The question just now is: "Will Klamath Falls be represented in the Portland Rose Festival by a queen or a maid of honor?" Klamath Falls has the chance, providing something is started at once. Nominations are to be received at the Commercial Club until 6 o'clock this evening, and Monday a primary will be held to decide which young lady will be the Klamath Falls candidate. All young ladies over 18 years of age are eligible. The expenses of the queen and her maids, including the cost of their costumes, will all be borne by the Rose Festival committee. In addition, the committee will also build a special float for each locality represented by a maid of honor.

Members of Sacred Heart church and other friends of Father Wm. McMillan S. J., gathered at Moose hall Thursday night for a farewell reception, in recognition of the splendid work carried on here by the departing priest, who leaves Monday to resume his work among the Flathead Indians in Montana. Vocal numbers were rendered by Mrs. Matthew Smith and Miss Dorothy Weeks, and Father Hugh J. Marshall, the new pastor, in a short address, paid high tribute to the earnest work of Father McMillan here, telling of the profound regret felt at his departure, and also of the regret felt by the departing pastor at leaving Klamath Falls. To this, Father McMillan replied in remarks of deep feeling. Refreshments were then served, and the assemblage dispersed after each of those present bade farewell to the priest leaving after a most successful stay in charge of Sacred Heart parish.

High school students and members of the high school alumni association once more changed their minds regarding their dancing party, scheduled for last night, but postponed for two weeks. Instead, this was held last night at Houston's opera house, and the seventy-five young people in attendance spent a most merry evening. Splendid music was furnished by the Peerless orchestra. Although the dance is in no way a school activity, the proceeds are to be donated toward the high school athletic fund deficit.

Preparations are being made for the observance of Memorial Day, by Sprague Chapter Woman's Relief Corps. The ceremonies will be on a more elaborate scale than of any former year. The Corps has not made the improvements to the cemetery, which were planned last year, owing to being unable to make the necessary arrangements with the cemetery association—but hopes to do so in the immediate future. The sum of one hundred dollars which was appropriated by the city last year for this purpose is in the Corps treasury and will be held here until such time as it can be used for the beautification of the grounds. The Corps has taken quarters in the Moose hall in order to have accommodations for its increase in membership during the past year.

"Rupert of Hentzau," founded on the novel and play of that title, and a sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda," will be the Bluebird photoplay exhibited at the Orpheus theater on Sunday and Monday. Jane Gail and Henry Ainley will play the leading role in a photo-drama of surpassing interest, well acted and set in beautiful natural scenery to delight the eye.

The Vitaphone Blue Ribbon five-reel comedy showing at the Star tonight only is one that you can rely upon as being one of the best comedies you have seen. Frank Daniels, the inimitable comic opera king, will be seen in the role of "Father," and what happened to him he will show you, for words cannot tell. This story and the action is so swift that it seems hardly possible to put the story in five reels. Miss this and you miss a rare treat.
