Success of Wireless Telephone Begins Era of New Development

MESSAGE IS SENT THROUGH ETHER FOR THOUSANDS OF MILES AT THE RATE OF FIFTY-SIX THOUSAND MILES PER SECOND—YESTERDAY'S ANNOUNCEMENT BRINGS NEARER THE DAY WHEN THE HUMAN VOICE WILL RELEGATE DOTS AND DASHES TO THE PAST

(Herald Special Service) SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Wireless transcontinental telephony ceased to be a dream and became a reality at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The human voice has been hurled into space at the Naval Radial Station at Arlington, Virginia, and conducted by ether through the Mare Island towers.

The achievement works the solution of nearly every problem involved with the future development of telephony.

A year ago the products were exhibited in a tent, not a large one either, and there was plenty of room.

The one yesterday, attended by fifty Klamath Falls people, took place in a large store building, which was filled to overflowing.

According to C. T. Oliver, the exhibits were a revelation. All kinds of fruit, splendid livestock, grains and grasses, and all quantities of fancy work filled the fair room.

The variety of products that can be grown on dry land was proven by one exhibit which contained ten varieties of marketable potatoes, twenty kinds of garden seed, four kinds of beans, lettuce, and other vegetables, as well as millet three and a half feet high, and Sudan grass five feet tall from one farm.

The success of this fair, as well as the one at Merrill, assures, practically, the big district fair to be held here next year to which surrounding counties will be asked to send exhibits.

Fred Fleet was unable to secure as large a delegation to attend today's fair at Fort Klamath as those which attended the Merrill and Bonanza fairs.

HUNTING SEASON OPEN FOR DUCKS; TOWN DESERTED

EARLY GLIMPSES OF BAGS SHOW GOOD SPORT

There were few men-folk on the streets of Klamath Falls this morning. Everyone who could get away and who hadn't hunted so much years ago that they were tired of it, were out after game.

Guns began to pop at sunrise this morning. They sounded from the marshes, where the ducks were being hunted, and from the chaparral flats, where valley quail whirred, and from the hill slopes, where mountain quail hunted like bullets through the underbrush. Sometimes a rifle sounded, for the deer season is still open.

Forty-one hunting licenses were issued yesterday, a few this morning, and twenty-one on September 29th. Ammunition stores did a rushing business.

CRISIS OF WAR AT HAND; DEFEAT MAY MEAN PEACE

FRANCE SWEEP TOWARD VINEY HEIGHTS; HEIGHTS UNCONQUERED

Berlin thinks if Great Offensive is Repulsed Peace Negotiations Will Start Before Summer—Outburst to Great Trial of Strength of Allies; German Attacks Reported in Ardennes and Champagne.

United Press Service PARIS, Oct. 1.—It is announced that the French have progressed far toward Viney Heights. The Germans attempted heavy counter attacks in Ardennes and Champagne, but were repulsed.

A statement has been issued that the east and south of Noyelle two German attacks were repulsed. The first was directed against the French fortified works in the Glermy Forest and the second against the south side No. 191.

United Press Service LONDON, Oct. 1.—This is the seventh day of the great offensive movement, and the allies are sweeping closer to the Viney Heights. The Roman Court and Chalmers railways are the French objectives.

Paris asserts that the French left us within two miles of the railway. Gunners shelled the road, making it useless for transportation. The right is advancing on Comy.

Berlin believes that if the offensive is repulsed peace negotiations will start before next summer.

That this great offensive movement is one of the great crises of the war is everywhere believed by authorities. If the drive is successful, the Germans will be forced to draw armies of men from the east to protect themselves, and the Germans will have to fight defensive warfare.

On the other hand, if the drive is repulsed, Berlin feels certain that the allies will begin peace negotiations. It will show that even when such a terrible onslaught as is now being made, the allies will be unable to force the Germans to sue for peace.
