What an American Sees on the Firing Line in Northern France

Staff Correspondent, With Sir John French's Army, Writes Unusual Series Regarding Conditions in the Field of the Latest Fighting

(Following is the second of the stories in the Shepherd series, the first of which appeared yesterday. William G. Shepherd, United Press Staff correspondent, is the only American representing an individual American press organization now at the British front under official credentials. A third story by Shepherd will appear tomorrow.)

 WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN NORTHERN FRANCE, April 16.—(By mail to New York)—A little back from Neuve Chappelle we got out of our automobile. On our left was a farmhouse with the roof blown off; on our right a wayside shrine, the floor covered with straw, on which soldiers sleep at the foot of the altar.

An English colonel takes the three of us in tow.
 "We'll go in twos," he said. "Keep your distance apart. They never shell a couple of men, but if they see four of us together they might try to drop a shell on us."

We plunge along through the mud of the road.

"They shelled this building we are passing half an hour ago," exclaims the colonel. The building in question has been shelled daily for many days; its roof is almost gone. I hear a man whistling in the building.

"That's the cook," says the colonel. "He's gone into the kitchen where there's a sink to wash his dishes."

Sure enough, there stands the cook in khaki; you can see him through a shell hole in the brick wall. He's working and whistling the English Tommy's latest tune, "Goodbye, Dolly, I Must Leave You."

We pass three ruined farms. In the yard of one hyacinths are blooming at the doorway of a roofless house.

"Here, over across this farm," says the colonel, and we turn on the road and follow a broad, beaten path. This path is going to be written down in history some time. It was beaten down by the feet of the British soldiers who marched to the trenches that night of March 9 and waited until the signal was given in the morning to rush the trenches that spread before the village of Neuve Chappelle.

Frederic Villiers, who has drawn sketches in sixteen wars, is now in his seventeenth, stopped to make a sketch.

"If you don't mind," says the colonel, quietly, "we won't stop here. There's a house ahead of there, and we can stop behind that."

"Why are the Germans 'near here'?" says Villiers.

"They're right over there," says the officer. But he doesn't hurry us on. He's used to it, but it's hard to follow his conversation. He asks why the American military attaches were withdrawn from Germany. I have to ask him to repeat his question: I can't keep my eyes off the trees a mile away, and it's hard to keep my mind on American military attaches and those problems. That house ahead, will hide us from the trees, and there's nothing to keep us from running for it, except that the colonel is chatting very coolly and striding along at an ordinary gait.

The trouble about this war is that you never know you are on a battlefield until someone who knows about it tells you so. The English artillery is booming away behind us, the shells drill their long, hollow tunnels through the air. But in all the flat land around us, broken only now and then by the wrecks of shelled houses, there is not a sign of human life except ourselves. You are not afraid of the English guns behind you, and there's not the slightest sign ahead of you, just now, that indicates danger. It takes a guide like the colonel, whose daily pathway to the trenches lies along this route, to tell you all about it. He knows the road, the clumps of bushes beside it, the irrigating ditches, the hollows, the few trees, like a commuter knows his way to work in the morning.

We reach the shelter of the house, and while Villiers does his sketch the colonel says:

"That's a rather bad stretch across there. I lose a man every now and then from bullets that fly over the banks of our trenches. It's worse along toward evening than it is now, because then the Germans can't pick out our trench line so well in the gloom, and many of their shots go wild at dusk."

We start off down a road. We come to a portal: huge piles of sandbags form a gateway, and walls of sandbags stretch to the right and left of the road. We pass through this gateway. On our right we see that the pile of sandbags shifts and runs parallel with the roadway. Soldiers are sitting at the foot of the bag walls.

Some are reading, others are cooking or standing around the little charcoal stoves.

We turn and walk over towards them across a green, sunlit clearing as big as any ordinary front ward. We follow along the side of the bag wall. Suddenly we notice that we are walking in a ditch. Clothes hang from the earth walls here and there, a shoe sticks out from beneath a cloth, you trip over it; you discover it isn't an empty shoe; it jerks out of sight; you hear a groan from beneath.

"Tiz" for SORE, TIRED FEET--AH!

"Tiz" is Grand for Aching, Swollen, Sweaty, Calloused Feet or Corns

"Pull, Johnny, Pull!"

Ah! what relief! No more tired feet; no more burning feet; no more swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more soreness in corns, callouses, bunions.

No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ."

"TIZ" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. "TIZ" cures your foot trouble so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore and swollen. Think of it! No more foot misery, no more agony from corns, callouses or bunions.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug store or department store and get instant relief. Wear smaller shoes. Just once, try "TIZ." Get a whole year's foot comfort for 25 cents. Think of it!

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

USE GRANDMA'S SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR RECIPE AND NOBODY WILL KNOW

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out of date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

They All Demand It

Klamath Falls, Like Every City and Town in the Union, Receives It

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies today that relieve, but not permanently. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought lasting results to thousands. Here is proof of merit from this vicinity:

Mrs. M. E. Bailey, 500 Second St., Yreka, Calif., says: "I suffered from pain in my back and other symptoms of kidney complaint. Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured me and I have never had any trouble from my kidneys since."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Bailey had. Foster-Milburn Co., props., Buffalo, N. Y.

NOTES FROM NEW YORK NEWSPAPERS:

The Wrath of the Gods is to moving pictures what "Madame Butterfly" and "The Darling of the Gods" were to drama and opera—New York American, June 9th.

Miss Tsuru Aoki plays the leading role in this great drama with grace and ease that rivals the work shown by American motion picture stars—New York Press, June 9th.

There is a great picture at the Strand this week—"The Wrath of the Gods."—Geo. H. Smith, The Globe, June 11th.

It is the best picture of the year—Brooklyn Eagle, June 7.

The scenes with the exploding volcano in the background are terrifying. The other masterful scenes are the typhoon striking the sailing ship, the wreck, and the breaking of the storm about the hut of the girl's father—The Sun, June 9th.
