London Is Darkness City From Fear of Zeppelins

By WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Oct. 6.—(By mail)—London, the darkest city in the world! Such is this ancient town's new title. Zeppelin raids have indeed made it the world's city of darkness.

Imagine, if possible, London 100 years ago, before Benjamin Franklin started to experiment with a key on a kite string; before Edison began to see the possibilities of small wires in a vacuum glass globe; before great power plants were built.

Imagine Broadway without a gleam of light; State street, Chicago, without an electric sign; Market street, San Francisco, without its "White Way," and even then it would be hard to imagine how dark the Zeppelins have made London.

The great Strand, whose hotels and electric signs once sent light far into the upper void, is as black as the ace of spades. Piccadilly, Regent street, Westminster and all the rest are equally black. Add to this an early autumn London fog, and the approaching "black fogs" of winter, and London will be found as dark as an American cross roads village at midnight.

Even the silent Thames, which the Germans claimed guided them to London on the last memorable raid, is doomed to blackness. Lights that for generations have reflected their yellowness on the swift waters, have ceased to shine. Moonlight alone can make the Thames reflect itself visibly at great altitudes, and Zeppelins are not moonlight birds. Darkest nights are Zeppelin nights, and in them London needs must resemble the black nothingness of open country.

Residential districts, suburbs and all, must curtain their windows and shade their lights. Police constantly watch for unshaded windows, and, if a violation is found, a sharp warning is administered. A second offense means a stiff fine. Shopkeepers report sales of candles.

On the streets motor omnibuses, taxicabs and vehicles of all varieties limit speed and activity after night-fall. The buses crawl through the haze with darkened interiors, and showing faint blue and red lights fore and aft.

Taxicabs drone along at slow speed, the driver always on a nervous strain for fear of bumping some groping pedestrian. The situation will be somewhat aided, if a suggestion to white-wash all of the city's 40,000 miles of curbstones is carried out.

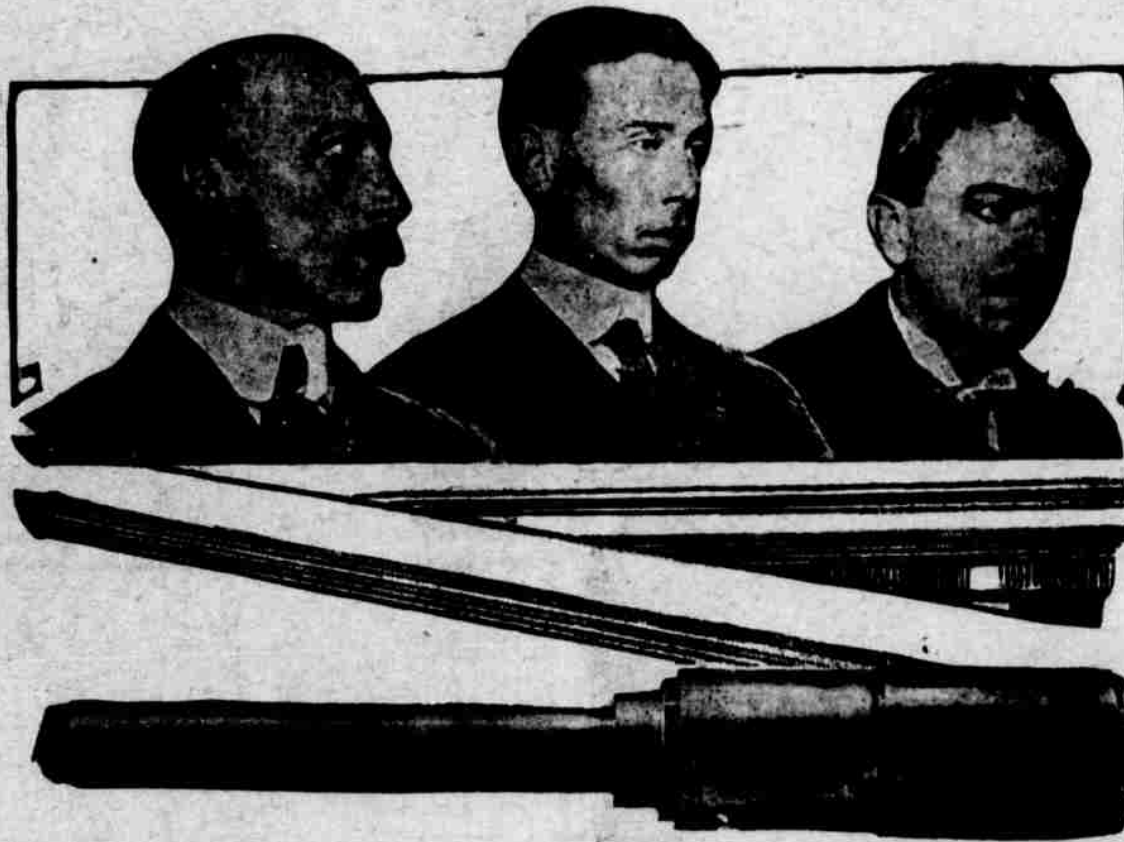

London's already heavy street accident casualty list is expected to be almost doubled by the new situation. The authorities are understood, however, to have taken this into consideration, believing it better to have people killed singly by accident than in groups by Zeppelin bombs. In addition, it is agreed, the former is much easier on the nerves of the whole population.

Home From Trip.

Ready to Blow Up Munitions Ships

Lieutenant Robert Fay of the German army, who describes himself as a veteran of the battle of the Marne and the Champagne country, was arrested in New Jersey by New York city detectives as a conspirator ready to blow up steamships carrying freight to the allies in Europe. Large quantities of explosives were found in his possession. Walter L. Scholz, his brother-in-law, was taken at the same time. Paul Daeche, who denied he had anything to do with them, was arrested later. Fay confessed the whole story to the New York police, but denied that he had so far been able to attach his bomb to the propeller of any steamship. He had been caught before he could do that.

Moving Pictures

The Fox feature production, "A Gilded Fool," will be shown at the Star tonight. William Farnum portrays the old adage, "A fool and his money soon parts," and with him in this role assures a certain success of the production. There probably could not be found a man in the picture business today that would be more qualified for this part, or any other part of this kind, than William Farnum. This picture is that of a grocery boy who suddenly finds himself in possession of a large fortune, and how he proceeds to rid himself of the fortune by the aid of a woman, can be properly described only on the screen. This picture will be shown tonight only.

A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to come to the Klamath Falls Music House and listen to the late records, as well as the old songs and instrumental pieces that never grow old. There's a tinge of loneliness in the autumn air which makes people crave music, light and laughter, as surely as sun-parched ground craves water.

All of these things are to be had in the home where there is an Edison Diamond Disc or Amberol, or a Victrola, or a Columbia Graphophone.

We have hundreds of records on hand, and new ones coming in continually, ranging from 50c to $7.00 in price.
If you are thinking of purchasing a Piano or an Organ, WE HAVE THEM, and can quote you satisfactory prices and terms.

All kinds of Sheet Music and Music Books; in fact, we furnish you with anything in musical line, from a Jew's Harp to a Grand Piano.
