BALMY WEATHER GETS A VICTIM

RAINMENT OF THE INDEPENDENCE DAY VARIETY APPEARS ON MAIN STREET, AND CAUSES SOME SPECULATION

(By a Beholder)

The main question of the day Sunday was, "Have you seen it?"

"It" stood on Main street corners, boasting show windows large enough for "it" to see "its" full reflection, which it seemed to enjoy as much as the rest of us, though perhaps in a different manner.

Some said "it" was a man, but to tell the sad truth, we doubt it. The true, Gwynny, that "it" wore trousers, but men don't wear white socks, do they?

The suit was made of a neat gray silk, piped with a drab gray tape, and supporting the largest number of buttons that ever waited five hours at Wood for the Klamath flier. Besides these trimmings, the suit was decorated with large checks running through it very which way. These checks were certified (by us), and were found to be pure checks and a yard wide.

We have been told that the "men who care" don't wear straw bonnets until the first of May, so, of course, that is the reason that He or "it", as you please, wore a felt one. The hat was neat, though kind of a turtle dove gray, with one of those sky-blue-plak bands around it.

The noise of the tie scored up a real band of real Indians. They voted it as "heap good", but did not like his wrist watch claiming that it was too small.

The affirmative side won the debate: "Resolved that 'it' was not a cripple, physically", who a "it" moved down the street without the use of the cane that "it" so jauntily twirled, after a rebuke by the police for blocking the traffic on Main street.

"In the spring, a young man's fancy"—you bet he is.

ENJOYABLE PARTY

(By Lora King)

The valentine party at Saint Cloud developed into a juvenile event. Over twenty young Americans took part in the exercises of the evening, and it took twenty-five grown-ups to chaperon them. The kiddies had a great and busy time and surely got the worth of their money, and while the grown-ups had their hands full, all went home in a good humor.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

By Hal Sheridan

United Press Service
NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Some of the old tricks of the ring still are in use despite the frigid looks of the boxing public and the new generation of fighters. Of course, the days when a boxer could work his man around to the wings so some second could slam him with a beard and put him to sleep, are past. But there are several leading boxers who owe a great deal to their cleverness to the little aids, perfectly harmless, probably, but still aids.

One of the most common of all is the use of grease. A fighter who greases his body can slip in and out of clinches about ten times as easy as he could were his skin not so slippery. From the viewpoint of the average fan he appears cleverer and quicker on his feet.

In Willie Beecher's recent ten-round fiasco with Champion Freddie Welsh at the Garden, the East Side boy was as slippery as an eel. He appeared much faster than he really is and he got away with it in good shape. The referee could have disqualified him had he so minded, but so long a Welsh or his seconds didn't offer objections Willie stayed greased.

Another aged wheeze still in practice is that of plastering their hair down with camphor ice. There are two objects in this: One, that it keeps the hair from dropping down over their eyes, and two, camphor ice when in close proximity to the eyes has a tendency to make them blink and water a little. It isn't harmful, but it is certainly annoying. In a clinch when their heads are close to gether the fumes are sure to have some effect.

Many boxers still make use of Stanley Ketchel's old trick. The man-killer used to rub oil into his pores before going into the ring. The stuff was not noticeable at first, but when he began to perspire he became the proverbial "chain of greased lightning," sliding in and out of clinches with amazing speed.

Obituary

Martha Jane Logue died at her home, two miles northeast of Hildebrand, Oregon, January 29, 1918, at the age of 82 years. Funeral was held in the M. E. church, in Bonanza, and interred in Bonanza cemetery, beside her husband.

The deceased came to Klamath county in 1898, with her husband, William Logue, who died in 1904. Two sons and one daughter survive her, John W. Logue, James L. Logue and Mrs. George Smyth, also five grand children and nine great grand children.

GRANT KLAMATH EXTRA $200,000

ERROR IN TRANSMISSION OF MESSAGE SATURDAY MADE THE PROJECT APPROPRIATION LESS THAN HALF

Through an error in the transmission of a telegram regarding the appropriation for the work on the Klamath project in the fiscal year beginning July 1, it was stated in the Herald Saturday that $177,000 was appropriated. The amount should have read $377,000.

A correction from Washington arrived too late for Saturday's paper. Included in this amount is money for carrying on some extension work. What this will be will not be known here until the interior department's report reaches the project headquarters.

Notice of Thanks

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends for their kind services during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father; also to Rev. J. B. Griffith and Klamath Lodge, No. 77, A. F. & A. M., for administering the last sad rites at the funeral; and to Klamath Lodge, No. 1247, B. P. O. E., for their beautiful floral offering.

Yes, Craig Kennedy is in town. He is registered at the Star Theater, and will make his appearance today in the greatest of all special serial pictures, "The Exploits of Elaine." When we say it is the greatest story of its kind, we mean it. When you have seen it you will say so yourself. The picture is taken from the famous "Craig Kennedy" stories written by Arthur B. Reeve, which have been published in the Cosmopolitan magazine. Arnold Daly will be featured as Craig Kennedy, the great scientific detective. Pearl White will be seen in the title role.

"The Exploits of Elaine" is in four-teen episodes. Each episode consists of two reels. One episode will be shown every Monday night. Three other subjects will be exhibited in addition to "Elaine." The story will be published in the Herald every Saturday and Monday.

See the first episode, by all means; you will never regret it. In addition to "The Exploits of Elaine," a thrilling two-part Kalem railroad story, "The Identification," will be shown. Two Biograph comedies, "The Snow-busters" and "The Cheeseville Cops," will complete the big five-reel program which will be presented tonight only.

Leading the Orpheus program tonight is a melodrama in two parts.

"A Page from Life," which is an unusually strong offering, and is well spoken of in the trade journals.

The name is well chosen as this picture portrays one of life's tragedies enacted daily in our great cities.

A Joken comedy, "The Blank Note," and "The Young Reformer," featuring Little Matty, complete the bill.

"The Troy o' Hearts" will be completed next Friday and Saturday, and the following week another serial will be started at Klamath's Klassy Show house.

TWO TAKE TEST FOR ANNAPOLIS

F. LEON BOLLER AND CLAUDE HILL TRYING FOR APPOINTMENT AS MIDSHIPMEN GIVEN BY SINNOTT

F. Leon Boller and Claude Hill are today taking a competitive examination for appointment to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis and The Dalles.

The four youths highest in the test will be named as principal and first, second and third alternates by Congressman Sinnott. Should the principal fall in the entrance examinations, one of the alternates will be selected.

Stirling Garrett, a Klamath county boy, was last year chosen as a midshipman in a competitive test for the south of the second congressional district.
