

WHITES ALLOWED TO FISH ON THE INDIAN RESERVE

RESTRICTIONS WILL BE MADE SHORTLY

At Meeting of the Tribal Council Held Yesterday, Members Voted to Allow White People the Use of Fishing Streams, Providing They Observe a Set of Rules to Be Outlined by the Agent.

(Herald Special Service)

KLAMATH AGENCY, May 29.—Provided they conduct themselves in a proper manner, and live up to a set of regulations to be made out later by Superintendent William E. Freer, white people will be allowed to fish for trout in the streams on the Klamath Indian reservation. This was decided finally yesterday by the Klamath Tribal Council, in session here.

A vote was taken upon the matter, and the Indians balloted to give the whites the right to fish, provided the Indians' rights are not walked on.

Under the treaty signed between the whites and the Indians in 1854, when the reservation was established, there was a clause to the effect that the exclusive right to fish in any stream on the reservation was vested in the Indians. While the Indians feel that they could enforce this regulation, they do not wish to antagonize the white people, and providing proper consideration is given the Indians, their fences, crops and other property, they will make no objection whatever to properly restricted fishing.

The Indians have never been hostile toward white people fishing in the reservation streams, but some of the vandalism and wanton destruction indulged in by these people made them feel that a strong protest was necessary for the safeguarding of the Indian rights.

Italy's Army and Navy Leaders

General Cadorna, Chief of Staff

With Italy in the war, the brother of the king, the Duke d'Abruzzi, leads the feet, and General Cadorna, chief of staff, leads the army.

The duke is well known to Americans because of his attempt to wed the daughter of a millionaire member of the United States senate. He did not wed because the royal family would not think of permitting American blood to be mixed with royalty, and he did not make up his mind to defy the royal relatives.

Before hostilities General Cadorna arrived at Vincenza, near the Austrian frontier, and at once assumed command of the Italian forces. He is at the head of the army invading Austria

Dr. Shields is also superintendent of home missions for the Southern Oregon Presbytery.

Dr. Shields will take the local pulpit June 20th. He will be installed as pastor on that Sunday.

Two Birthdays and the Three Ex-Vice Presidents

CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS

LEVI P. MORTON

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Two of the three living ex-vice presidents have their birthdays this month. Levi P. Morton, who served when Benjamin Harrison was president, from 1889 to 1893, is hale and hearty in his 91st year. This photograph of him was taken the other day when he left his Washington home for his regular walk. Despite his years, he takes a long walk every day the weather will permit.

Mr. Fairbanks is thirty-four years younger than the oldest ex-vice president, and he is still in politics. There is no doubt that his will be among the names mentioned prior to the next republican national convention as a candidate for nomination.

The photograph of Mr. Roosevelt shows him on the witness stand at the trial of Wm. Barnes' action against him for libel. He is thirty-nine years younger than Mr. Morton, and he is more vigorous than most men of half his own age. His future in politics looms up as big as any question in American political life.

FAST GAME IS SUNDAY'S CARD

There will be fast baseball tomorrow afternoon at Modoc Park, if past performances and similar dope can be relied upon, for both the Ewauna Box company team and Tindall's Klamath Falls team are now in better shape than they were two weeks ago, when they played an 11-inning game before the Boxmakers won out. Moteschenbacher, the old University backstop, will wear the mask for the Klamath Falls team tomorrow, and Bostwick, Hickox and Hardenbrook will do the flinging. Another addition to the team will be "Chuck" Zumbum, the Fort phenom, who will play short.

Siemens and Willey will be the Ewauna battery. Bill Bowden, who is a sensation in himself, will play third base, and the rest of the team will be equally good.

This is the first of a season of three games between these teams.

GERMANY'S NOTE OF REPLY HANDED U. S. AMBASSADOR

NOW IN COURSE OF TRANSLATION, ETC.

Believed This Will Occupy Time Until Monday, When Note May Be Cabled—Particulars Not Given Out Now—State Department Received a Partial Report From Ambassador Page Regarding Nebraskan.

United Press Service

BERLIN, May 29.—Germany's reply to President Wilson's note was handed to United States Ambassador Gerard this morning. The embassy is translating and coding the message, preparatory to cabling Washington, via Copenhagen and London.

It will probably be sent in time for publication Monday.

It is learned that the note will ask for an agreement on a statement of facts regarding the Lusitania, as a preliminary to a further exchange of communications regarding submarine.

United Press Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29.—The interpretation placed upon Gerard's notification regarding the German reply is that the kaiser is willing to agree to limit the submarine warfare to enemy merchantmen and is willing to permit the passengers and crew to leave the vessels, providing the submarine is not in danger thereby.

Secretary Bryan received a preliminary report from Ambassador Page regarding the Nebraskan affair, based upon the investigation by naval attaches.

The engineer of the Nebraskan sticks to his story that he saw a white streak in the water preceding the explosion. This strengthens the submarine theory.

Open Air Movies a Big Hit in Gotham

United Press Service

NEW YORK, May 29.—Cooled by evening breezes, New York's open air movies are running full bloom, and thousands are crowding the roofless motion picture theaters nightly. Managers agree that the open air theaters were late in getting a start this year. They attribute this to the extremely late spring. Up to a few nights ago the weather has been so unseasonable that not an open air movie attempted to begin business.

But now every avenue and almost every side street has a movie garden. Open lots that have been idle for years have been transformed into screen palaces, and from the number of new ones now open in comparison with those of last summer, it is fair to be a record season for the movie concerns.

Many new theaters have been added this season. Chief among the improvements in Manhattan's movie gardens is the special care taken of the children. Couples with young children, who cannot be left alone at home, now find special runways within the movie garden where they can safely leave their baby carriages.

Not a few of the open air movies now provide cushions for the otherwise hard benches, and ice water is served during the intermissions just like the regular Broadway theaters. Some even have printed programs, for the patrons of the movies are now as exacting as those of the biggest legitimate show houses.

Another novel feature is provided for doctors and others who expect to be called away from the performance. All that is necessary is for the person to leave his name with the box office, and should a call come for him his name is flashed on the screen. Movie managers appreciate the value of such attention to their patron's wants and they are always seeking to improve the movie performance.

Ornithologists on a Visit to Klamath

C. F. Stone returned last evening from Portland and Salem, where he attended the meeting of the State Game and Fish Commission. He was accompanied by W. L. Finley, state biologist, and T. Gilbert Pearson, chief executive officer of the National Audubon Society, and president of a large number of national societies for the protection of game and birds.

Mr. Pearson is a speaker and lecturer of national reputation, and Mr. Stone persuaded him to come to Klamath to make a short study of our pelicans and other native birds.

He will remain here until Tuesday morning.

Monday evening a number of the prominent sportsmen of the city will tender a banquet to Mr. Pearson and Mr. Finley at the White Pelican hotel at 7 o'clock. There will be about twenty guests. Immediately following the banquet, Mr. Pearson has consented to deliver a lecture on bird life and the protection of birds. The lecture will be delivered in the lobby of the hotel and an invitation is extended to everyone interested in bird life to be present. It is seldom that the people of Klamath Falls have an opportunity to hear a speaker of such national reputation as Mr. Pearson.
