KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON SATURDAY, APRIL 8, 1916

NOT SURE OF HIS FACTS

A PECULIAR characteristic of President Wilson is the pithiness and emphasis with which he makes all his assertions. When he makes a statement of fact he puts it in a form which leaves no room for doubt as to his own certainty of its accuracy. He wants it understood that he has so thoroughly studied the subject, and so carefully informed himself as to facts that those who get the information from him need look no further. Unfortunately, he is frequently in error.

An illustration will show what is meant. The most important public utterances of the president are his messages to congress, which are, in fact, messages to the American people, for they are not only printed in the congressional record for distribution throughout the United States, but printed in every newspaper, regardless of size and politics. It would be expected, therefore, that what a president says in his message to congress would be the most carefully considered and most cautiously worded of all his utterances.

On December 8th, 1914, after the European war had been in progress for four months, President Wilson delivered his message touching on the question of preparedness. He assured congress that he intended to speak "with great plainness and directness upon this great matter." After having declared that he had carefully studied the subject, he said: "If asked, 'Are you ready to defend yourselves?' We reply, 'Most assuredly, to the utmost.'" That he was not blind to the situation which existed across the ocean was also shown by his statement: "When almost half of the world is on fire we shall be careful to make moral insurance against the spread of the conflagration very definite and certain and adequate, indeed." Answering those who had expressed contrary views, the president said: "Let there be no misconception, the country has been misinformed. We have not been negligent of national defense."

In all these assertions, President Wilson left no room for assumption that others than himself might have opinions worthy of consideration. His language was most emphatic and comprehensive. The judgment of men who had been many years in the war department, or who had served many years on military committees in the house and senate was declared to be erroneous.

This positiveness of assertion, and which was followed only a few months later by a direct reversal of his attitude without any material change in the conditions, has naturally caused the people of the country to view with distrust and to accept with great reserve any other opinions he may express or facts for which he may try to vouch for. It must be regretted that this situation should exist with reference to the president of the United States.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

By MARGARET MARON (Written for the United Press)

All waste is very wrong, indeed. I've heard these many years; yet nothing's wrong with Betty's waist; it's quite alright, my dears.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Three Be now buzzing in milady's spring bonnet are blouses and beaded bags.

The blouses are all to be baggy and the bags are all to be beady.

To be sure, beaded bags have been in hand for many seasons, but just the different placing of a bead or two makes a vast change in these 1916 model bags.

In these new bags the beads are not quite everything. Silk meets the bead half way and either the top of the bag is a puff of taffeta with a lower half of beads in vari-colored designs or stripes, or vice versa the beaded top looses out into a puff of taffeta below.

There is quite a craze for plaid effects in the bead work and in green or blue with a top of navy blue silk; or black and white check bead effect, with a black moire top, you have altogether a cute little bag of tricks.

A little round pancake of a bag in navy blue or black silk in hand-embroidered in cut steel beads in diminishing circles, like a target, with a tiny little beaded tassel dangling from the bull's eye. Such a bag could not fall to be attractive, since it is a target for all eyes.

You must waste no time in getting a waist of the times; or, in other words, you had better be rushed to get a Russian blouse. They are simply the latest word in blousings.

They are hip length and belted in at the regulation waist line a la Co-sack. A stunning one in rose and white striped handkerchief linen has collar, cuffs and a fold of white linen around the bottom. It is belted with white kid and fastens down the front with buttons of white crochet.

Another in coral, gray or old blue

Georgette crepe has collar, cuffs, band and willow taffeta. Its hip length edge is piped in navy blue taffeta as are the collar and cuffs; and its belt is a wide band of the blue. It is smocked on the shoulders and is built to slip on over the head.

Touche of color are found on almost all the new waists in piping or insets or contrasting collars and cuffs. Many show the deep, capelike collars; and Georgette crepe, crepe de chine and handkerchief linen are the chosen materials.

A renewed popularity for the comfortable and artistic smock is promised for informal hot weather wear; and it is undoubtedly this garment as one parent and the regulation blouse as the other that has made possible the birth of the new 1916 Russian blouse with characteristics of both.

So serviceable and comfortable are the new smocks and Russian blouses that although, they are all waists they cannot be all waste.

At the Pavilion Meetings

The evangelist spoke at the Pavilion last night to a somewhat increased audience of several hundred upon the subject of "Repentance." He began by defining what repentance is not. It is not being sorry for a sin because you have been caught. Repentance is no shallow thing that passes away in a short time. It is not a resolution to do better. It is not the coming to God simply to get rid of a bad habit without any intention of giving God a life's service. Repentance is the forsaking of sin and living the life of righteousness.

Some thing they do not need to repent because they have not committed great sins against society, or great specific sins. But this is a mistake. Sins of omission are sometimes as condemning as those of commission. In the mind of the evangelist, the greatest sin one can commit is to reject Jesus Christ, to turn God down. As he spoke one was reminded of Christ's answer when he was asked what is the greatest commandment, and Christ's answer was, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." But finally he sins greatest who rejects God when he has the greatest light. Condemnation is based upon the light one has as to the truth. He sighted the instance where Christ said to the Pharisees that the publicans and harlots would go into the kingdom before them, the Pharisees. The final thought was that genuine repentance shows itself in fruitage.

Tomorrow night the children's chorus will sing again in place of the regular choir, and after the song service Rev. Mathis will preach. Sunday Bible schools will be held at the various churches as usual at 10 o'clock, and at 11 Mr. Mathis will preach at the Pavilion upon the subject of the "Three Altars." In the afternoon he will speak to men only upon the subject, "A Strong Man." Sunday evening there will be a song service and sermon at 7:30.

17,000 ENGLISH WOMEN PER MONTH TAKING JOBS ONCE HELD ONLY BY MEN

United Press Service LONDON, April 8.—Nine per cent more women were employed in December, 1915, than in July, 1914, in English industry, including national munition factories, but exclusive of commercial, clerical, professional, railroad and miscellaneous government work. The estimate is the board of trade's.

Every month, it is added, 17,000 more women enter fields of work hitherto practically monopolized by men. During the eighteen months ended January 14, 1916, the labor exchange placed in employment 617,000 women and girls. This is a 47 per cent increase over the eighteen months preceding the war, which indicates that 288,850 women have taken men's places.

The development of the work also has been progressive. In the first six months of the war the exchanges found work for 153,000. In the second six months the number was 218,000. In the third six months it was 245,000.
