THE TEST OF NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

It is announced from New York sources that the Belgian relief fund in that field has passed the million dollar mark. It is a fact that this achievement in philanthropy is due first and foremost to newspaper advertising.

Most of that money has been directly contributed to collection centers designated by the newspapers, and the method of contribution and the amounts contributed in specific instances indicate that the giving was in response to newspaper urging. For example, it is of record that the lowest contribution, one cent, was made by a Chinese laundryman who said that he saw in the newspapers that that amount would be received.

Here is another instance covering larger contributions, yet evidently those made by people in moderate circumstances. By a certain committee there was simultaneous insertion of an advertisement with coupon attachment in three of the big New York dailies. In less than a week more than $25,000 was collected, all of which was traceable to those coupon advertisements.

It was not only by the direct appeal in paid advertisements that the newspapers helped in this splendid work; nor was it the New York nor yet the Eastern papers alone that helped swell the financial result for the relief of the suffering Belgians. The case of Belgium was exploited as a stupendous human interest story the country over; and relief was vastly the more generously afforded on that account. The American newspaper never did better work in the cause of humanity; it never better demonstrated the value of the publicity which it gives.—Evening Telegram.

REGARDING TAX REFORMS

THE Tax Liberator, like most of the taxpayers in Oregon, firmly believes that there is much need for greater efficiency in public expenditure. It believes that there is waste, extravagance, mismanagement and graft in the administration of public affairs in Oregon.

Searching investigation, open discussion and public censure—these and these only—will bring relief and lower taxes.

But such criticism must be intelligent, honest and fair. If public officials who are faithful and competent are classed with the unfaithful and incompetent, no results can be obtained.

We must, therefore, be just as ready to commend the worthy as to condemn the unworthy.

Scattered Shots

SOMEONE contends as a "safety first" measure that the elections should all be held Thursday, as the closing of saloons from Saturday night until Tuesday morning may prove fatal to those who failed to prepare for the emergency.

KLAMATH FALLS will ever be a dirty and unsanitary town until there is some arrangement made for systematic garbage collection and disposal.

THE BLOWING UP of another Yankee vessel today is still another proof that the way of the neutral is hard.

WHEN THINGS get unpleasant for a single man he can pick up his things and find another boarding house. But the married man can't.

NEBRASKA MAKES ALLIES' HARNESS

KLAMATH COUNTY HORSES WILL PULL THE BIG GUNS BY MEANS OF HITCHINGS MADE BY U. S. HARNESS MEN

United Press Service

HASTINGS, Neb., May 8.—A big order for war harness manufactured for shipment to England and France for use in the European war has just been completed by the J. H. Haney plant here. The manufacturers had five months under the contract, which was for 3,000 sets of six-horse-team harness, but they completed it in just two and one-third months. The work started early in January, and a shipment of one carload per week has been maintained.

The harness is for use in the artillery branch of the service, and the sets are simply but strongly made. The traces are short, and are of wire cable overlaid with leather.

The six-horse teams in the artillery service are driven two abreast, and to unhitch it is only necessary to unlunge the four wheel traces and unlunge two breast straps.

BE SURE MOTHS ARE SHAKEN OUT

ALL THE TARRED PAPER, MOTH BALLS, CEDAR CHESTS, ETC., ARE USELESS IF PESTS ARE ALREADY ON THE JOB

The various substances used to keep away moths, such as tobacco, camphor, naphthalene cones or balls, tarred paper and cedar chips, have no effect if the eggs are already present in the clothes. Entomologists in the Department of Agriculture therefore recommend a thorough beating, shaking and brushing of all articles likely to attract moths before they are laid away for the summer.

Three brushing of garments is especially important in order to remove eggs which may have escaped notice. If the articles are quite free from eggs or larvae when laid away, the odor from the various repellents already mentioned or from cedar chests and wardrobes will serve to keep the moths away.

This odor, however, lessens with age, so that the protection it affords is greatly decreased after a few years. For this reason when furs and other valuable garments are wrapped in tarred paper or placed in sacks of tarred paper these containers should be renewed every year or two.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

IT'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO BRING BACK COLOR AND LUSTRE TO HAIR

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

What an American Sees on the Firing Line in Northern France

Staff Correspondent, With Sir John French's Army, Writes Unusual Series Regarding Conditions in the Field of the Latest Fighting

(Following is the fourth of the stories in the Shepherd series, the first of which appeared yesterday. William G. Shepherd, United Press Staff correspondent, is the only American representing an individual American press organization now at the British front under official credentials. A third story by Shepherd will appear tomorrow.)

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN NORTHERN FRANCE, April 17.—(By mail to New York)—Spring has come.

The complexion of war is changing.

The flying men came down with the news that every day grass is getting greener between the many trenches, no one dares to go out there to tramp it down.

Trees that were land marks with their bare limbs in the winter time were changing shape as their buds became leaves and the officers find themselves daily becoming more and more strangers to the landscape. Curtains of leaves have grown up to shelter roads and fields that, in the winter days, were daily swept by the enemy's fire. "Bad corners" in trenchland, road intersections on which the guns of the enemy were always turned, are becoming more sheltered as the leaves grow.

The soldiers are finding their knitted mufflers less and less necessary. And the military authorities have discovered that the medical need for alcohol, which was really pressing during the cold, wet winter days in the trenches, no longer exists. The two drinks of rum daily, which the trench soldiers received during the winter time has been reduced to two drinks of rum weekly. In the winter time eight men used to finish one bottle of rum daily. Under springtime conditions, sixteen men finish one bottle in a week.

Plowing in France has, apparently, been as extensive as ever before. In the fields old men and boys plow while women do the sowing. Unplowed fields are seldom seen. Plowing and planting is going on up to within a mile of the English trenches and the French farms are scenes of agricultural activity three and four miles within the zone of shell fire.

Around the English headquarters all of the soil is in crop and General French has arranged that none of the army shall encroach in any way on farm land except under the most urgent necessity. To trample plowed land is an offense which must be explained at the English headquarters to the satisfaction of the commander in chief. The cavalry, including the Indians, find a small piece of meadow here and there on which they exercise their horses, but the French farmer is to be paid for any damage that may be done to his crop of hay.

There is no place within many miles of headquarters where space can be found for collecting large forces of men for review purposes. General French, recently reviewing part of the forces which had participated in the battle of Neuve Chapelle, travelled to several different spots within a radius of a dozen miles where the men were drawn up in comparatively small bodies.

"I can ride around and meet the men," he said. "I would rather do that than spoil a wheat crop on some big farm."

In the vicinity of headquarters, it looks as though agriculture was crowding the army out of the neighborhood. It is only when one approaches the lines that the army begins to get the upper hand in the curious conflict between the aged French farmer and the rifle bearing English soldier. And this is only because the old bent man, the one crouching woman and the little boy on a horse who seem to be doing all the farm work in France this year—yield to the soldier in the neighborhood of the trenches.

The Steam Laundries of Klamath Falls support fifteen American families, who do not live on rice, sleep in the laundry, or send their money to foreign countries. 1-1f
