S. C. Graves, one of the oldest and best known newspaper men of South-eastern Oregon, died at Lakeview at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Graves, who has been conducting the Lakeview Herald for the past several years, was found in his office shortly before 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon by friends. He was lying down, and it was apparent that something was wrong. When asked what was the matter, he pointed to a partly consumed box of sardines, from which he had been eating.

Fearing that he had been poisoned by something he had eaten, a doctor was immediately summoned, and an attempt was made to relieve him by means of a stomach pump, but he was seized with convulsions, and soon died.

"Chap" Graves, as he was commonly known by his hosts of friends, was one of the old-time newspaper men of this section. He served on nearly all of the older papers of Klamath county. He was employed on the Express for many years, leaving that paper to go with the Republican. Later he owned and published the Bonanza paper.

Several years ago he went to Lakeview to take charge of the Herald, and has been conducting that paper up to the time of his death.

Chap Graves was a brother of Charles Graves of this city.
