KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON TUESDAY, APRIL 11, 1916

EVASION OF FACTS

"THE dinner pail is full and the tariff is out of it." Thus speaks the Portland Journal, a democratic organ. The Journal need not deceive itself as to the intelligence of its constituency.

The business men, the laborers, the laborers, the professional men of the Pacific Northwest went through the period of industrial depression that followed the inauguration of the democratic administration and the enactment of its tariff law, which threw American industry into competition with the underpaid labor of Europe and Asia.

With very few exceptions, the people of this section of the United States can read, and they have access to the official reports of this administration, showing the effect of removal of the protective tariff.

Removal of the protective duty put British Columbia shingles on the roofs of buildings in the Oregon country, while shingle mills that should have been employing labor in territory served by the Journal were idle.

The industrial depression throughout the entire country put an end to railroad improvements and curtailed all kinds of building, with the result that lumber mills closed down, and their former employees were fed in the soup houses of Portland, and housed in any sort of shelter that might be available. Millions of Chinese eggs came in duty free to curtail the markets of Pacific Coast farmers.

It is unkind of the Journal to assume that its readers will forget these facts. It manifests altogether too poor an opinion of their intellectual capacity.

It is true that in most parts of the country the dinner pail is now full, but readers of the Journal know exactly why it is full. They know that we had not the slightest relief from the depression brought on by the Democratic tariff law until the outbreak of the war, which cut off importations on the one hand, and gave us new and unprecedented markets for our goods on the other.

The dinner pail is full because of the European war, and for no other reason. The Journal knows it, and does not dare to print the statistics showing our balance of trade for ten months before and ten months after the outbreak of the war. Publication of those statistics would bring the blush of shame to anyone who boasts that "the dinner pail is full and the tariff is out of it."

At the Pavilion Meetings

Tonight is "Mothers' Night" at the evangelistic meetings. Every one is requested to wear a white flower, ribbon, or tie, in honor of mother. The sermon will be appropriate to the occasion.

Last night, in spite of the rain, a good sized audience greeted the evangelist to hear what he had to say about the much-talked-of amusement question. That Mr. Mathis believes in good, clean amusement has been well proven since his coming to the city, and there was a keen interest to know his arguments on the card and dance question. The gist of the sermon is as follows—

He is against cards because he is against gambling. A test has shown that nine out of ten gamblers claim their start to a social game of cards. He is against cards because they deaden spiritual life. Card playing Christians are not soul winners. It is as bad or worse for a woman to play cards for a $10 piece of cut glass as for her son to play for a $10 bill. He is against dancing because there is only one standard. The community would put a ban on ministers doing it, and any standard of morals applied to them applies to any other person. Dancing deadens Christian life, and you cannot find a soul winner among dancing Christians. He never had said, and he never would say that every woman who dances is immoral, for he did not believe that, and he wanted to be clearly understood there, but practically every immoral woman dances. He said of 500,000 fallen women, 375,000 date their downfall to the dance. He said that this town had cleaned up the booze, and now they ought to clean up the gambling and the red light. The audience applauded the speaker and in other ways showed its sympathy with the message.

Motor oil made from asphalt-base crude gives best lubrication with least carbon. Such is the testimony of motorists and experts alike. As Lieut. Bryan, U.S.N., puts it: "Oils made from the asphalt-base crudes have shown themselves to be much better adapted to motor cylinders, as far as their carbon-forming propensities are concerned, than are paraffine-base Pennsylvania oils."
