A PROBLEM

A PITABLE case was up before the Justice of the Peace court yesterday. An old man, past the age of efficiency, and barely able to exist, was brought into the court for cruelty to animals. Of the cruelty there was no doubt, but of the circumstances surrounding the case there is a doubt.

The old man's story was one to listen to. He has no relatives or occupation. He was able to hold a position until a few years ago, when he suffered from a paralytic stroke, and now is a wanderer on the face of the earth to make a meagre living as best he can. He was in possession of an old team, both in worse shape than the old man, trying to travel through the country, picking up here and there bits of this and that, whether it be money, food or what not, but something to keep life and soul together for a little while longer.

The horse which he is accused of beating will be shot to end its misery, and a movement has been started to procure him another. It might be a question, as several prominent persons have said, what to do with a man like this. We have a place for such people, and this man should be taken to that place. His other horse is not in much better shape than the one to be shot, and the procuring for him of another would only extend the period of suffering and privation, and probably more cruelty. When a man reaches the stage that he has, has no means of existence, is without kin or friends, his mind becomes distorted and warped, and he should not be allowed to own a horse.

It is the duty of some civic organization in this city to look into this case. When asked why he did not go to the county poor farm, he replied that he would only be in the way there, and would be a burden on somebody. That is the sort of people that ought to go there. He has been placed in the jail for several days, which he justly deserves, knowing the inhuman treatment that he inflicted on the horse. But when he comes out he should be taken care of, and not allowed to go on and on until he drops. Such sights on our public highways, now especially, during tourist season, is not a welcome nor pleasing one, and does not speak well of our state or community.

HYPOCRISY

IS THE title of a moving picture which is to appear at one of our local theaters soon. It is a beautiful symbolic presentation of this, the worst of all evils, which we find on all sides today.

This picture has received criticism in many places where it has been shown for its idea and its presentation, and undoubtedly there are some who will not appreciate its beauty and its lesson. Truth, represented by a practically nude woman, teaches a lesson that is wonderful, and grips the heart strings with thongs of emotion.

The picture itself is of a religious nature, and shows a minister of the Gospel trying to lead his flock over the straight path, ever ascending. Some fall because of their money; others because of their prudery, modesty and the many ails found in man. The symbolical introduction is one of the most touching and strongest scenes imaginable, when its worth is fully realized. The Naked Truth, when presented to the masses, is to be torn and broken, but follows them by disappearing. The author or sculptor then is trampled into the ground. The story is well worth one's time and trouble as a lesson in every day life.

Scattered Shots

WHILE THE county court is in session it might be well for some civic organization to ask them to visit the court house yard.

IT MIGHT be a clean and well-kept place, where the people of the city could go for a few minutes of recreation and rest.

INSTEAD, it is a place for roughs and loiterers.

THE COUNTY or city officials should be instructed to keep such characters on the move. Especially the drunks and the boisterous.

THE SUPPOSED fight between the city and the power company was suddenly ended. If all were ended that easily life would be a dream.

THE CITY COUNCIL took a stand and results followed.

IF THE LIGHT is out on your corner, notify the light company promptly, and it is probable that it will be replaced promptly.

IT WAS a question between the old man and the old horse. The horse will get a rest, and so will the man—in the cooler.

OPPORTUNITY FOR US IN S. AMERICA

SHOULD TAKE ADVANTAGE OF STATE OF AFFAIRS IN SOUTH AMERICA AND SECURE TRADE, SAYS WOMAN

United Press Service
SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—Today is a day of opportunity for American merchants in South America, says Mrs. Isabel S. Shepard of Bogota, Columbia, who is attending the International Conference of Women Workers for Permanent Peace, in session here.

"If the American merchants will only take advantage of the disturbance of European export trade and treat South America as they would be treated, the United States will enjoy an enormous and profitable trade with our sister republics.

"You cannot send a drummer with a George M. Cohen method of selling to South America. You must send a gentleman who is willing to take his time, and who will respect the customs of the country. Then, and then only, will the United States begin to do the business in South America that it should."

UPPER LAKE NOTES

The captain of the steamer Modoc took about sixty of his neighbors on a free excursion to Rocky Point on the Fourth. All report a fine time, and all join in praise of the generosity and geniality of Captain Wiekstrom.

The frame of the new mill of the Klamath Manufacturing company is assuming shape. The lower story is well along today.

The Long Lake mill took a lay-off of one day, but is in operation again.

The steamer Eagle is bringing logs for the Algoma mill, and the Modoc is bringing a raft to the Pelican Bay mill.

A few nights ago a most brilliant and beautiful meteor flashed across the northern heavens. At one point in its flight it passed behind a cloud, giving to the cloud a shining border. So brilliant was this meteor that it almost dimmed the light of the rising moon. Its shining crescent was mirrored on the face of Klamath Lake, and for a few minutes after its passage left a golden furrow on the night.

There will be an invitation dance at St. Cloud on or about the evening of the 15th.

UNIVERSITY TO HAVE PRINT SHOP

GENEROSITY OF PIONEER NEWS-PAPER MAN PROVIDES DEPARTMENT OF JOURNALISM WITH A BEGINNING

(Herald Special Service)
UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, July 8.—A print shop like that on which many an Oregon weekly is printed has been installed as a laboratory at the quarters of the University Department of Journalism. Through the generosity of Hon. H. R. Kincaid, who published the Oregon State Journal for more than forty years, a beginning has been laid for a future University press.

The university board of regents, the day before Judge Kincaid made his donation, had appropriated $800 for the same purpose. This will be used for new equipment, bringing the plant up to date.

One of the two presses in the Kincaid equipment has a pioneer historic interest. It was the first press brought around the Horn, and printed the first paper ever issued west of the Rocky Mountains. In the old land notice days it is said to have earned for its owner more than $10,000 a year net for a considerable period.

HOLT CALLED EDUCATED FOOL

BROTHER-IN-LAW IN SAN DIEGO SCOFFS AT THE IDEA OF HOLT AND MUESTER BEING THE SAME MAN

SAN DIEGO, July 8.—"You could describe Holt by calling him an educated fool."
In this way Leon Sensabaugh, real estate man of San Diego, today characterized his brother-in-law, Frank Holt, would-be assassin of J. P. Morgan.

"Holt was a bookworm. He was slow in his studies, but he was always reading," Sensabaugh said.

"My sister met Holt about five years ago at Fort Worth, Tex. They have two children."
Sensabaugh scoffed at the idea that Holt and the missing Dr. Muester, former Harvard instructor, wanted on the charge of wife poisoning, are the same person, but it is admitted that little is known of several years of his life.

FAMILY COMES FROM WAR ZONE

WOMAN AND SIX CHILDREN ARRIVES IN SAN FRANCISCO AFTER PASSING THROUGH HARDSHIPS IN EUROPE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8. Mrs. Andrea Hofer-Proudfloor and her six children have arrived here from Vienna, after undergoing innumerable hardships in passing through the military lines of five nations now at war in Europe. They slept in trenches, troop trains, hospital cars, and begged food from the soldiers. It took them a month to reach the seacoast from their home in Austria, where Mrs. Hofer-Proudfloor had taken a villa, to educate her children abroad. She is delegate to the International Conference of Women Workers for the Promotion of Permanent Peace, now being held in this city.

"The carnage in Europe is frightful," Mrs. Hofer-Proudfloor said. "Everywhere we went there were wounded soldiers. The hospitals are crowded. All along the roads in France and in Germany as well as Austria and Belgium, the peasants crowded about the cars and asked why the war was being fought. They do not seem to know. They are going to the front like dumb animals, letting their officers and the upper classes do the thinking for them."

"I made the journey with my six children, the youngest 5 and the oldest 15, without money or friends. We depended on the good nature of the soldiers. They fed us and allowed us to sleep in their cars. We went without anything to eat once for five days. The troops divided their rations with us."
