

ANGLIN FIGHTS RETURN; IRWIN TO EXTRADITE

THE PAPERS SENT TO SALEM FOR SEALS

Man Wanted in Klamath Falls on Bigamy Charge, After Saying He Would Waive Extradition, Refuses to Return With Sheriff Low Unless Extradition Is Secured From the Governor for Him.

Harry Anglin, who was arrested in San Francisco on a charge of bigamy, intends to fight efforts to return him here for trial. The day following his arrest, Anglin wired that he would waive extradition, and Sheriff Low left the following morning for San Francisco to bring Anglin here for trial.

Today advices were received from San Francisco that Anglin would not come back unless extradited. Evidently he is acting upon the advice of his attorneys there.

District Attorney John Irwin this morning made application for extradition to the state officials. The necessary papers, etc., were sent to Salem today.

As soon as these are sealed and signed at Salem they will be sent to Sacramento, and then forwarded to Sheriff Low at San Francisco.

Anglin was arrested upon complaint of Fred Noel, whose daughter, Miss Nina Noel, was married to Anglin here in November, 1914.

WITNESS PULLS FREIGHT; PULLED

MAN WHO SOUGHT TO ESCAPE TESTIFYING IN THE BAILEY CASE IS ARRESTED, RETURNED AND INCARCERATED

Because he sought to flee the state and escape testifying in the trial of Fred Bailey, charged with stealing liquor from the Taber basement, Harry Scaddon, subpoenaed as a witness by both sides, is now in the county jail, held without bond until the time of trial.

Scaddon was at the depot yesterday, and when Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Low asked him if he was leaving, and if he intended to be back here for the trial, his answers indicated that it

Big Dance to Wind up the Good Roads Day

Klamath county will celebrate Good Roads Day Thursday with a whoop and a bang, a big volunteer force of men working on the highways, a dinner at noon, and a big dance in the evening, the latter just to show that a day's work will not kill us off, as we have none of the "idle rich" class hanging around.

At a largely attended meeting held last night at the city hall, details were discussed, and Judge Hanks, Mayor Nicholas, O. E. Peyton, C. B. Crisler and Will T. Lee were named to work out the plans along lines suggested. They will make their report at another mass meeting to be held Tuesday night.

Many of the women are becoming interested in the project. There is prospect now of a luncheon for the men being prepared by the ladies, and served to the road workers at

Californian Asks Damages, Specific Performance

WHITE BUILDING, ON MAIN STREET, OVER WHICH ACTION IS STARTED IN THE CIRCUIT COURT

Alleging that G. W. White, an extensive property owner here, has failed to keep an agreement for the exchange of the White building on Main street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, for property in and near Modesto, Calif., W. C. DeHane has filed suit for a specific performance of contract and to recover $5,000 damages. The suit was filed in the circuit court late yesterday afternoon was his intention to skip. Low was powerless to act at the time, but as soon as the train left, the authorities wired to Dorris, and Scaddon was arrested there and returned here last night.

Justice of the Peace Gowen committed him to the jail until the trial is called in June.

Branching Out

Telford Brothers of Klamath Falls arrived Saturday from the Klamath city in a new model Metz. The car made the trip from the Falls by way of Ager and over the Siskiyou mountains without any trouble and covered the distance on five gallons of gasoline. The Telford Brothers have established headquarters at the Park garage and expect to keep a demonstrator here throughout the summer. —Ashland Tidings.

by Wilson S. Wiley, attorney for DeHane.

The White building here is a two-story structure, which was erected in 1912, and is up to date in every detail.

The complaint alleges that White and DeHane signed an agreement to trade their properties, providing they found them satisfactory, etc. A ten-day limit, the complaint states, was allowed for examination.

Before the expiration of the ten-day limit, DeHane alleges, White sold or transferred the property here to another. After that, he says, White refused to complete his part of the agreement.

The plaintiff states that he is willing now to complete his part of the bargain. He seeks to have White forced to do so.

As a result of his implicit belief that Mr. White would carry out his part of the contract, Mr. DeHane says he went ahead with plans for obtaining tenants for vacant rooms in the White building, and made other expenditures with a view to the taking over of the White property here. For this he demands $5,000 damages.

Mr. White and Mr. DeHane have been corresponding for some little time regarding the matter, and recently Mr. White was in California regarding the deal. At that time it was rumored that the exchange had been effected, but Mr. White denied this upon his return to town a few days ago.

A couple of days ago DeHane came in from Modesto to bring action.

No Trooper Has More Gameness Than Has the French Volunteer

Grim Determination of Germans and English Fighters Is No Stronger Than That of the Men Fighting for Republic

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY AT THE FRONT, April 30.—(By mail to New York)—After passing along the front from Belgium to Alsace and talking with officials high and low, one is impressed with the prevailing idea that the war has only begun.

"How long will the war last?" I asked an officer of very high rank. "A long time," he answered—way of showing that he had studied the question and the reply. "A long time unless some unexpected event bring it to an end."

"What sort of an event? I said unexpected. If one knew what sort of an event to expect it would not be unexpected. The idea is that that war came on us over night, so to speak. It was unexpected so far as the Allies were concerned. Well, the war might end over night, just as it began."

This is the state of mind of the French army. The officers expect a long war and the men see no hope of an early peace. And both officers and men appear not the least cast down over it. A great change has come over the French army. When the war began many doubts were expressed over France's ability to cope with German. It was pointed out that Germany was ready while France had been following the pursuits of peace.

"Goodbye, good luck and early victory," their friends called to the soldiers as they marched away. Some of them replied with an implied doubt: "We'll do our best."

Then too, the shadow of 1870 hung heavy.

Being extraordinary intelligent, the French soldier remembered that in 1870 they were badly led and quickly beaten. They felt that, man for man, they could beat the Germans, but there was the wonderful German fighting machine and the doubt as to the French leaders.

But this spirit of doubt long since has disappeared. One finds it now impossible to discover a doubting Thomas. The men have every confidence in the ability of their officers to lead them. General Joffre is a sort of god or at least a superman to them. They have confidence in themselves which is equally important. Their fear of the irresistible German fighting machine was dissipated at the Marne and on the road to Calais. They point out that the Germans have had their day and have failed.

So the French soldier in the trenches feels that he, himself, is as good a soldier as anybody. He feels that he is ably led; he knows that the German army has failed in its general plans, proving it is not the all powerful and unbeatable organization he at first feared it was. So, well fed and contented, the French soldier here at the front is a great fighting man.

He has succeeded in completely reorganizing his life. He has gotten out of his domestic rut. He has become hardened to his new life and when he writes home to his women folk he tells them to be patient, he comforts them and scolds them for writing letters that are blue.

The officers are the same as the men. One finds them smilingly and confident. Fraternizing with the men as perhaps no other officers in the world do with theirs. Yet the men never take advantage of this fact. If an officer speaks a word of disapproval to one of his men, this word seems to hurt worse than a blow. And the next day if a dangerous task is to be performed, this is the man who first volunteers.

This is the temper of them as they face this bloody spring campaign. To the mind of a newspaperman with no special knowledge of military affairs they are in much better shape than at the beginning of the war and to a man are grimly determined to bring home a victory to the masses. You can bet your last dollar on it, there is going to be some tall fighting over the flowery fields of northern France this spring.

A wine made from the juice of bananas is being made by two French citizens of Cochín China.

In 1840 there were no telegraph lines. In 1912 there were 1,400,000 miles.

ARBITRATION, NOT WAR, SENTIMENT IN GERMAN CIRCLES

United Press Service

BERLIN, May 15.—The American note was formally presented this morning.

Regarding the matter, the Vossische Zeitung says: "High German officials are in favor of submitting the Lusitania difficulty between America and Germany to an arbitration court," and that Baron von Bernstorff, the American Ambassador, may be immediately instructed to suggest arbitration.

United Press Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 15.—No early reply to the Wilson note is expected from Germany. Most of the officials are hopeful that there will be peace.

Secretary Bryan said today that he would not entertain the suggestion that the United States prohibit the exportation of war munitions. He does not believe there will be any long diplomatic discussion over the note, but rather looks for some definite reply.

It is generally believed that Germany may suspend indefinitely her submarine war against commerce, and demand arbitration of the American demands.

ROME, May 15.—Fearing a civil war, King Emmanuel today ordered the chamber of deputies to reconvene next week. He today asked President Masera of the chamber to form a cabinet and be its premier. Masera declined this position.

Mobs today rushed to the parliament house and demolished the furniture, shattered the windows and surrounded the palace, crying "Kill the Germans." Cavalry charged the mob to disperse it.

PARIS, May 15.—The French advanced 500 yards toward Souchez yesterday, after the bloodiest kind of fighting among the sugar mills in that district, a violent bombardment being kept up by both armies, while the infantry was in action.

The Germans retreated from Arras and Bethune, and the French threatened Lens.

BERLIN, May 15.—It is officially announced today that the German troops under General von Mackenstaen have captured Jaroslau, eighteen miles from Przemysl.

SAN DIEGO, May 15.—Sailors arriving here say that the steamer Annie Larsen tried to land arms and ammunition in Braithwaite Bay, at Socorro Island, on the Mexican coast, but were chased away by the British cruiser Newcastle. It is believed that the munitions were intended for transfer to the steamer Maverick, and to be taken by that boat to the Germans in South Africa.

TINDALL'S HOPEFULS TO PLAY AGAINST THE BOX FACTORY NINE AT MODOC PARK TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Klamath Falls is to get her first taste of Sunday baseball tomorrow, when the town team lines up with the Ewauna Box Factory Clouters at Modoc Park in the afternoon.

Both teams have some pretty good timber to try out, and all will be given a chance to show up, or off, as you please. The boys will be watched closely, and all weak spots will be strengthened before the next regular game.

No admission will be charged, so we will all have a chance to look over the season's prospects. Manager Tindall has not announced his lineup, but the Ewauna team will line up as follows:

Pitcher, Siemans; catcher, Kelly; first base, Clair Arnold; second base, Winters; third base, Otto Arnold; shortstop, Herbridge; outfielders, Willis, Thrasher and Hilton. Hurn and Wilbur Arnold will also play a few innings.

CAMPBELL WILL RESIGN POSITION

A. R. Campbell, who returned from Portland several days ago, where he had been for medical treatment, has resigned his position as assistant cashier of the First National bank. His medical advisers have convinced Orb that the duties of his position with the financial institution, together with the confinement, are too much for him, so he will sever his connections, and retire to his ranch for a while, at least.
