

WILSON SENDS NOTE CAUSING BRYAN TO QUIT

CONTENTS KEPT SECRET UNTIL FRIDAY

Bryan Today Issues a Statement Regarding His Position in the Affair, Which Indicates His Intention of a Speech-Making Tour of the Nation in Favor of Arbitration—Counselor Lansing Acting Secretary.

United Press Service WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—Secretary of State Bryan issued a statement this afternoon, defending his position in his split with the president over the rejoinder to Germany, and outlining the difference with Wilson. This indicates that he intends to take the stump and speak for peace.

Bryan expects to remain in Washington several weeks more. He will then appeal to the public to support his views favoring the submission of America's differences with Germany to the International Arbitration Commission.

The statement issued also showed that Bryan insists that passenger carrying ships ought not to be allowed to clear if they also carry munitions, and that the president ought to issue a warning to Americans not to travel on vessels belonging to the belligerent powers.

The White House today emphatically denied that Secretary Daniels or any other cabinet officer had quit, and denied rumors of a coalition cabinet.

Facing a crisis, President Wilson is firm in his policy. This morning Counselor Robert Lansing, who becomes acting secretary of state, began the coding of Wilson's rejoinder to Germany, and this afternoon it was cabled abroad. The contents will be made known tomorrow.

Professor John Bassett Moore of Columbia University, former counselor of the state department, was called in conference with the president today.

At 12:20 today Bryan called at the White House, and bade farewell to the president, who awaited him. They conversed in a friendly manner for ten minutes, and when they arose both exclaimed, "God bless you."

Bryan's voice was shaking and his

OREGON'S FRUIT TAKES HIGHEST AWARD AT EXPO

MEANS SUPREMACY OF THE ENTIRE UNIVERSE

After a Careful Examination of Horticultural Displays, Committee of Eminent Men From Different Nations Decide That Beaver State's Fruit Is Worthy of the Gold Medal. Exhibit Cost Least Money.

(Special to The Herald) EXPOSITION GROUNDS, San Francisco, June 9.—Oregon scored a tremendous triumph at the Panama-Pacific International exposition yesterday by being awarded the gold medal for her horticultural exhibit.

The Jury on awards was made up of eminent horticulturists from the Netherlands, the East, Japan and California. The competition was extremely keen, and Oregon won over magnificent exhibits from all over the world, many of the states and all the Pacific Coast states.

Oregon's exhibit cost the state $2,500. Washington's exhibit cost $7,500, and California's a much larger sum.

C. N. Ravlin of Hood River, Chief of horticulture for Oregon, lays his success to the fact that he prepared an all Oregon exhibit. Even the framework of the Oregon section was of Oregon logs, the floors of Oregon timbers, the hedges of Oregon shrubs and plants. The plant and fruit exhibit was varied, fully representing the state.

This is the first time California has been beaten horticulturally. It is a magnificent thing for the state and will boost it, horticulturally, to the many thousands of people now thronging the buildings.

Southerner Sues Convict Wire Tapper for a Large Sum

Charley Gondorf, now in Sing Sing Major Edward G. Pendleton, a wealthy Southerner, who has homes in Palm Beach, Atlantic City and Savannah, has gone into court in Camden, N. J., and begun suit against Gondorf, now a convict in Sing Sing, and until within a few months the king of wire tappers, for $55,000, which, he says, the Gondorf gang in New York stole from him three years ago. The major was very frank in telling how he lost the money. He has learned that Gondorf had real estate in Atlantic City, which was recently placed in the name of his wife.

How much money Gondorf and his pals stole during their career of many years in New York may never be known. The sum easily ran into the millions. Their "suckers" were always very wealthy men, and they scored a "trick" that netted them less than $5,000. During much of this time certain police officials received 15 per cent of the proceeds of the robberies.

It was in January, 1912, when Major Pendleton, while stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria, fell into the hands of the Gondorf swindlers. The swindle, which Major Pendleton thought would prove a safe investment, was the most palpable of all the schemes in the history of wire-tapping. He caught the yarn that a

The sale of tickets is increasing, and this indicates healthy interest in the new venture. A special arrangement has been made with Superintendent Foster, whereby the price of Chautauqua season tickets will not be advanced until after the opening of the program tomorrow afternoon.

Four high school boys are wanted for ushers and ticket sellers for Chautauqua. Applicants should see Rollo C. Groesbeck at the grounds at 7 o'clock this evening.

There were 100 kiddies assembled when Miss Alexander of the Junior Chautauqua began her work this morning, and these kids were so delighted with the plans announced by the play leader, as well as by the winsome young lady's personality that they've spent the day coaxing other youngsters to buy season tickets, so they can get in on the fun.

Indian bead work, basket weaving, etc., are to be taken up. There will be Indian dances, Indian and other stories, and many other features of this kind, which will be both interesting and instructive. Junior Chautauqua convenes at 9 each morning. This afternoon Herbert D. Gale, president of the Klamath Association, made an address of welcome, pointing out the significance of a session. A well worded response was made by Chapin D. Foster, superintendent of the Ellison-White system.

The concert of the Adelphian quartet today was greatly enjoyed by all, and every number rendered was roundly applauded. The solo, duet and trio work was also good.

Community Talk at Pelican Is Enjoyed

About sixty Klamath Falls business and professional men gathered at the White Pelican hotel dining room last night, to hear a message on community building from Colonel William Hamilton Miller, community development man for the Western Lumberman's Association, and following a satisfying luncheon, they were given some good, straight, homely facts, interspersed with irresistible humor.

Preceding Miller's address, Dr. Johnson, as toastmaster, introduced A. S. Aller, a member of the Adelphian quartet, who when not engaged in Chautauqua work, devotes his time to milling in Nebraska. Mr. Aller is a director of the Nebraska Manufacturers Association, and he told of the work being done to build up the population of that state by introducing new manufacturing with payrolls, etc. He pointed to the commercial club as a town's greatest asset from a boosting standpoint, and portrayed the advantages that can accrue from the proper support of such an association, through the establishment of civic centers, etc., to bring the people closer together, that

Klamath Gets Big Horse, Mule Ranch

What is expected to develop into one of the largest horse and mule markets on the Pacific Coast is now being established by J. Frank Adams and sons, J. Frank Jr. and Robert Adams, on the noted Weed ranch in Wood River Valley. At once about 10,000 acres of finest pasture is available, and this can be increased into 21,500 acres of pasture when necessary. It is the purpose of Mr. Adams to make the big ranch a general assembling place for all horses and mules in Klamath county as well as for such animals in other parts of Southern Oregon.

Persons having for sale horses or mules, broken or unbroken, may bring them to the big ranch, where they will be properly cared for at 75 cents per month as pasture charge. If it is desired by the owner to have the horses broken to work or ride, that they may sell for more money, Mr. Adams will have the animals broken by his buckaroos at a very reasonable price, and will use utmost care in breaking them. That an assembling pasture for livestock for all owners who wish to reach all buyers of the United States will be a great accommodation to local stockmen and that it also will provide a place where buyers may easily locate practically all stock for sale is patent. Owners of horses or mules may leave their stock with Mr. Adams and sons at any time except during the winter feeding season. If during that time the stock are not sold the charge will be only for pasture. Owners of stock may engage Mr. Adams and sons to break their stock or may merely pasture them on the big ranch as they will be there when buyers come. Horses and mules, however, are not the only animals that will be handled at the big assembling ranch. Cattle also will be taken for pasture alone or for pasture and sale. Cattle will be pastured for $9.00 per month per head. The entire ranch is enclosed with the best wire fence so that animals cannot be injured with barbed wire. Robert Adams will be on the big assembling ranch permanently while J. Frank Adams and J. Frank Adams will attend to such business as their presence demands.
