MIGRATORY BIRD LAW ENFORCED

FEDERAL AND STATE REGULATIONS DO NOT ALWAYS COINCIDE—FEDERAL LAW TAKES PRECEDENCE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—With the approach of the open season for shooting wild fowl, the United States Department of Agriculture is warning sportsmen that the federal regulations as amended October 1, 1914, will be strictly enforced. Some misunderstanding has arisen from the fact that the various state laws do not always conform to the federal regulations. In such cases the department must insist upon the observance of the federal regulations.
 The department will consider any recommendations submitted in good faith for amendment of the regulations, but will hold no public hearings thereon, nor will it amend the regulations prior to October 15, 1918. It is the purpose of the department to conform the regulations to the wishes of the majority of sportsmen so far as it can be done, and at the same time give wild fowl the necessary protection.

The open season for migratory birds in Oregon is as follows: Water fowl, October 1 to January 16; woodcock, October to December 1; shore birds, snipes, plover, etc., October 1 to December 16.

Insectivorous birds protected indefinitely. Band tailed pigeons, cranes, swans, curlew, smaller shore birds and wood ducks protected until September 1, 1918.

Shooting prohibited between sunset and sunrise.

HAVE SOLVED THE RURAL PROBLEM

So much is written about discontented farmers' wives and the general lack of recreation in the country, surely it will be a pleasure to hear of a socially contented rural neighborhood.

If you will drive east from Klamath Falls you will enter a school district known as Pine Grove. On every other Thursday afternoon you will see women and children dressed in their best going to the "club." They meet with one of the neighbor women, and enjoy themselves all afternoon in a good social chat and doing their various kinds of needle work.

One day a few of the women met to see what they could do to better their social conditions. They organized the Civic Club. From the little group, the club has grown to include nearly every woman in the district. There are the usual officers, all elected for six months. The dues are $1.20 a year. There is no red tape. If you live in the neighborhood you are a member if you so desire and pay the dues. The club meetings are informal. Aside from the necessary club business, each hostess entertains as she desires. Sometimes there is just plain visiting, but always a jolly good time. Each hostess serves anything she desires, but always just three things.

Visiting takes much time in the country, so these club meetings have come to be a general calling day. Here they meet and exchange ideas.

Besides these social good times the club has given farewells to all of the ministers of Klamath Falls when they left, and given them a small remembrance of the people of this district. Anything that promotes a good neighborhood, anything that keeps the boys and girls at home, is backed by the Ladies' Civic Club.

What this club has done for one neighborhood any other group of energetic women can do for theirs.

There is no need of doing without good times on the farm. Surely the effort it entails is more than compensated by the return of good, old-fashioned neighborliness. It means much to live in a community where the grown-ups and the youngsters are proud of their home district.
