WHEN THE ARMIES FAIL

NAPOLION the great managed to go stalking through Europe, overturning thrones, smashing dynasties and changing boundary lines, for twenty years, because he possessed a military genius superior to any of his foes; because he robbed the countries he swept over, and because he was in truth "a scourge of God," and was needed to smash the half slavery that the few had imposed upon the many, until the bulk of the people were little better than serfs.

At last his ambition prompted the Russian invasion, and when the Russians burned their capital over his head, his usual judgment forsook him and he attempted to return, in the face of a Russian winter, to France.

Then his invincible army went down under the assaults of the snow and the "wheeling squadrons of the icy winds," and his power was broken. In the meantime, too, Lord Nelson had blockaded every port through which France had heretofore received food and other supplies. At last his fate was sealed. The battles that followed, including Waterloo, were mere incidents to hasten the end.

It is clear now that when the present war was sprung upon Europe it was the intention of the German staff to imitate Napoleon's method, to live upon the countries that dared to offer war to Germany. It was a plan that would have carried except for the course of Belgium. The resistance made there enabled France to get her fighting arm to the front. The war has now lasted ten months, and all that Germany has been able to do has been to keep her own territory intact. None of her enemies have been able to prey upon Germany, but on the other hand, Germany has not been able to live upon any country of all her enemies, and today her boundaries are as effectually blockaded as were French ports by Nelson.

It looks as though the war would never be ended by fighting armies and ships, but by famine and pestilence.—Goodwin's Weekly.

Scattered Shots

MORE THAN one fellow figures now that an overcoat is not entirely obsolete.

AND EVEN an old pessimist, after attending the sessions yesterday and today admits that there is more than just "taque" to Chautauqua.

WHEN KLAMATH installs some sort of an effective garbage system it will be able to bill itself as a healthy town.

THE LOVELORN youths haven't a monopoly on the "courting" in Klamath just now. The Federal, Circuit and Justice are grinding merrily away.

WHICH CALLS to mind that it's awful easy to get into trouble. The real trouble is not the trouble itself, but the trouble of getting out of trouble.

CHAUTAUQUA is in session, the Klamath Falls Military band is giving weekly concerts, Fourth of July plans are proceeding with a whoop and a bang, arrangements are being made for holding four district fairs this fall—but still barnacles insist that this is a dead hamlet.

SPORTING GOSSIP

By HARRY FARIS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, June 10.—If Packy McFarland, the Chicago fighting marvel and Joliet, Ill., brewer, wants to pick up a nice pile of change he had be accommodated easily. All he has

MARION B. FISKE, Cartoonist Lecturer

Mrs. Fisk, in her "chalk talk" work on the Chautauqua and Lyceum platforms has attained considerable note, and her appearance in Klamath Falls' Chautauqua Assembly is a feature that will please all attending.

This evening she will appear in a cartoon lecture, "Kweer Characters I've Known." Tomorrow she will appear at the afternoon session, her subject being "Americans in the Making."

Both of these will be illustrated with clever cartoons, drawn on the stage by the entertainer. These will be on large blocks of paper, so they can be seen from all points under the great tent.

to do is to agree to step inside of a ring which also holds Mike Gibbons, St. Paul citizen.

It is the one burning desire of Gibbons' life to exchange wallops with the McFarland person. Here a few weeks ago it looked like Mike and Packy were going to come together. But just at the "crucial" moment—when the articles were to be signed—Packy had an important engagement elsewhere.

Gibbons will concede a lot to entice Packy in to a match. In the first place he will agree to make 145 pounds for the Chicagoan. The St. Paul wonder admits that making 145 pounds is no easy feat for him, but he is willing to run a risk of getting down too fine just to get a crack at McFarland.

Just why Gibbons is so anxious to clash with McFarland it is hard to tell. Of course, there would be a nice wad of coin in such a match for both fighters. But a talk with Gibbons will convince one that there is something more than a money consideration behind his anxiety to slam the Chicagoan.

It is possible that Mike is keen to demonstrate that he is the cleverest fighter in the world. He has been called so a great many times. And then he has heard that he is the cleverest "next to McFarland." Mike may want to remove that "next to McFarland."

Stories galore are circulating about Jim Coffey, the true son of the Emerald Isle who is battling for title honors in the heavyweight division under the guidance of Billy Gibbons, but his manager told the best one a few days ago when he related how Coffey broke into the fight game. It happened three years ago.

Coffey was matched with a battler by the name of Al Benedict. At this time Coffey did not know a boxing glove from a toy balloon. He was as green as his national color. He was taken to a gymnasium and coached in the gentle art of self defense.

On the night of the fight he was the most bewildered man in the world when he was led into the ring. He had never even seen a prize fight. He did not know anything about rules, referee or time, but he did know he was to slam the other person who wore big mitts.

In the first round Coffey stopped a wallop with his chin. The floor stopped him. As he gazed up from the canvas he saw the referee standing over him, counting "one, two, three." Coffey got up at the count of eight. Not that the count made any difference to him. He didn't know that the count of "ten" would end the fight. He just thought it was time to get up.

He finished the round. The second was barely started when the fighters clinched. The referee rushed in to break them. In the scuffle all three went down in a heap. Coffey and Benedict got up. The referee, having been on the bottom, didn't.

Coffey reached out with one hand and held Benedict at arm's length. With the other hand he began tolling off the count.

"Wan, tuh, t'ray—" he was going, when the roar of the crowd and the yelling of his seconds stopped him. To his manager after the fight—which he won—Coffey declared he had just wanted to be polite to the referee. The latter had counted for him when he was down.

Six Million Roses in Grand Floral Review

United Press Service
PORTLAND, June 10.—Portland today paid homage to the Queen of Flowers when more than 6,000,000 roses were seen in the grand general review.

The occasion was the decorated automobile and vehicle parade, held in connection with the Rose Festival. The parade was the greatest of the kind ever held in the country. Hundreds of automobiles and vehicles of all kinds, motorcycles, and members of the Portland fire apparatus, all rose bedecked, produced a beautiful spectacle.

It required more than 1,000,000 roses alone to decorate the fire department apparatus.

This afternoon a roller skating marathon in which 60 school boys took part delighted the Juneville population. A community sign featuring 4,000 adult voices in classical, sacred and popular music was heard by a huge throng.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION
SAYS INDIGESTION RESULTS FROM AN EXCESS OF HYDROCHLORIC ACID

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by hyperacidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten soars in the stomach much like garbage soars in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. That we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.
