Strikers Are Sued for Damages by R. R. Co.

United Press Service
WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 7.— After weeks of wrangling over wages and working conditions with its 380 motormen and conductors, during which local transportation has been paralyzed and riot and bloodshed have become common, the Wilkes-Barre Railway company, has sued the strikers individually and collectively for $200,000 damages for "violation of their contract and unlawful picketing."

A large percentage of the traction stock is owned by F. M. Kirby, whose string of stores is amalgamated with the Woolworth string; and Abraham Nesbitt, said to be the richest man in Wyoming Valley. The strike began October 14, 1915.

The strike is effecting a retail buying population of 484,815, a wholesale buying population of $51,639 and a total population of 1,750,000. The 330 men are losing $5,000 a week in wages and the company $3,000 a day in fares. Seventy thousand United Mine workers and about 30,000 textile workers have boycotted the street cars. Three hundred special mounted police and two troops of state police have been unable to preserve order.
All cars are armored with double steel netting.

The men contend they are striking for justice. Company officials claim they are fighting for the principle of arbitration. The deadlock is over the method of wage payment, rather than the wage. The last three-year agreement expired January 1 last. Negotiations on a new schedule dragged until April 1, when the men struck.

They had demanded an increase from twenty-four to thirty-two cents an hour and better working conditions.
The latter they got. Arbitrators were selected to settle the wage dispute.
April 10, the men returned to work.

On July 10th the arbitrators announced a sliding scale: First year men receive twenty-four cents, second year men twenty-five cents, third year men twenty-six cents, fourth year 26 1-2 cents and fifth year men 27 1-4 cents an hour. To this was added a profit sharing feature, the men getting ten per cent of the increase in the per car hour earnings of the company. For every ten cents a car averaged per hour over $3.75 the men were to receive one cent.
The men said that the increase of jitneys there was little prospect of this additional profit. Arbitrator Shes handed down a dissenting decision.
The men objected to this sliding scale.
Umpire Jackson agreed that the arbitrators had exceeded their authority.

Traction Manager T. A. Wright would not meet the men's national officers. The strike was again declared. Page advertisements in the newspapers explained the company's fight for arbitration. November 3, strike breakers took out the cars. Riots followed. Policemen had to run for shelter, the strike breakers having fired. Sheriff's deputies, several hundred additional mounted police and Troop B, of the Pennsylvania Mounted police patrolled the system. Bloodshed and rioting continued. More special officers were brought to protect those who wanted to ride.

Labor Secretary Wilson has sent mediators, the state department has done the same, International President Mahoon of the Carmen's Union has been here, merchants have organized committees, the chamber of commerce has been active, but no progress has been made. The men demand a flat rate, agreeing to slightly less than the present scale. The company says it will exact a strict compliance with the award of July 10.
A boycott is maintained on the lines that are now open. The men claim to be ready to fight until winter.

A Year of Withycombe Is a Year of Real Activity

for traveling expenses. The result is that any executive who really gets around the state has to foot the excess bills himself.

The 1915 trips have included two journeys to San Francisco, one as a "private citizen" for the Benson Day exercise, and one in an official capacity; a voyage from Lewiston, Idaho, to the sea, when the Cello canal was opened; an automobile journey through Central Oregon and back to Medford, via Crater Lake; a journey to Baker to welcome the Liberty Bell; a score of meetings with governors and other notable travelers en route to the San Francisco exposition; trips over the Columbia River highway from Portland to The Dalles, and from Portland to Astoria; and scores of other engagements ranging from county fairs to official and semi-official meetings of every character.

During 1915 the governor visited every county in Oregon, with the exception of Coos, Curry, Tillamook, Malheur, Harney, Wheeler, Grant and Wallowa.

"If it is possible to arrange it, I intend to get into each one of these counties during the present year," said the governor.

While the mileage covered shows that the governor has been active in the field, so to speak, and has perhaps set a new record for getting in touch with the people and conditions in all parts of the state, an examination of the minute books of the board of control, the desert land board and the highway commission—the three most important bodies of which the governor is ex-officio chairman—dis-closes that he has been absent at during nine percent of the meetings during 1915. This is contrasted to the record of the executive during 1914, who was absent at 21 per cent of the meetings.

In 1914, in forty-eight meetings of the desert land board, the governor was absent twelve times; in 1915 in twenty-eight meetings, two absences are credited to the executive. With sixty-four meetings of the board of control in 1914, the governor was not present twenty-eight times; while in fifty-five meetings for 1915 the governor was away but six times.

The highway commission met thirty-times in 1914, seven of them minus the governor; while Governor Withycombe missed but two of the twenty-nine meetings in 1915. Governor Withycombe's absences for the three commissions total ten out of 112 meetings; while the absences of the former governor in 173 meetings during 1914 were forty-seven.

In addition to being "on the job" with the various boards of which he is a member, the governor has devoted much time to the various state institutions, and has been particularly active in his personal supervision of the tax operations connected with the penitentiary, and has also kept in close touch with all agricultural and livestock development associated with the state properties.

In short, his record shows that there were few men in Oregon who have maintained a harder pace than Governor Withycombe during the year just closed, and probably no state executive who has devoted himself so conscientiously and actively to his duties. Withal, the governor seems to flourish on his strenuous program, and is credited with having more "pep" even than when he was inaugurated.

"My only complaint," says the governor, "is that the days are not long enough—it actually seems as if they ought to cover thirty-six, instead of twenty-four hours, in order to give me time to do the things that are expected of me, and that I want to do." sickly complexions are urged to get a very little, but is sufficient to make Nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you kidneys. Klamath Falls people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this the same being the amount then due and delinquent for taxes for the year 1915, together with penalty, interest and costs thereon upon the real property assessed to you, of which you are the owner as appears of record, situate in said county and state, and particularly bounded and described as follows, to wit:

Southeast quarter of southwest quarter, and lot five, section twenty-two, township thirty-nine south,
