INTELLECTUAL STIMULUS

JUST as each individual man needs an occasional stimulus to keep him at his best, so the community as a whole needs such a stimulus. In the winter time especially the rural community is likely to relapse into a state of coma when there is so little doing and all days and nights seem alike and life is so monotonous as to seem hardly worth any effort. It is at such a time the lecture course can perform splendid service.

Most men if left to their own resources will not amount to much, will make little progress and care little for improvement. The person who under such circumstances does improve is the exception, not the rule. It is much the same with a community; it needs the stimulus of example and of outside forces to rouse it to emulation. Its people must be told what is going on in the world outside. Their minds must be lifted out of the monotonous groove of every day duties and employments and placed upon the world's highway to be hustled into contact with the traffic and turmoil of intellectual and material achievement.

The lecture course can be and should be made to perform this service for the rural community during the winter season when otherwise monotony, inactivity and indifference would be likely to reign. The injecting of new subjects and of new ideas on old subjects for discussion, the presentation of unique or unusual views, have all the force of stimuli and will arouse thought and discussion and in the end will produce an atmosphere of activity, enterprise and progress.

But the lecture course must be planned to meet the needs of the community, to raise the level of thought and culture, and to give its educational, social and moral activities and purposes an impetus that will carry them along the highway of progress. The lectures should fit in with some general scheme of advancement so that each year as the result of the stimulus received from the course there shall be discernible a more wholesome respect for the force of uplift.

"MOLASSES FOR FLIES"

THE single-term plank of the Democratic platform held its origin, presumably, in two considerations: First, that it would leave the president free from the influence of ambition for a second term and thus enable him to make appointments without regard to the political influence of the appointees, but solely upon their qualifications, and, second, that this plank in the platform would add strength to the ticket and bring votes to the candidate.

It is manifest that from the beginning President Wilson had no intention of being bound by the single-term plank unless developments should indicate the improbability of his reelection if nominated.

Positions in government service have been used for political reward. The president did not appoint to a position of prominence any man who would likely be a candidate against him in 1916, and surrounded himself and filled the departments with men who could be of service in securing his own re-nomination and election. This plank, therefore, did not serve its purpose of freeing the presidential office from the evil influence of patronage. It may have served its purpose in gathering some votes for the candidate, but, if so, the violation of the plank will result in turning a corresponding number of votes against him in case he should be a candidate for a second term.

News of Our Neighbors

Rains Silver

Workmen employed on the Phoenix ditch of the Rogue River Canal company construction Friday afternoon touched off a charge of dynamite underneath a stump, and half dollars and dollars filled the air. The blast uncovered a money cache that had been buried there since the early '60s. Most of the coins were of the mintage of the '50s, and when the silver began to fall there was a wild scramble. The cache contained about $500, according to the conservative, but some of the more imaginative are placing it as high as $2,500.—Ashland Tidings.

Can't Beat It

Prof. F. C. Reimer, of the Southern Oregon Experiment station, harvested a part of the sugar beets from the farm Thursday and made a careful test of the yield and the result is certainly wonderful and shows that sugar beets would be one of the most prolific and best paying crops this valley could produce and especially in this true of irrigated beets as the test shows.—Medford Sun.

Rich Copper Strike

Mr. T. L. Elgre, superintendent of the Valley View Syndicate operating the copper property north of Lake City in an interview with the Surprise Valley Record proclaimed the copper mines in Surprise a revelation, and predicts the making of one of the biggest copper mines in the state out of the "Black Jack"—$80 pounds of ore was recently shipped to the Salt Lake smelter for a test and assayed $130 per ton value.—Akron Plaindealer.

Spreading the Gospel

The publicity department, as shown by the following figures, has made an excellent showing for the first five months of the present management. From June 1 to November 1, 35,513 booklets, 1,334 letters, 150 marked newspapers, 7,518 printed postcards and 2,500 leaflets have been sent out from the office. This foots up to the respectable total of 47,105 pieces of matter sent out.—Ashland Tidings.

An Expensive Leak

The basement in the home of Joe Lynch, 219 Thirteenth street, was filled to a depth of over a foot Wednesday morning and oil was poured along the Southern Pacific track for a distance of nine blocks, when a draw bar on a oil car was dislodged, the car punctured and its entire contents lost. Thirty-thousand gallons poured from the car, which was punctured while on the Fourteenth street trestle.—Oregon City Enterprise.

Carrying out promises made both before and after the recent franchise election the Bend Water Light & Power Co. has just arranged with Steidl & Sweet for the use of the power generated at the North Canal dam on terms wholly satisfactory to both parties.—Bend Bulletin.

American Farmers Think War Times Not So Poor

During the first year, agricultural exports increased thirty-two per cent, a stimulus that caused an increase of 3.4 per cent in the acreage. Grain exports were the highest; cotton, the lowest. What the American Farmer Has to Sell Abroad This Year. In excess of home requirements, America can spare: 375,000,000 bushels of wheat, 225,000,000 bushels of corn, 7,000,000 bales of cotton, 200,000 bushels of oats, $320,000,000 worth of meat and dairy products.

United Press Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—While sensational fluctuations in Wall street attracted attention, the American farmer was quietly pocketing heavy profits as a result of the war. The Department of Agriculture figures, made available to the United Press, indicate that he seized the psychological moment to boom his business. Realizing that Europe brought more of his goods than ever before and seemed in a way to continue needing vast supplies, the farmer promptly planted more land in order to meet the larger demand.

Much of this land went into wheat, wherewith to feed the armies fighting each other on the great fronts of Europe. The once vast cotton crop of the south was decreased, because a year since the farmer found himself embarrassed by the small figures the crop brought abroad.

The aggregate crops this year are estimated at seven per cent larger than last year's when the farmer exported about one-tenth of his total. If half of the increased production is available for export this year, the export total will be twenty-five per cent more than last year.

Increased acreage in sugar beets, sweet potatoes, rice and wheat from thirty to ten per cent; tobacco, corn and oats acreage increased upwards of five per cent; hay, rye and potatoes from three to one per cent; while flax, barley and cotton acreage decreased.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

(By Rollin Stitzer)

A student body meeting was held Thursday evening. Graham Kiehl was elected basketball manager and Rollin Stitzer athletic editor. A committee was appointed to frame a new constitution, the old one being lost last year. The committee consists of Will Melhase (chairman), Graham Kiehl, Austin Case, Octavia De Lap, George Riggs, Harriet Fink, students, and V. T. Motschenbacher, faculty member.

Not enough interest is shown in the student organization. Thursday afternoon just about two-thirds of the students were there.

School activities cannot exist unless the students give their utmost support and loyalty to this organization. In doing this, each student should attend student body meetings, in order to express his opinions. His vote is a protection to this organization. It was suggested at the last meeting that each student not present at a student body meeting should be fined 5 cents unless he could produce a reasonable excuse. The profits derived from this would be placed in the athletic fund.

Philip J. Sinnott, who has been managing the Klamath county booth at the exposition, gave the High School an hour's talk Thursday morning. Cards and slides were shown of the grounds at the exposition.

Particular interest is shown in the debating league, and the prospects are exceptionally hopeful. The material is also first class. Some have had previous experience in debating last year. Next week debates will be held in Senior English. Most of the Seniors possess forensic talent, and many have entered the league. League entries to date follow: Margaret Dowling, Margaret Wood, Harriet Fink, Laveta Jackson, Hesel Du-Fault, Emma Honzik, Florence Boogs, Frankie Adams, Helen Zumpfe, Ida Thomas, Hazel Fry, John Houston.

Clarence Williams, Robert Elliott, Frank Turpin, Wayne Keesee, Chas. Dorr, Chas. Honzik, Rollin Stitzer, Graham Kiehl, Cecil Adams, Austin Case and Lawrence Motschenbacher. There will be three teams, each of six students, and one team of four members. The school team will be selected by elimination contests.

Captain Jake Steiger and his squad, also Captain Helen DuFault and her squad of girls, will begin practicing basketball at an early date. There is much interest and talk at high school about basketball.

It is probable that about thirty students will turn out for the high school team, while about fifty will turn out for the class teams. Last year the Sophomores were the champions, but it looks as though the Seniors will be successful this year.

An orchestra of sixteen pieces is holding weekly practice each Tuesday night. At an early date a few numbers will be presented in assembly. The orchestra is led by Mr. Taylor, the music teacher. Much interest is shown in this work.

COLD WAVE SWEEPING NORTH FROM THE GULF

United Press Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—The coldest wave of the season is sweeping the Gulf States, and moving north along the Atlantic Coast, according to the weather bureau.

Northern Ohio is having its first big snow storm.

Nearly 17,000,000 pounds of wood pulp was exported to Europe from the United States during 1914. Canada ranks second, receiving from the United States over 7,000,000 pounds.
