Neigh! Neigh! Gotham Doesn't Like Horse Meat

United Press Service
NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—New Yorkers are not taking kindly to the horse meat diet the board of health recently authorized the butchers to provide them. About the only effect the horse meat move has had on the public is the revival of that good old gag about "neigh! neigh!" As revised to date it goes like this: "Can't I sell you some nice horse steak today?" Customer—"Neigh! neigh!" At which the butchers boy is expected always to laugh. Sort of a horse laugh you know. The public officials have made some serious effort to get the horse meat sales started declaring they believe it would be a good thing economically. Health Commissioner Emerson points out that horse meat is cheaper than beef and quite as nutritious; though slightly different in taste and of somewhat coarser fibre, it is as digestible as beef; that the horse is less liable to suffer from tuberculosis than is the cow and that the horse is more discriminating in its eating and drinking than is the cow. Arguments, from various sources against meat as food for human beings, that the flesh is darker, tougher and less palatable than cow meat; and that inspection to insure good meat would be difficult to establish; that young, healthy horses whose meat might be good to eat, are worth twice as much as cattle—that only crippled, ailing, aged or broken down horses are apt to be put on the food market and that, finally, the public won't overcome its prejudice against horse meat anyhow. There are some horse meat sales, but the market is exceedingly restricted and mighty few shops list the item. Dr. W. T. Hornaday of the Bronx Zoo said today that horse meat is impure and should not be eaten by human beings. Dr. Harlow Brooks said horse meat was a bully idea. He said he ate lots of it in France and liked it. Katherine Bement Davis, secretary to the State Pardons Board, said she strongly favors the horse meat idea, had eaten it in Hungary and Bohemia and liked it, though it was "a little bit tough." President Frederick Nathan of the Consumers' league said he did not like the idea. Several other prominent New Yorkers said they did not like the idea either. "About the nearest New York will ever come to indulging in horse meat," said one man, "is a flying at the race horse stakes at Sheepshead Bay; and many a man will tell you he could not even get a square meal from them."

SHASTA VIEW NOTES

Frank Anderson has lately moved on his ranch, formerly occupied by Will Sims. Sims has moved on the Elliott ranch.

The Helping Hand Society met at the home of Mrs. Miller. Quite a number were present, notwithstanding the severe weather.

Ben Daniels made a trip to Merrill one day last week. He took his father home, who had been visiting the former.

The sheepmen from the lava beds have moved their sheep into this community. Frank Zajic and Ethel Havlina were recently united in marriage by Justice of the Peace Gowen at Klamath Falls. A grand ball was given in their behalf at Main Saturday evening, January 15th.

Joe Smith, who some time ago sustained a fractured limb, is able to be up. We are glad to hear of this, and hope he may have a speedy recovery.

Hale Anderson, who attends High School as Merrill, visited home folks last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fogle, who live near Dorris, visited the family of C. M. Kirkpatrick last Saturday night.

Quite a number attended Sunday school here last Sunday. Rev. Cowley preached an interesting sermon following Sunday school.

The Shasta View Literary Society met in regular session January 15th. The following program was rendered:
Music, by the Society
Recitation Marie Zumpfe
Recitation Ethel Bennett
Recitation Mary Hunt
Duet Mesdames Bailey and Shaffer
Recitation Beth Kirkpatrick
Recitation Beulah Hunt
"Sun Flower Melody"—By Society
This part of the program was followed by a spelling bee, in which considerable interest was taken.

WOLVES SEEN NEAR NEVADA CITY HOMES

NEVADA CITY, Jan. 18.—The spectacle of wolves coming close to the residence section of the city is the latest development of the heavy storm that has prevailed in this county. While Jack Landsburg was out near his home recently he saw three large timber wolves come down out of the hills and approach as far as the dwelling of J. M. Hadley before they were frightened back into the trees. They
