DIVORCE EVIL IS THEME OF PRIEST

MARITAL SEPARATIONS A MENACE TO THE NATION AND ARE WORSE THAN LIQUOR EVIL, SAYS FATHER O'REILLY

Since the women have gained in many states the right to vote and have waged a successful war against the liquor evil, they should band together for a still greater and much more vital reform, a reform of the divorce laws, said Father P. J. O'Reilly, S. J., in the course of his lecture at Sacred Heart church last night on "Christian Marriage." These lectures are given at 7:30 every night this week, and all are invited.

He scouted the idea that the Redeemer declared that in case of conjugal infidelity, it was lawful to cast aside a marital partner and wed another, holding that if this were so, the Savior would utterly defeat the benign purposes of His teachings and sufferings by placing a premium upon the commission of such a foul offense. Said Father O'Reilly: "To restore woman to her rightful place in the plan of the Creator, to make man acknowledge and treat her with a personal dignity as perfect as his own was part of the mission of the Redeemer. To this end He restored marriage to its pristine type, as it was in the beginning. He revealed it with its two essential characteristics of unity and indissolubility, and prohibited as subversive of it divorce and polygamy. "He did more. He sanctified it by a sacrament. Sanctifying matrimony, He sanctified the family; and sanctifying the family, He sanctified society. Society rested on the family, the family rested upon matrimony; and hence, when the matrimonial contract was elevated to the dignity of a sacrament, society was sanctified in its foundation and its center. The result was Christendom, and in Christendom, the dignity of woman. "Woman is more than man the victim of the degradation that divorce entails. Man can withdraw from conjugal society with all the advantages of strength and authority in order to engage in a new matrimonial alliance; woman cannot withdraw from it with all her dignity. She leaves behind her best possessions, her maiden beauty and charms of her youth, and only recovers with difficulty the fortune she has brought. Who shall seek this withered plant whose freshness is gone, and who is cast out from the family she has borne, when she can no longer hope to found another? "The stability of the home is the palladium of national patriotism, the foundation of national greatness, the unit of national strength; and for the perfect living of its life, must rest upon foundations erected by the hands of God. He is the keystone of the arch. If it be struck out, the whole fabric of Christian society throughout the world must be loosened to its base."
