting them think all they had to do was to let Paris go for the moment, follow up the French and English and crush them for good and all.

Over confident, the Germans were caught off their guard, just as Joffre expected they would be, and as he believed to have planned and the so-called battle of the Marne, ended in a victory for the Allies and the consequent saving of the capital.

How did Joffre lead up to this victory? By refusing to play the grand stand; attending to his job regardless of what the public might think.

The French Commander-in-Chief decided to retire the bulk of his forces east of Paris to positions south of the Marne and the Ornaire and there prepare his offensive. On the first of September this movement was well under way and, so far as I can gather, it was the rapidity of this movement on the part of French commanders that led them into the error of believing the French and English armies to all intents routed.

From this supposed definite retreat of the Allies, the German commanders took their cue. They had two alternates before them; either they would have to pursue the Allies with the bulk of their armies, for the moment neglecting Paris, or else let the Allies go and take Paris, a result apparently ardently desired from both military and political points of view.

If they chose the first course, they risked envelopment in a country cut by numerous water courses—Marne, Grand Morin, Petit Morin, etc.—but if they chose the second, such a vast number of troops would be necessary that elsewhere their lines would be so weakened that an offensive by the Allies might prove disastrous.

So they chose the first course, since apparently the Allies were practically defeated, determining to pursue them and annihilate both French and English. This came to be fought the battle of Marne, which was not really the battle of the Marne after all, but of five or six other rivers as well.

The battle commenced around September 5. The danger of the enveloping movement probably foreseen by the Germans but discounted because they thought the Allies definitely in retreat and incapable of serious fighting at once became apparent.

The French and the English pressed in from the west, making a pocket the bottom of which was in the region of Coulommiers, Courtenay and Esternay, and here Generals Foch, d'Esperey and others resuming the offensive, began their smashing blows.

The rest of the story is known. The Germans retreated precipitously, leaving behind considerable material. The French praise the German commanders for escaping at all. Under less able leaders, the French say, they could not have extricated their armies, so well prepared were the plans of General Joffre.

Among military men, foreign as well as French, General Joffre is regarded as a fox for strategy and utterly free from pose. These two qualities they say, permit him to plan his movements carefully and without an eye to the bleachers or an ear to public opinion. He fights for France instead of for his own glory.

HOMESTEADERS BUSY AT MALIN

BOHEMIANS TO GIVE ATHLETIC EXHIBITION AT NATIONAL HALL—W. M. CHANDLER IS HONORED BY FRIENDS

(Herald Special Service)

MALIN, Dec. 5.—On December 29, the homesteaders might be seen putting up notices on different parts of the reserve. Light housekeeping was very much in evidence in this vicinity.

Next Saturday evening January 9, at the National House, at Malin, will be given an athletic exhibition. It will be given under the Bohemian director, and as much time has been spent in preparation something out of the ordinary may be expected.

Helen, Joe and Mary Zumphe, Vlasta Dobry and Emma Honzik, after spending a pleasant visit at their homes, have returned to Klamath Falls to attend high school.

Mr. Martin and Mr. Hale have exchanged positions as ditch riders. Mr. Martin went to Lost River dam and Mr. Hale took the Malin diversion.

On December 31, the people of Sand Hollow and immediate vicinity, to show their appreciation and high esteem for their neighbor, met at the home of W. M. Chandler, to remind him of his 58th birthday. Following are those who were present: Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mr. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Strowbridge, Mrs. Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, Carl Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Simms, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Crosby Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. Fredenburg, Mary Halousek, B. S. Grigsby, Henry Grimes, Joe Smith and Mr. Rue. A sumptuous dinner was served in which all partook heartily. After spending a social time, the guests departed wishing Mr. Chandler many successive birthdays.

Miss Rosa Krupka, who is teaching school in Poe Valley, visited home folks over New Year.

The dance given by A. Kalina, Malin's prosperous merchant, to his customers, was well attended and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves.

GOD SAVED KING AT THE OPENING

As received the despatch says: LONDON—Stock exchange opened, tendence before opening traders God saved King. Opened cheerful, fairly steady.

As interpreted, it is like this: LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Stock Exchange reopened this morning after being closed for five months, with an enormous attendance.

Trading opened with the outlook cheerful and fairly steady. Before opening, the traders rendered "God Save the King."

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

NOBODY CAN TELL WHEN YOU DARKEN GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK HOT TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Brewster Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking up a cold. Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB RHEUMATISM FROM STIFF, ACHING JOINTS

Rub Soreness from joints and muscles with a small trial bottle of old St. Jacobs Oil

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia. Limber up! Get a 25 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

A small railroad operating an oil-burning locomotive on the Tahoe national forest, California, had a breakdown during the past summer and burned wood instead of oil for one day. During the preceding year, only one fire occurred near the railroad and it was not thought that the engine was responsible for that one.

Two-thirds of the women workers in the Tokio factories receive less than 16 cents a day.

About 36,000,000 babies are born each year, or at the rate of about seventy a minute.

Somebody figures that standing shoulder to shoulder the German army would extend in a line from San Francisco to Chicago.
