Old English Estates Can Be Bought Up For a Song

By WILBUR S. FORREST

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
 LONDON, April 25.—The aristocratic owners of England's famous country estates, comprising thousands of idle acres, today are selling their holdings because the war has pinched them financially. This is believed to mean that the idle land will be broken into small holdings and that England will become an important agricultural nation.

These grand country manors, castles and mansions on immense reserves of idle land have been famous for centuries as deer parks, shooting preserves, lands of the fox hunt, golf and fishing. Today they are a drug on the market.

The current issue of a well known British real estate magazine today carries nineteen solid pages of closely printed advertisements asking purchasers or tenants for more than 50,000 acres of sporting estates and innumerable country seats throughout England, Scotland and Wales.

Real estate experts with an eye on the future declare the large estates will, in most cases, fall of sale or lease; that they must be split into smaller tracts and sold for agricultural purposes. The fox hunt and the grouse moor will never again be so popular as they were before the war, say the experts.

Here is a sample ad of the properties now on the market:

"Historic manor house in the West on highlands. Thirty bed and dressing rooms, several reception rooms; delightful matured old grounds. Ten thousand acres of shooting. For sale or moderate rental."

This ad continues to explain that one season's shooting on the game preserves has been 7,000 pheasants, 500 partridges, 150 hares, 1,500 rabbits and many woodcock, duck and snipe.

Any person in America who has garnered wealth making munitions, or otherwise, could lease a real castle on a long time contract at very modern terms.

This castle, its ad declares, is charmingly located on a pretty loch, and is surrounded by a vast sporting estate of 14,000 acres, 11,000 of which consists of one of the best grouse moors in Scotland. The best single bag of grouse thus far has been 750 brace. There also is excellent salmon fishing and golf links.

The ad makes no mention of agriculture.

With hundreds of thousands of men released from the army after demobilization, Britain must find a place for them. Those who have lived in the open air will not return to desks in stuffy offices and indoor civilian occupations of the past. They will insist on continued open air, according to those who are now making a study of the situation.

What were grouse moors and hunting estates of the pre-war period most probably will be the agricultural homes in the post-war era of thousands of the men who have carried the guns.

That England, Scotland and Wales will be much nearer the soil long before the next five years is over is the firm and widespread conviction in England.

FORD MAY FINANCE NEW SUBSTITUTE FOR GASOLINE

NEW YORK, April 25.—Henry Ford announced here that if Louis Enright's discovery of a fluid for motive power fuel measured up to the inventor's claims, he would buy the formula outright.

He has conferred with Enright at Farmingdale, Long Island, but said no test was made of the mixture of a green powder and water, which Enright claims may be used as a substitute for gasoline. Mr. Ford added, however, that after talking with Enright that he was satisfied that the man knew what he was about.

F. M. PRIEST, Agent.

Dearest Public:

Were you ever a regular kid, and got licked in the morning for not washing your feet when you went to bed the night before?

Did you ever get mother's kiss and your dinner pail and be aimed for school and never get there, but wander to the hills and listen to the humming of the bees and watch the squirrels, and gather wild flowers, and fish, and have some other kid sell them and "whack" the money?

Gee, but wasn't it good to be alive, to feel the sunshine, and hear the songs of the birds, to smell the perfume of the flowers, and have the itch and warts, and not care if your hair was in or out, but just waller around and be content with the world.

Most generally these long-faced, serious guys, that can't smile, have plucked a lemon from the peach orchard, or are so eager for the filthy lucre or are framing to place the harpoon in you so deep that you will not try to take it out.

Once I was that guy, and it has not all escaped from me yet; that's why I am not serious enough for some folks.

Seriousness is not a criterion of the massive intellect; it should be a signal for you to put on your armor if you don't want to be stung. I was going to build a platform to stand on for this county commissioner job, but I am not now, as I would have to tell the biggest bunch of damdest lies that you ever heard, but that is not my forte. I stand for good roads, and we have got to have them, as they are our best asset.

Business is business with me, and it's going to be the same if I am elected to help do business for Klamath county.

This is my home; I live in Klamath Falls, and if you are a republican I want your support; that is, if I am serious enough for you. I am paying my debts, and I guess that's about as good as these serious, self-anointed folks are doing.

Hurry to my aid.
