KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1916

WAR ORDER PROSPERITY

WITH a remarkable mixture of facts and fancy and a marvelous disregard for consistency, the Washington Post declares that millions of dinner palls that were empty under republican administration are now full and overflowing under the democratic president, and after four years of a democratic control of federal legislation; also that "no party ever in power in this country has produced such prosperity as now exists." Those two declarations are made in an editorial which declares that "the decision of the allies to carry on the war has added stimulus to war orders," that the crest of the wave of orders has not yet passed, that there will be fully two millions more men on each side in line of battle by next March, than there were last March, and that the allies will draw their supplies from the United States.

Thus in the same article in which the editorial assures that the democratic party has produced such prosperity as now exists, it points to the real cause for the partial return of prosperity in some parts of the United States.

Its declaration that many millions of dinner palls were empty from 1907 until a democratic administration filled them will make boards of associated charities and the managers of public bread lines in our cities wonder why there was such an enormous demand for their assistance in 1913 and 1914, as compared with the previous years when these many millions of dinner palls were supposed to be empty.

And yet the Post is undoubtedly correct in saying that "no party in power in this country has produced such prosperity as now exists." Certainly the democratic party has not produced such prosperity as now exists. Nor will the republican party claim that it has produced such prosperity as this.

Six months ago we had suffered two years of democratic administration. The first year and a half of that administration was characterized by industrial depression throughout the length and breadth of the United States. The outbreak of the European war cut off imports and created a new demand for exports, thus saving American industry from utter destruction. Even so late as six months ago we could not fully realize to what extent the European war would re-establish the industrial enterprises which had been demolished by democratic economic policies.

Scattered Shots

THOSE WHO LAUGH at Henry Ford's slogan, "Out of the trenches by Christmas," should remember that the Jitney maker didn't specify the year this Christmas will be in.

YES, UNCLE, there is a city ordinance providing a fine for those neglecting to shovel the snow off the sidewalk in front of their property.

ALSO, THERE is a provision making the property owner liable for any damages resulting from people falling on such faulty walks.

WE WILL NEVER be numbered among the progressive cities unless some of these mombacks cut loose and number their houses.

Rubbish, Boxes, Sounds of Engines at Fair Ground

United Press Service SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—The wrecker's ruthless hands are upon the exposition. Soon its beauties will be a heap of plaster, timbers and memories.

Today a grunting engine wheezed its way through the grounds where once joyful throngs congregated. It backed its string of freight cars into palaces and dragged out the last of the exhibits and furnishings. It poured its smoke over the Tower of Jewels and upon beautiful, snowy statues.

Throughout the ground the doleful sound of hammers and picks, of ripping lumber and rattling plaster were heard. Sharp bargainers directed the destruction of their prizes, the state buildings and other edifices, costing thousands to build, but sold for a trifle.

A lone barker tried to sell post-exposition visitors souvenir coins. A wheel chair bearing a couple of old ladies creaked through what is left of the once gem city.

High over the wondrously beautiful Court of the Universe and Court of Abundance, circled lazy sea gulls from off the bay. Around the buildings a flock of frightened doves rose as now and then the tread of a visitor startled their calm. Empty fountains rusted, and the palaces, some of them, are still standing. But they are showing signs of decrepitude; the plaster walls are chipped; the brilliant banners drooped and faded in the winter rains.

Sidewalks were littered with rubbish. Amid the ruins in the gardens blossomed a few geraniums. The other flowers are dead. All about was an air of desolation. A few grimy workmen replaced the thousands of sightseers who for months filled the beautiful grounds.

The romance of moonlight nights along the bay, fragrant with soft breezes, touched with orange blossoms, were replaced by the grim reality of decay, ruin, loneliness. A chill wind blew from the hills and the clouds filled the sky with gloom.

On the joy some—that noisy, rollicking some—desolation lay deep. Stella, wondrously beautiful Stella—was gone. Just a ragged sign marked her erstwhile abiding place. The giant dummy figures outside of toyland, reared their heads like lonesome monsters wondering where their crowds had vanished to. The house of the "Girl in Blue" was boarded up. The "Pool of the Diving Girls" is in ruins. Strange silence rests upon the once clattering coasters. It is indeed a forsaken city.

TODAY'S ODDDEST STORY

United Press Service PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—Beginning with the date that China became a republic, the revolutionist Chinese students at Pennsylvania university began a fight to have the silken yellow dragon, emblem of the Manchu monarchy, removed from the wall of Houston hall, where it had hung for many years. At last the revolutionists won and the emblem came down to give place to the flag of the republic of China. Within a few hours thereafter came the news that China was again a monarchy. Now the Manchus want the dragon reinstated.

What the War Moves Mean

By J. W. T. MASON (Written for the United Press)

Publication of the returns from Lord Derby's enlistment campaign indicates that if the British army is to be increased by conscription, married men cannot long escape. About 650,000 single men available are small compared to the total of 2,800,000 men who have responded. Scarcely 500,000 unmarried shirkers will probably pass the tests, and their influence on the outcome of the war could hardly count unless the struggle continues years longer.

After them, the fathers of families must prepare for sacrifice. This will have weight in determining labor's attitude toward conscription. The high wages of the war have permitted England's workers to raise their standard of living. If the married men are called to war, the government family allowance would plunge families into misery where they had only flourished before. Trade unions, however, oppose abandoning concessions once won from capital.

GASOLINE GOES UP IN SPITE OF U. S. PROBES

United Press Service PORTLAND, Jan. 6.—The Standard Oil company's offices here announced an increase of one cent a gallon in the price of gasoline. This price is effective today, making the retail cost 16 1/2 cents a gallon.

Federal District Attorney Rees has made no announcement as yet as to whether the government is making an investigation into the causes for the price increase.

URGES EVERYONE TO QUICKLY GET ON WATER WAGON

DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST TO WASH OUT POISONS

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a head ache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.—Adv.

Chamberlain Military Bill Fully Explained

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 6.—Letters received by Senator Chamberlain indicate that many wrong impressions have gone out concerning his bill for military training along the lines of the Swiss system, due in large part to the free use of the word "conscription" in describing the plan.

The bill does embrace features of compulsory service, but carries large exempted classes. Much of the training called for may be embraced in public and private school courses, or be taken in evening drills and exercises, so that the measure is far from containing the "conscription" features that many have supposed.

Two grand divisions of training are outlined in the bill, one including those in the "citizen cadet corps," between the ages of 12 and 17 years, the other the men of the "citizen army," between 18 and 23 years.

Training in the citizen cadet corps is proposed to be divided into three periods of two years each. From 12 to 14 this would consist merely of calisthenics and other physical and military instruction without arms, for not less than ninety hours in one year. In the second period, ages 14 to 16, ninety hours per year, which shall include rifle practice. In the third period, 16 to 18 years, ninety hours a year in the field and target practice, and also ten whole days in camp.

The citizen army, from 18 to 23 years of age, is to devote not less than 120 hours a year, or twenty whole days, in training, and not less than ten whole days each year to continuous camp training.

Except for the time above given as required for continuous camp training, it is provided that for the period of the citizen cadet corps and the citizen army service as well, the training may be made up of daily periods of whole day drills of not less than six hours, of half day drills of not less than three hours, or in night drills of not less than one and a half hours.

Credit may be obtained for any of this training provided by public or private schools, in the militia or naval militia, or in Boy Scout or other organizations.

Exempted classes are those physically unfit, soldiers and sailors of the regular army and navy, school teachers engaged in any part of instruction provided for, police and prison officials, those morally unfit, members of organized religious sects opposed in conscience to war, mariners, those excused by the president in the interest of the public service, also temporary exemptions where compulsory attendance would impose great hardship because of excessive distance or other cause.

Employers are forbidden under penalty to interfere with the attendance of employees at drill and military instruction periods, and like penalties are fixed for failure on the part of any one within the prescribed ages to attend compulsory drill or instruction.

An elaborate system of registration is marked out, so that in case of need the whereabouts of every person liable to military service may be known.
