UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, May 18.—A bait that in twenty minutes caught 220 flies demonstrated its superiority over four other kinds of bait in an experiment conducted by the University of Oregon extension division for the benefit of many communities in Oregon that are conducting fly fighting campaigns this spring. The bait that won can be made in a few minutes on any farm or in any household at an expense of two or three cents. The formula for it is as follows:

Make a bran mash mixed very wet with waste potato water and skimmed milk, and sweetened with molasses or brown sugar. Put in plenty of active yeast so that the mash will ferment furiously.

This mash put into a properly constructed fly trap so that the flies cannot get at it from the outside will attract the pests from almost any other food in the neighborhood.

In the experiment the following five baits were put into competition:

- 1—Ordinary table syrup.
- 2—Decayed banana.
- 3—Canned salmon that had been exposed to the sun until tainted.
- 4—Tainted crab.
- 5—The mash described above.

Each of these five preparations was put into a trap and the traps were set outside at a fly rendezvous near a slaughter house. At the end of twenty minutes the catches were as follows:

- Bait No. 1, 4 flies; No. 2, 10 flies; No. 3, 12 flies; No. 4, 39 flies; No. 5, 220 flies.

"I think a properly constructed trap baited with the fermenting mash will catch every hungry fly within a block 'if the day is warm and sunny and the flies can get into the trap readily," said Dr. C. F. Hodge, professor of social biology at the University of Oregon. "Honey mixed with this bait adds to the cost, and probably does not make it any better. There are baits that will draw flies even better than this mash, but they are too offensive to describe and too dangerous to use. The discharges from open sores of animals are one type. The character of the foods that flies delight in show how great a menace to mankind the fly really is.

Flies love a variety. In a brewery a trap should be baited with milk; in a dairy with beer. The fermenting mash probably attracted so large a number in competition with the tainted crab because the experiment was tried near a slaughter house, where the flies had been glutted with animal food.

Like the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip And start on a long, long hike. You'll only find what you left behind.

For there's nothing that's really new.

It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town.

It isn't the town—it's you.

Real towns are not made by men afraid

Lest somebody else get ahead. When everyone works and nobody shirks

You can raise a town from the dead; And if while you make your personal stake

Your neighbors can make one, too, Your town will be what you want to see.

American Manikins Have Come

Miss Mabel Palmer

Miss Helen McMahon

Here are the first American manikins, Miss Mabel Palmer, in a white crash riding habit, and Miss Helen McMahon in a blue taffeta dress, as they were taken at the Rockaway Hunting Club meet at Hewlett, L. I., the other day. They were sent forth with several other young women by one of the best known American houses as an experiment, and they were received so enthusiastically by the society women—and men—present that they were tickled to death. Heretofore the manikin has been confined to Paris. There was something about the business that has never appealed to American dress making houses nor American women, and there have been doubts as to whether or not it would be possible for young women to parade among fashionable folk in the United States to advertise clothes. But the experience was so successful that the young women will go to several other affairs in the near future. On this occasion Miss Palmer wore a white linen crash riding habit trimmed with white and black linen, black satin stock and black straw hat. Miss McMahon wore a navy blue taffeta dress with yellow and black striped corduroy and canary colored fox fur. Her hat was of yellow with purple scalloped mushroom cretonne with white facings. In this costume the canary colored fox fur is noticeable. Fashion experts insist that fox fur will actually be worn by women this summer. Heat or no heat, they are going to carry fur.

FIRST STATE AND SAVINGS BANK

KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON

Klamath O. & M. Rate Has Been Made Higher

The following public notice from the reclamation service, together with an explanation from Project Manager Camp, will be of interest to all of the water users:

Under the terms of existing public notices and orders, the operation and maintenance charges for the Klamath project, Oregon-California, become due May 1 of each year, in advance.

In continuance of the provisions of the reclamation act of June 17, 1902 (32 Stat., 388), and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and in particular the reclamation extension act of August 13, 1914 (38 Stat., 856), section 6 of which authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to fix the due date for operation and maintenance charges, notice is hereby given that the operation and maintenance charges for the said project, which under existing public notices will become due May 1, 1915, is advanced to and shall become due on March 1, 1916, and all operation and maintenance charges hereafter made against lands under the said project shall become due on March 1 of each year thereafter until further notice.

Hereafter no operation and maintenance charge shall be collected at the time water right application is filed, but the first payment on account of operation and maintenance shall become due on March 1 of the year following the calendar year in which same was made. Provided, however, that if original homestead entry or original water right application be filed after June 15 in any year, the first payment on account of operation and maintenance will not become due until March 1 of the second calendar year following the date of entry.

The discount for payment made on or before the due date and the penalties for failure to make payment before the first day of the third calendar month after the due date, will be applied as provided in section 6 of the said reclamation extension act.

The operation and maintenance charges for the irrigation season of 1915 shall be due March 1, 1916, and each acre of irrigable land, whether irrigated or not, shall be charged with a minimum operation and maintenance charge of $1.25, which will permit delivery of not more than two acre feet of water per acre. For the first acre-foot additional a charge of 20 cents per acre foot will be made, and should further quantities be needed they will be furnished at the rate of 40 cents per acre foot.

The provisions of this public notice shall apply to all lands subject to public notice heretofore issued for the said project.

Except as hereinbefore provided, all the terms and provisions of existing public notices and orders for the said project shall remain unchanged.

Public Notice—All Projects

Under the provisions of public notices and orders heretofore issued fixing the operation and maintenance charges for the various projects, such charges have in some cases accrued and accumulated against the lands.

In order to provide for the collection of such charges and at the same time avoid burdening the applicants by requiring advance payment thereof, it is hereby ordered that in case the operation and maintenance charges have thus accrued and remain as a charge against any lands for which water right application has not been filed, prepayment thereof will not be required, but such accumulated charges shall be added to and made a part of the construction charges upon which the various installments to be paid under the terms of the reclamation extension act shall be computed.

The provisions of this notice shall not affect any lands remaining under the terms and provisions of the laws enacted prior to August 13, 1914.

By J. G. CAMP, Project Manager

To the Water Users of the First Unit—The above notice increases your operation and maintenance charges for this year at least 50 cents per acre over last year. You have a right to know why this is necessary.

Last year we reduced the actual cost of operating the first unit 32 1/2 per cent, but the maintenance cost was greatly increased. When I took charge here I found a distribution system that had been allowed to become almost useless in many places for the delivery of water. Ditches were filled up and overgrown with grass and weeds. Banks were far too low, and many wooden structures were rotted out. A large amount of work was done both last spring and fall, with the result that the 75 cents per acre assessed last year lacked $12,000 of paying the expenses.

On my recommendation this is to be added to the construction cost. To continue the work of making a good system we must spend as much this year as last year, and the reclamation commission has decided that the operation and maintenance charge must be high enough to meet these expenses.

I have in the past discussed these improvements with your directors. In the future I shall request their approval of each improvement that I think is necessary. They are your business representatives, and I wish their approval of our plans for spending your money.

CITY TEACHING STAFF CHOSEN

No change was made in the special teachers, and they will be: Manual training, D. C. Morris; domestic science, Clara Elmer; music, Evelyn Applegate.
