KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON TUESDAY, JUNE 15, 1915

AND STOP AT KLAMATH FALLS

MAYOR NICHOLAS

IN THE resignation of Mayor Nicholas last night before the common council of the city we find a man duly elected to office who has served through three years of much strife and internal warfare, laying down the reins because he did not believe it was possible for himself to cooperate with the council elected by the people.

Blame has been attached to both the mayor and the council in the recent deadlock, but be that as it may, this is not a time for more strife and trouble. The people of Klamath Falls will within the next thirty days perhaps be called upon to choose a new man, and it would be well if much time and thought be used in the selection.

In the passing of Mayor Nicholas from public office, it is thoroughly believed that the city has lost a man of the utmost integrity and honesty. It is admitted that he has made mistakes, but "to err is human."

Mayor Nicholas was called upon to serve the city of Klamath Falls during the most critical period since its establishment. He came into office following a period of business activity in all parts of the country, when irrigation projects all over the West and Middle West were under construction, when railroads were being proposed, and operations commenced in numerous sections of the West; when settlers were pouring into this country looking for locations, and when the United States in general was experiencing the best economic and business period in all lines in history. Following that period there has been a readjustment of economic conditions over the entire country, and especially in the West, in some lines more than others, but, nevertheless, a general shake-up.

The period following has been one of conservation and economy, practiced in all lines. Since the European conflict broke out, slightly less than a year ago, the nature of conditions has become more acute in many places, and Oregon has been no exception. An example of this has been the general shake-up, the lowering of salaries and the exchange of many school principals and instructors over the state. Many of these changes have been sweeping and sudden, several towns having suffered. The result has been a feeling of unrest, suspicion and of trouble. Klamath Falls has been no exception, and situated as we are on a branch railroad, it is plausible that conditions have been somewhat more acute here than in most other places.

Mayor Nicholas is to be commended for the stand that he has taken, knowing the man through three years of experience. He is a man that stands up for what he thinks is right to the end, and unless unforeseen difficulties are forthcoming, it is the sort of a man that makes good in this world. That he has not shown the best judgment at times is admitted, and there have been times when his tenacity seemed to be obstinacy, but it could generally be found that he was hewing to a principle. He is a man that stands for a fair and square deal to every man, regardless of persons. It was a hobby of his at all times.

A CHAUTAUQUA TOWN

WE HAVE a coming Chautauqua town, according to C. D. Foster, general manager of the Ellison-White Chautauqua, which closed last night.

Just what does it mean? It means that Klamath Falls people are built of the right stuff. Of the stuff that makes a community that is a community, not simply a place to exist in, and no more. It means that the residents of Klamath Falls have high ideals and a desire for things that will take them away from a plodding, monotonous, every-day in-and-out sort of an existence. Furthermore, it means that there is, hidden away, perhaps, but there for all that, the incentive, the ability and the desire for a bigger, better town. The incentive to go ahead and do things; the ability that will bring results, and the desire for better things must be at the foundation of all.

We must admit that we are out of the direct line of travel, and therefore out of things as they happen in the more populous places, perhaps, and therefore it takes more of an effort. But despite that, we have a city here, and can have a city here that will be noticed by the outsiders when they may happen to hang their hats on our hooks. And during the summer months is the time that they are most liable to step in and say howdy do. It is up to us to see that they have reason to take off their hats to us when they do so.

The only way that we can accomplish this is by creating a spirit of civic pride and good fellowship, of brotherly love, if you please. To do this, it seems as though it is necessary in this time of strife for worldly goods that a common ideal must be had. Something that all want to and will work for. Something in which we may have pride, and something which we can point out to our friends and relatives with pride and a feeling of work well done. And what better ideal could Klamath Falls people have than their city.

To the people that have made this Chautauqua session a possibility the city as a whole owe a vote of thanks, for it means that they have sacrificed time and money for the common good.

Scattered Shots

NOW THAT Chautauqua is over, is it not about time to think of next year. It ought to be a bigger success than ever.

NO FEAR OF the city being left without police protection was exhibited by the spectators at last night's meeting of the council, as a large number of them left before the new police were appointed.

THE MANAGER of a Wild West show in Klamath Falls says he is unable to pay the city's license fee. This is no place for him. He should be in New York city, where it is quiet and peaceful.

RESIGNATIONS were the regular thing last night. Some one said they had all been fired, anyway—all except the city attorney.

RAGGING IS not approved of at St. Cloud. I guess that is not such a bad boost for our urban friends.

WE HAVE IT ON Chicago to some extent—there is plenty of room to walk in this country, while there it is liable to become crowded during the street car strike.

GREECE SEEMS to be the only European country that is showing evidence of real diplomacy. The people there are deciding whether or not they shall go to war.

IF SOME OF the other nations across the pond had had the situation put before them clearly, and then had been given an opportunity to vote on the question, we wonder whether or not the present European conflict would be in session.

NOW THAT A long-drawn-out struggle has been completed in our municipality affairs, we wonder if the general public will take as much interest in the city's business as has been exhibited recently.

WE WILL WAGER that "Prexy" Wilson is a student of psychology. Of course, he would have to be to a certain extent to have held the positions that he has had and the one he has, but he certainly understands how to apply it to everyday affairs, such as the American attitude on the war and the peace question.

It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Characters in Greek Tragedy

All Greek officials in the United States and abroad have strenuously denied a wild report, published in Paris that the illness of King Constantine of Greece was caused by nothing less than an attack by Queen Sophie. The Paris report had it that she, a sister of Kaiser Wilhelm, believed to be strongly friendly to Germany in the war, had stabbed the king because of his leaning toward the allies. The precise nature of the king's illness is a mystery. While it is announced operations have been performed on him, very little informa-

War Is to Result in Anarchy, Says Pastor

PORTLAND, June 15.—The war will not result in a decided victory for either side, but will impoverish the nations involved, Pastor Russell predicted in his address Sunday night at Christensen's hall. The war, he declared, would be followed by a period of anarchy, after which would come lasting peace.

"The prayers of millions for the success of the Germans and the extermination of the allies, and the prayers of other millions for the success of the allies and the annihilation of the Germans, and the prayers of the pope and of our president and other good people that this war shall promptly cease will all go unanswered if I read my Bible aright," he said. "The war will proceed, and will eventuate in no glorious victory for any nation, but in the horrid mutilation and impoverishment of all. Next will follow the Armageddon of anarchy."

"After that, peace, lasting peace may be hoped for, because God has declared it. It will be brought in by Messiah's kingdom, for which so long we have prayed."

Pastor Russell declared that the present war is of divine permission and arrangement. "It is clearly prophesied in Scripture," he said. "The gathering of the nations to the present struggle is referred to in the prophecy of Joel."

He also said that apparently all the nations would be involved in the struggle. "Happy it will be," he said, "if our own land shall escape. Our president is a man of peace, and will surely do all in his power to avoid complications and war itself. Nevertheless the great nations of Europe, realizing how much they will be weakened by the war, will do all in their power to ensnare these United States, lest at the conclusion of the war we should
