TODAY'S ODDEST STORY

United Press Service. MANITOWOC, Wis., May 13. The proprietor of a North Side thirt store had been annoyed by a thief who entered the cellar without disturbing any of the visible means of ingress, and removed the corks from the choicest wines and brandies, leaving the partly emptied bottles when he departed. The mystery was explained when he saw a muskrat with a long neck sticking its unsteady way from the cellar to the river. For several days the saloon keeper entertained his patrons by posting them where they could watch the bibulous rodent enter a hole in the wall, gnaw the corks from a few bottles, and acquire a load. Then one day he saw the muskrat approach for the saloon in company with six others. The saloon keeper drew the line at the muskrat giving a "house party" to his "friends on the house." He broke up the revel with a gun.

BEIGIAN S HOEMAKER

The wooden shoe has reached England as one of the results of the war and the influx of thousands of Belgians who found refuge across the channel. Since thousands of refugees wanted to go on wearing the shoes they had been accustomed to at home, he went to work with his large knife and his blocks of wood, and now he is as happy as if he were in Brussels.

Aviators Are Far More Useful as Photographers Than as Fighters

With Especial Cameras, Flights Over the Enemy's Camp Reveal Valuable Information as To Trenches, Strength, Movements, etc., of Other Side

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY. April 28.—(By mail to New York)—The French flying corps is more than anything else the "eyes of the army."

With the enormous front which the French have taken into themselves to guard, their task would be almost impossible were it not for the aeroplanes and the aviators.

Just as in every war, the aeroplanes are something of a surprise. When war was declared you doubtless pictured in your mind a fleet of a thousand aeroplanes charging down the airlines against thousands of hostile machines. You probably pictured titanic battles in the air between Zeppelins and Clement-Bayards, between Parsevals and Bleriot. You expected to be thrilled daily by hair-raising stories of the exploits of the aviators.

The trouble with that all is that the aviators are working away in the air just like you work in your office, the store or on the farm. The aviator has many duties to perform, but the least important of them is to attack the enemy. Map-making is perhaps his greatest and most important function. Just step inside the general's office—this war, you know, is being run from offices just as a factory is, and you will see in a minute how it all is done.

On the general's desk—a regular desk is like a broker uses—you see a pile of photographs. These were made by aviators with special cameras and are enlarged. You see white lines running hither and yon across the picture. Other lines are zig zag. Some start nowhere while some go squirming across the paper.

Now look on the wall. There you see the same map on a larger scale. Every tree, highway, river, brook, hill, wood bridge or railway is clearly shown there. But the zig zag lines are not. They have been made since a big map was prepared a year ago. They are hostile trenches or German works of some sort. If the exact nature of the works cannot be made out, the chief of the aviation corps assigns one of his aviators to investigate. He goes out, makes an obsequation and another picture. Other aviators check on him. Next day, and then at regular intervals, other pictures are made. They are enlarged and compared. The little line that started apparently nowhere has grown in length. It has turned in the direction of other white lines which the officers know are French trenches. The general in command makes his plans accordingly. He has exact information now and can order an attack knowing what to expect.

Aided by the photographs a corps of draughtsmen are kept busy at various corps headquarters making ground plans showing every trench built or under construction, by the enemy, as well as their own. These plans are drawn to exact scale and are kept strictly up-to-date by the hard working, plodding aviators.

Of course the aviators do other things, like dropping bombs on ammunition depots, or convoys, or army headquarters and occasionally they engage in a duel among the clouds, but it does not require a military expert to realize how much more important this prosaic picture taking and map making work really is. The pictures, many times, gives information which the enemy is doing his best to keep secret. The photographs of a number of villages are made, for instance, and one of them in particular shows signs of considerably more activity than usual. Other photographs of the same village are

MERCHANTS URGED TO DEMAND WOODEN BOXES

SPOKANE, Wash., May 12.—A campaign to induce merchants of the Pacific Northwest who are dependent upon the lumber industry for their trade to require that all goods from wholesale houses be shipped in wooden boxes, was inaugurated here by the Northwest Association of Box Manufacturers.

Stamps are to be supplied for distribution to merchants for the campaign to be used on every order, stating, "please ship these goods in wooden boxes."

The inroads of the fibre box caused the wooden box manufacturer to plan the campaign.

made, really almost moving pictures, with the intervals hours instead of seconds, and by these snapshots it is discovered that troops are arriving or departing, that many convoys are stationed there, that reserve trucks or the like are there, in short—it is learned that the village has become a troop center.

The picture had to be adopted because an aeroplane must fly some 2,500 yards in the air to be comparatively safe, and at that height the eye cannot take in the details. An aviator might fly many times over a village and not catch the secrets the camera divulges with its microscopic lenses.

Ready for Rush

Asland will be the "Gateway City" in more ways than one after the first of January, 1916. Automobile touring and train loads of Oregonians and Washingtonians who are unable to get along on the allowance of booze allowed by the new law, will pass through Asland en route to the oasis over the state line in California. Asland hospitals will no doubt do a good business in overhauling smashed-up joyriders who fail to negotiate the curves on the Siskiyou grade. Garages will also do a good business.

Those who are able to get along on the state allowance will have their needs attended to by a distillery warehouse, which will be opened at Hornbrook, Siskiyou county, California, the purpose of which will be to supply the thirsty of this side of the state with booze. A warehouse is now under construction at the above named point, and will be stocked ready for business, when prohibition comes. Shipments will be made by mail or express.—Asland Tidings.

To Enlarge Locks

Robert McDermott, an inspector for the United States army engineering department, arrived in Oregon City Friday from Duluth, Minn. It is understood that Mr. McDermott will begin preliminary work at once on the locks. Reconstruction will begin as soon as possible and extend over a period of three or four years. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight, and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired. Get a 25 cent box at any drug or department store, and get relief.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

TELLS RHEUMATISM SUFFERERS TO TAKE SALTS AND GET RID OF URIC ACID

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions, it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure, and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well. (Paid Advertisement)
