

TO RAISE FUNDS FOR MAINTAINING A REPRESENTATIVE

KLAMATH TO BE AT THE EXPOSITION IN STYLE

Chamber of Commerce Directors Decide That It Is High Time Something Is Done Toward Maintaining Man at the Klamath Booth, and a Committee Is Named to Seek the Necessary Finances.

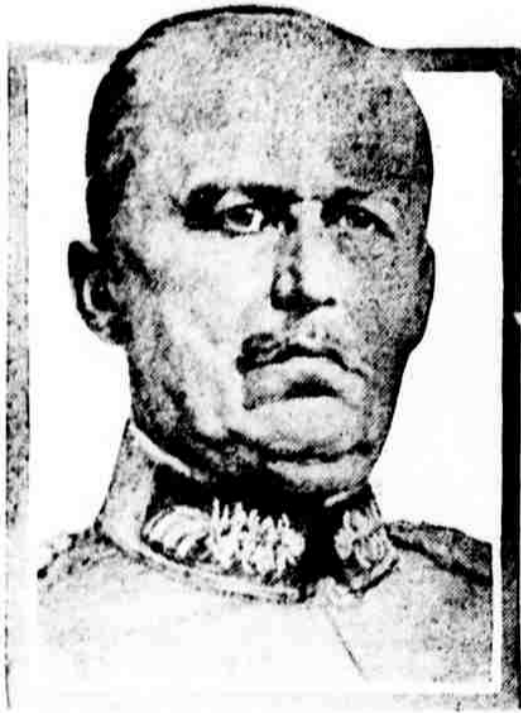

Klamath county's display in the Oregon building at the Panama-Pacific exposition is to be supplemented by a representative who will answer questions and otherwise disseminate information regarding the resources and the opportunities, etc., of the Klamath country. This was decided at last night's meeting of the Klamath Chamber of Commerce directors, and the work of raising funds for this purpose will soon be started.

Secretary Fred Fleet and Philip J. Sinnott were named a committee to take up the work of raising such a fund. They will begin their efforts in a few days.

The plan favored is the securing of pledges to pay a certain sum monthly for the maintenance of the representative, this to be collected here by the Chamber of Commerce, and through that organization paid the representative. It will not take many firms or persons subscribing a small amount a month for six months' time, to make the securing of a representative a reality, and it is generally conceded that this will be a wonderful investment for publicity purposes at the great exposition.

The man secured as a representative will be required to keep the exhibit booth in an inviting manner, answer what questions are asked him, give out accurate information regarding Klamath, distribute literature, etc., deliver four illustrated lectures a week in "Sunset Theater," and carry on other work along similar lines. There is a tremendous advantage to be gained for the county through this personal missionary work among those who may be interested in this section.

General Ludendorff, Who Made von Hindenburg Possible

General Ludendorff is the man who made General von Hindenburg the hero of Germany. For a long time an effort has been made to learn who was the brilliant man in the staff of von Hindenburg responsible for the repeated victories of the Germans on the East Prussia border. Those familiar with military affairs have been slow to give von Hindenburg credit for the victories. He was known as a plodding soldier. He had been retired when the war broke out, but had hung about the war office in Berlin to impress on it the importance of the Masurian Lakes in connection with an invasion by Russia. When the first defenders of Germany on the east front failed he was sent there in charge of many generals considered far sadder. The results have been all that Germany expected. But now it has been learned that the mind behind the rough and ready von Hindenburg, who has seldom showed great thinking capacity, was General Ludendorff. The victories in East Prussia were so overwhelming, particularly in the battle of Tannenberg, that the Germans made a hero of the man in charge of their forces.

WEDDING HALTED BY ALARM CLOCK

THOUGH BEST MAN SET CLOCK FOR 4:30, HE ARRIVED JUST AFTER CEREMONY, AND JUST IN TIME TO EAT

Smokeless powder is wonderful; fireless cookers are a boon, but an alarmless alarm clock is worse than a plague for being harmful, rather than good. So sayeth Glen Jester, the cheerful young salesman of shoes at the Regal. And Jester has a real reason to know.

Jester was chosen to act as best man at the Siemens-Low nuptials this morning. And duly honored by this, Jester spent real money yesterday in getting a new white tie, his best suit pressed, his shoes shined, his nails manicured and his head treated by the haircuts, massages, shaves, etc., one barber could think of.

Furthermore, although the wedding was at 6 o'clock, Jester determined to be the first one at the Low residence for the ceremony, and to insure this he set his alarm clock at 4:30. Then he tumbled into the sheets to get his beauty sleep that he might look his best on the morrow.

When Glennie parted company with Morpheus this morning, the sun was shining brightly in his window. And it was not the alarm clock that aroused him, but an insistent hammering on the door, and a voice announcing that he was wanted at the phone.

All the sleepiness left Jester when he reached the phone, for he learned that it was then after 6, and that the ceremony was being delayed by the lack of a best man. He fled to his room, dashed the alarm clock from the window, jumped into his carefully arranged regiment, and then beat all speed records to the Low home. He arrived just in time for breakfast.

Lloyd Low was pressed into service as best man, and the ceremony proceeded without further hitch. It is needless to say that Jester felt otherwise than as a Jester, for he was the best of the occasion, and for once in his life his keen wit was unable to frame up any "come-back."

A search for the alarm clock today proved that the young man, in his anger, threw the timepiece so hard that it broke to smithereens. This is indeed unfortunate, for there was much speculation as to whether Jester was so anxious to set the clock at 4:30 that he overlooked turning on the alarm, or whether the clock, being union made, refused to go to work before 8 o'clock, the hour when it has been accustomed to knocking the slumber out of Jester.

Jester has reached one determination. This is that he will stay up all night hereafter, whenever it is necessary for him to arise before 7:30.

New York Gangster Makes a Confession

Dopey Benny

"Dopey Benny" Fein, gang leader in New York city, who several months since pleaded guilty to a charge of extortion, and was on the way to the penitentiary for a long term, has made to the district attorney of the county a confession which has resulted in the indictment of thirty-four persons, eight for murder. Most of these are labor leaders, who employed him and his gang to beat up employers in the factory garment business or laborers who would not obey them. He told a tale of oppression and murder about the East Side of New York that those who don't live there found it hard to credit.

He made the confession after he felt certain his followers and alleged friends would not go to his aid and get him out of his trouble. His record is said to show more than 500 assaults growing out of affiliations between gangsters and labor union leaders.

According to the statement Fein made, he and his chief rival, Joseph Rosenzweig, better known as "Joe the Greaser," who is indicted for murder in the first degree, got big incomes by making a specialty of strong arm work. Fein placed his income at $12 a day for personal services and a rake-off of from $3 to $5 a day for each strong arm man he employed, for whom he says he charged the union leaders $5 a day. In prosperous times, he says, he made $10,000 a year. In a few instances when he had a job like beating up a factory foreman, a straight price for the job was from $50 to $500.

ROME, May 25.—The Italian force which crossed the Austrian border in the Isonzo district and forced the strong Austrian outpost to retire, has captured Cervignano, Cormons, Torzo and Caporetta in the order named, and the force is now threatening Goritz.

This invading army is comprised of troops supporting the cavalry force which crossed the Judrio River and advanced between the Judrio and Isonzo rivers.

It is not known whether the Austrian troops resisted.

King Emmanuel today started for the front with his staff. The crowds cheered wildly.

There is an unconfirmed rumor that the Austrians shelled the Italian outposts on the Adige River near Rivoli.

An official statement regarding yesterday's Austrian naval raid says the Austrian force destroyed a German ship anchored in Anconia harbor.

More About Fishing on the Reservation

Editor Herald—A great deal of comment is rife in Klamath Falls among its citizens regarding excluding whites from fishing on the Klamath Indian reservation.

As a property owner and tax payer of this county, my property being located on this reservation, and along one of its most desirable and famous fishing streams, Spring Creek, I wish to say in behalf of myself and for the benefit of those desiring to come onto the reservation to fish and camp, that they are not excluded from this privilege. Anyone desiring to fish or camp on my place can do so without further authority than from myself, which is gladly granted to any citizen of our county or state.

I gladly co-operate with the government in matters that are for the good of the Indians, and do not give out this letter to antagonize anyone, but in an effort to correct a wrong impression, and to avert possible detriment to my resort business, and to the interest of the Indians who own property along the streams of the reservation and who do not object to whites fishing or camping.

I believe every property owner along these streams is in favor of the whites being granted this privilege, as well as the majority of the Indians on the reservation. However, they desire the whites to observe the rights of the Indian, and treat them as they wish to be treated. The drinking to excess is undesirable, the taking of more fish than one can use is objectionable, as is often the case when the fish are biting good. I believe all the Indians care for is that the same rules and property rights be observed in or on their lands as the whites require on theirs.

I have lived among the Klamath Indians for twenty years, and I have found them always ready to meet the whites on fair and equal ground, not asking as much as they were willing to give in most instances.

It is a fact that they have a fine, beautiful piece of the Klamath country. They are the largest asset to the prosperity of our business interest in Klamath Falls and surrounding community. Their future advancement and expansion means a great deal to Klamath county, and it behooves the citizens of this city and county to assist this growth, which is positively developing every day, and not to show a retaliatory spirit for the acts of a few, whose words or actions are not that of the many.

It has been stated to me that until the acts of the Indian Council recently held at Yainax, whereby said council went on record for excluding whites from the reservation fishing, etc., was definitely settled and re-

Two Popular Pairs Are Married Today

Before most of us were awake, two weddings occurred this morning, mating well known young people, and the happy quartet were speeding southward in a big Chalmers for California and Mexico. They will register at the hotels and resorts as "Mr. and Mrs. John Siemens Jr." and "Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Brett."

At the home of Sheriff C. C. Low and wife, Rev. E. C. Richards pronounced the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Elsie Low and John Siemens Jr., the latter the youngest son of Captain and Mrs. J. W. Siemens. Only the members of the two families attended, and the house was decorated with pink and white roses. Miss Josie Low and Lloyd Low, sister and brother of the bride, were bridesmaid and best man.

The marriage of Miss Claudia O'Loughlin to Joseph Peter Brett was solemnized at Sacred Heart church promptly at 6 o'clock, by the pastor, Father William McMillan, S. J. A nuptial mass was rendered, Mrs. Matthew Smith, Mrs. A. Y. Tindall and Carl Schubert composing the choir, and the relatives of the contracting couple and Mr. and Mrs. Grayston A. Bellman attended the beautiful service. The bridesmaid was Miss Dorothy Weeks, and Colman O'Loughlin the bride's brother, was groomsmen. Wedding breakfasts were enjoyed by one wedding party at the Low home, and by the other at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bogardus. Mr. and Mrs. Siemens then autoed to meet Mr. and Mrs. Brett, and, showered with rice, they drove away in their show laden auto amidst shouts of best wishes.

The trip outlined by the newlyweds includes visits to the San Francisco and San Diego exhibitions, and possibly to points in Mexico or Arizona. They will be away about a month.

All of the parties are favorites with the younger social set of the city, and the young men are both rising in business. Siemens is cashier of the First State and Savings bank, and Brett is interested in the K. K. K. Store.

Miss O'Loughlin and Miss Low had hosts of friends acquired both socially and through the former's splendid success as a school teacher and the latter's efficient service in the sheriff's office, who are happy to know them as Mrs. Brett and Mrs. Siemens, and join with the Herald in extending heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a happy and prosperous voyage over the sea of matrimony.

The Siemens' will reside at the Reidy house on Eighth street. Mr. and Mrs. Brett recently purchased a cozy little bungalow on Sixth street, which they have remodeled and all ready for occupancy upon their return.
