Modern representatives of the same Puritan morality are now clamoring for moral laws, under the disguise of saving souls and their knowledge of souls is on a par with Cotton Mather's knowledge of witches, whom his morality caused to be burned alive for the cause of "salvation."

In Puritan times, a witch was a person who exercised freedom of thought and who loved the truth. Today these persons are called other names.

These thoughts are offered, not as a criticism of our local administrators, but to assist in discovery of the truth about the baffling and terrible crime called "regging." Yours sincerely,
