

FIRST FOOTBALL GAME SCORELESS

KLAMATH HIGH SCHOOL AND ALUMNI PLAY NOTHING TO NOTHING GAME—HIGH SCHOOL MEN MEDFORD SOON

The Klamath High School team and the high school alumni team clashed in the first football game of the season Saturday with a 0-to-0 score. The speed and technique of the high school men was apparently just balanced by the additional weight of the alumni.

It was a hard, fast game every minute, with lots of thrills. Tackling was excellent, and few times did any of the back field get away for long runs.

Those who saw the game are convinced as to one thing, that Klamath Falls has a high school team this year that will put up a good game with any other high school in Southern Oregon. The boys' consistent practice, under Coach Motaehenscher and his assistants, has developed them into an eleven that is not only fast, but has good team work.

The next big game is Saturday, when the Klamath boys play Medford.

OUCH! BACKACHE! RUB LUMBAGO OR STIFFNESS AWAY

RUB PAIN FROM BACK WITH SMALL TRIAL BOTTLE OF OLD, PENETRATING "ST. JACOB'S OIL"

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled. This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless, and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints.—Adv.

If all of the 7,730,000 Douglas fir cross ties treated in 1914 were laid by one railroad, a double track passenger service and a single track freight line could be run between San Francisco and Seattle.

people the same kind of a thrill. For instance, James A. Lackey, Eastern Oregon's 225-pound representative, who lives at the St. James hotel, had just stripped himself to the clothing Mother Nature had given him and started to don the acre or so of swaddling clothes necessary to encase his form for the night. As he was bending over he heard what he thought was an imperative summons to the door, and at the same time he received a shove forward that caused him to open the door almost before he knew it. When he poked his head out, he saw various other heads and some bodies, feminine and otherwise, more or less disheveled. The second thrill showed him out the door and he was unfortunate enough to lose his hold on the knob. As a result, the door, with a spring lock on it, closed. For a minute Mr. Lackey was merely one of a score of night-beddoed citizens loose in the St. James hallway, but when the minute had passed the others slipped back into their rooms, all but their heads, and the genial Oregonian had to wait in a corner until the elevator boy could get a key. In the meantime he was experiencing some thrills not inspired by the quake.

Phil Sinnott, Klamath's man, was at the Orpheum theater, and the only woman who fainted raised her 175 pounds of avordupois from the seat beside him and did her fainting in Phil's arms. Mrs. Sinnott, who is not so strong on thrills, insisted on packing bag and baggage and returning to dear old Klamath, but Mr. Sinnott finally convinced her that he really did not enjoy holding the 175-pound San Francisco beauty, so she is going to stay until the next thriller comes.

Ralph J. Staehli, expert moving picture man, who had tasted all the thrills of a great city until he was almost dead of ennui—whatever that is—was so overjoyed at this new thrill that he turned white, and felt so rejuvenated that he dashed out of the building and made for Presidio Hill, the highest point in the vicinity, presumably to escape any dampening of ardor from any possible tidal waves.

At the Oregon building the big logs squeaked in tones as raucous as those produced by the hind wheel of Manager Hyland's 1913 touring car or Ben Sheldon's little old Ford, and while this was going on there were several who had grave doubts as to whether the Oregon Parthenon was going to be pitched into the bay or land on Telegraph hill.

As a matter of fact, the shock was the heaviest felt here since the big fire, and many people were scared stiff. The recital of incidents happening to Oregon people is not greatly overdrawn, but while this is true, many people did not notice either of the three shocks. It is also true that the overwhelming majority of those who did feel them took no special notice of them, and many who did feel them and were greatly scared, now look upon the experience as a novelty which they would not have missed for anything.

The exposition is built on filled-in ground, which is necessarily loose. Doubtless the shock caused much greater tremor here and in the tall buildings perhaps more of a thrill was felt. From expressions heard here since the quake, Californians could do a better thing than to attempt to keep the facts of the earthquake shocks from being carried far and wide; they should go to some trouble and expense to make clear the fact that the greatest of all the quakes here did little or no damage, and that only the fire which followed—impossible now, because of $5,000,000 fire protection—caused the damage. Once this fact is established they could advertise these earthquake shocks as special attractions, for there is universal agreement as to the novelty, and no real fear of the result. Any Oregonian who would stay away as a result of the recent thriller would be a "weak sister" indeed.

Timber Sale

Sealed proposals in duplicate, each envelope marked "Proposal for Timber, Klamath Reservation," will be received at the office of the superintendent of the Klamath Indian school, Klamath Agency, Oregon, until 12 o'clock noon, Pacific Coast time, Wednesday, November 3, 1915, for the purchase of approximately 5,000,000 feet of yellow pine timber on the Klamath Indian reservation, Oregon. This timber is upon portions of sections 14, 15, 22 and 23, township 28 south, range 7 1/2 east, Willamette Meridian. The timber offered for sale is tributary to Wood River, a drivable stream. The minimum price which will be accepted is $2.50 per 1,000 feet for yellow pine. The timber must be cut under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior. All timber must be cut and removed prior to June 1, 1918. With the bid a certified check on a solvent national bank must be submitted in the amount of $500. This check will be returned to unsuccessful bidders, applied towards the payment for timber if bid is accepted, and retained as a forfeit if a bid is accepted and the bidder fails to comply with the requirements of his bid. The right of the commissioner of Indian Affairs to waive technical defects in advertisements and bids, and to reject any and all bids, is reserved. Further information as to the timber may be obtained upon request from the superintendent of the Klamath Indian school, Klamath Agency, Oregon.
