SAYS INDIGESTION RESULTS FROM AN EXCESS OF HYDROCHLORIC ACID

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority.

He tells us that indigestion is caused by hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation.

Dr. Morrow Formerly of Klamath Writes of War

PORTLAND, July 1.—Because an unbroken German shrapnel shell is too heavy to carry around, Dr. E. V. Morrow is unable to bring one found by the roadside home with him.

"I have just returned from Fournes a town four miles from here, which the Germans bombarded twice a day for six days. All the people are gone. It is a big, deserted town with houses after house torn all to pieces and every window broken in the town.

"We left here at 1 o'clock a. m.—Fitzsimmons, Spelman and myself—and after being stopped every 300 or 400 feet by a sentry, we arrived at Fournes, the much talked of town in the papers when I was leaving home, at 2 o'clock. We had the password, which was 'Paul.'

After looking over the town we sat down on a doorstep to rest, and while there we saw auto after auto, ambulances, transports and armored guns, one, two and three-inch, painted dark gray. The armored motor guns were changing position. They had bullet marks all over them.

"The big guns were firing continually. The first report sounds and then the second, which is the bursting of the shell. A funny thing, the Germans nearly always fire in the morning and at about 3 or 4 in the afternoon.

"Coming back we met a man who had just passed a large shrapnel shell weighing about thirty pounds. The shell was not broken. The shots or bullets had been thrown out, but the shell had not broken. It had the German coat of arms on it and some numbers. He wanted to sell it for six francs, but it was too big, so we could not buy it.

"Just out of Fournes I saw an auto ambulance coming up the road and all at once I saw an American flag on one side and a Red Cross on the other. I was the first one to see it, and let out a yell like an Indian. The other fellows thought I was shot or something, but finally saw it too. We were like a bunch of kids hopping around. When it came up to us and stopped a fellow said in good old American, 'where in hell did you fellows come from?'

"After a lot of joyful rejoicing we introduced each other, and found this fellow's name was Ed Townsend, a Princeton man, and was one of six Americans located near Dunkirk. He was driving an ambulance for the American ambulance corps. Well into the Ford we hopped, and he went eight or ten miles out of his way to bring us home. He went through the hospital, and left us two hours ago. A fine fellow, and he was certainly tickled to see us; had been over here since February. His coming upon us was certainly a life-saver, as my feet were nearly ready to drop off, and at that, with the ride back, we were all in, so Fritz and I are in bed, sitting up, both writing to our mothers and telling about the same things.

"They have been very nice to us, but we have not really gone to work yet, and will not until Monday. But Fitz and I have been watching them dress the cases in a few wards. In all my experience I have never seen

GARDEN HOSE FOR THE BUGS

SAYS A WASHINGTON EXPERT ON ENTOMOLOGY, WHERE THE PRESSURE IS SUFFICIENT TO GIVE RESULTS

Where city water pressure is available the garden hose often affords the easiest way of checking the ravages of certain insects, states Dr. A. L. Melander, entomologist of the Washington experiment station.

Many people have the idea that strong poisons are required in controlling bugs, but this is not necessarily so. A stream of water delivered through a garden hose will most effectively serve in washing off and maintaining such insects as aphids or plant lice, leaf hoppers, red spiders, young scale insects, the elm bark louse, the cottony maple scale, caterpillars, slugs, bud-worm, as well as spores of fungus diseases that have found lodgment on the plants.

Not only is this treatment serviceable, but in many cases it will give better results than can be had by insecticides applied by the small spray pump. The use of certain sprays about houses is often attended by staining of painted woodwork or by the persistence of disagreeable odors, which are obviated by the water cure.

Even under some garden or orchard conditions, where water piped under pressure is not available, it may be most advantageous to combat certain insects with plain water applied in this case by a pressure spray pump through a plain bored nozzle.

Red spiders, currant worms and aphids call for such a recommendation, especially just before the fruit is to be picked when spray compounds might leave a taint. When aphids have curled the leaves they cannot be reached by the usual spraying, but they must be touched by the poison to be killed.

A stream of water is much more likely to wash out the aphid family from curled leaves than a misty spray is to penetrate into their midst. Many of these insects obtain their food by sucking, and sit with their beak deeply inserted into the plant tissue.

When struck by a forceful stream the beak is cracked, and such insects, even if not killed outright, are unable to feed again. City shade trees besmeared with honey-dew from the aphid moreover receive an advantageous cleaning from the hosing.
