Why These Arctics Wear Longer

Top Notch Arctics won't give out at the heel first like most arctics do. They have the famous Clincher Cushion heel which lasts as long as the sole and doubles the life of the arctic.

This Redfore 4-buckle arctic has the famous non-slip sole which takes a "stranglehold" on slippery surfaces. It is made of the best quality red rubber.

Come in and let us fit you out for the stormy weather with these arctics which will wear better than any you ever had.

INDIAN LOGGING WORK IS BEGUN

RESERVATION TIMBER FOR KLAMATH MFG. CO. IS BEING LOGGED UNDER DIRECTION OF FORESTER BEDFORD

(Herald Special Service)

CHILOQUIN, Ore., Jan. 12.—Logging operations on the Klamath Indian reservation under the supervision of J. M. Bedford, deputy supervisor of forests, are progressing very nicely at the government camp north of Klamath Agency on Wood river. One million feet of logs have been decked and are ready for hauling to Wood river. They will be driven from there they will be towed across Upper Klamath Lake to Klamath Falls for delivery to the Klamath Manufacturing company. This concern has contracted for five million feet on the reservation.

It is planned to accomplish the work in two winters; one and a half to two million feet this winter and the balance next winter. New logging equipment including three large sleighs arrived recently for this work. The logging camp will be kept in operation this winter until the depth of snow prevents further work. Indian teams are used exclusively and Indian labor wherever it is found practicable.

A delightful farewell party was given Saturday night at Chiloquin by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wilson and George Sargent in honor of the latter's sister, Miss Claire Sargent, who leaves in a few days for Chicago. For the past five months Miss Sargent has been visiting with her brother, George W. Sargent, timekeeper at Indian irrigation headquarters.

The snow is now nineteen inches deep at Chiloquin. A total of twenty-nine inches of snow has fallen since January 1, amounting to a precipitation of four inches. The temperature to date for this month has ranged from 2 to 27 above zero.

TODAY'S ODDDEST STORY

United Press Service
OATMAN, Ariz., Jan. 13.—How would you like to walk 40 miles every time you took a bath? That's what the citizens of this place have to do. Either that, or pay 20 cents a gallon for water.
The mining boom is making the town grow at the rate of about 100 persons a day. The local water supply has to be teamed from Needles, Calif., 40 miles away. One enterprising citizen has a tent that brings him $250 a month. He has installed eight cots, which he rents at $1 each a night.

ASHLAND PLANS A CELEBRATION

JULY THIRD, FOURTH AND FIFTH SET ASIDE FOR REJOICING OVER SPRINGS PROJECT—INVITES KLAMATH

One of the biggest celebrations that has ever enlivened the Valley of the Rogue is to be held early in July at Ashland, according to advices just received from the Ashland Commercial Club. This will be a celebration

The Band Box Thanks the Ladies

The Band Box Millinery wishes to thank the ladies of Klamath Falls and vicinity for the liberal share of their patronage, which has enabled us to dispose of all fall and winter stock without sacrifice. Our spring opening will show the most up-to-date and novel millinery that careful selection can produce from Eastern and European houses. An exclusive line of beautiful waists always on hand. 12-31 of the completion of that city's springs project, and July 3, 4 and 5 will be red letter days in Southern Oregon's entertainment history.

Already a special train of Portlanders has been organized to make the trip. Specials will also come in from the Willamette Valley, and Klamath Falls has been asked to postpone any celebration of the natal day, and run an excursion over to the neighboring city, where mineral water flows out of the ground. Ashland has always been represented by a large delegation at every Rodeo held here.

Besides the work the Commercial Club is doing, the lodges of Ashland are taking an active part in the success of the celebration. The Elks and Shriners are especially interested, and will arrange some special stunts for the entertainment of visiting members of the two orders.
