FAIR AT FORT IS EYE-OPENER

PRODUCTS HAVE THE SAME QUALITY, SAME VARIETY AS WERE SHOWN AT FAIRS AT BONANZA AND MERRILL

Those who attended the district fair at Fort Klamath yesterday, report the same variety of products, exhibits, etc., and of equal quality as were on display at the Merrill and Bonanza fairs. When Klamath Falls people saw what the Merrill district could raise, they said it was a revelation to them. "Merrill must be the cream of the county," they said.

Then they went to Bonanza, and the products were just as many, the vegetables just as huge, the variety just as surprising. Again the Klamath Falls folk were surprised. They began to think that the Bonanza section had a strangle hold on part of the Klamath county cream, also.

Not so many went to the fair at Fort Klamath yesterday, for the duck season was open, but those that did, came home with a story. They have decided, they confess, after comparing the products of the Fort Klamath section with that of Merrill and Bonanza, that about every farming section of Klamath county is just as good as any other, and all of them can raise products that are a "revelation" to strangers from less fertile lands.

Some of the products of the fairs will be added to the exhibit window. Next year they will all be brought to Klamath Falls for the district fair of all surrounding counties. Then, and not till then, will difference be noticeable in the exhibits from different places.

The second and last day of the Fort Klamath fair is being held today.

SHEEP OWNERS ARE HAPPY WITH GOOD MARKETS

WOOL AND LAMBS BRINGING RECORD PRICES

McKendree Makes Klamath Falls Shipping Point for Many Thousand Lambs, While Many More Will Be Fed in Klamath Basin for Spring Shipments—Majority of Lambs Already Marketed.

Twelve thousand lambs have been delivered here this week as a portion of the purchases made by O. T. McKendree, for future shipment to the San Francisco markets. The big fall delivery of lambs and sheep has commenced and bands are coming in here from all sections of Klamath and Lake counties.

McKendree, who is the heaviest buyer of lambs in this section this year, states that he has contracted for feeding 8,000 head of lambs in the Klamath Basin during the winter. The remainder of his purchases he expects to ship to San Francisco about the 1st of November.

According to I. D. Applegate, one of the large sheep owners of this section, the present year has been the best for the sheep man in the history of the county. Not only was the record broken in the price received for wool, which reached as high as 23 and 25c, but the price being paid for lambs is the highest he has ever known here. First class lambs are readily bringing $4.00.

Following is approximately the number of lambs that has already or will be sold for delivery here:

- I. D. Applegate, 1,200; E. L. Hooley, 1,200; Dan Murphy, 1,200; Manuel Sanders, 3,000; Dave Edler, 4,000; Jay Arant, 1,500; Rex Bord 1,000; Frank Bloomingcamp, 1,500; Jas. In addition to these there are a large number of owners of small bands in the Merrill, Sprague River and Wood River countries which will ship from here.

TEN SIGNED UP FOR FAIR EXCURSION

SPECIAL TRAIN TO SAN FRANCISCO MORE THAN A POSSIBILITY. FLEET SAYS RATE IS BIG OPPORTUNITY

That the one-way fare to San Francisco and Klamath Day are more than possibilities is shown by the way in which Klamath Falls people are handing in their names. In the day or so since the announcement was made for those who wish to take advantage of the excursion to leave their names with Fred Fleet at the Commercial Club, ten have responded.

"We only need about seventy-five from here," said Fleet. "With these ten and the fifteen or so that will want to go from other Klamath towns. It is a great opportunity to see the fair at a greatly reduced rate, and at the same time boost Klamath by being on hand for Klamath Day, to be observed at the fair. Besides, the trip would be more enjoyable than on ordinary occasions, because folks would have the company of their own townsmen all the way down and back."

DUCKS SCARCE; QUAIL ABOUND

HUNTERS FIND THAT SHOOTING IS HARDLY UP TO AVERAGE ON ACCOUNT OF THE FINE WEATHER

The game bags brought in yesterday were hardly up to the first day's average, according to many local sportsmen. While the shooting was fair, it was only a few hunters that killed any ways near the limit.

The best success, apparently, was secured at the Straits, where several men went to hunt. Most of these parties brought back from twenty to thirty ducks—all the way from five to ten apiece. Others had good sport on the Upper Lake, and still others, in more remote lakes and swamps.

The quail shooting was excellent, however, and the limit was secured by many sportsmen. The birds are particularly fat and fine this year, and their abundant numbers is thought to be the result of the mild winter of last year. A few grouse and a lone goose or so was taken.

Several deer have been killed the last few days, the latest being a four point that fell before Drs. Johnson and Cathy, near Crater Lake.

The ducks are practically all young and rather tame, as they are home-grown product. In a few weeks, after a few big rains and a frost or two, the flight from the north is expected, and then the sport will be at its best. The present nice weather is mostly responsible for the present shortage of ducks.

PAVILION BOUTS ATTRACT CROWD

BOBBY ALLEN OF PORTLAND PROVES VICTOR IN FOUR-ROUND GO WITH MID CURLEY OF THIS CITY

Last night the Pavilion on Klamath avenue was crowded with "fans" old and young, awaiting anxiously the events offered by Manager Free. Dr. Cathey delivered a very interesting talk on physical culture, explaining the development and gracefulness that could be attained through careful training under proper instruction. He was generously applauded, and after his talk the gloves were tossed into the ring for the preliminary event, Frankie Turpin of Lakeview vs. "Kid" Turpin of this city.

Immediately after the usual handshaking, things began to look busy for the Turpins. Frankie Turpin, with his crouch, assumed the aggressive, and from then on until the end of the match it would have taken an Edison phonograph to have recorded all the "hits," not to mention the "wind jammers." Kid Turpin cuffed Frankie on the bean quite often, but was slow in following up, which left his opponent constantly on the aggressive. However, the event was a clean cut affair, and at the close of the last round Frankie was awarded the honors.

Closely following the preliminary was a sparring exhibition between Bobby Allen, champion lightweight of Portland, and Kid Curley, champion welterweight of Klamath Falls.

Allen was first in the ring, Curley entering a few minutes later. Referee Jack Crawford introduced the combatants, and the fun started. It wasn't a case of "Big Fraud" and "Little Fraud"; nevertheless both sparred for an opening, not to say there was any to spar for, but just to get things going Bobby reached over and tapped Curly, which started them both on a sparring tour that closed with a slap on Bobby's back. The second, third and fourth were quite a bit faster and funnier than the first, with honors in favor of the Portlander.

Casey Jones of Fort Klamath was then introduced, and concluded the evening's performance by showing what can be done with a "pig skin" tied to a rope.

All in all, the affair was well taken, and it is to be hoped that sports of this nature, when properly staged, will be given the support due an athletic club.
