Land Grant Bill Is Now Ready for Conferences

Now that the Oregon & California land grant bill, as amended to give Oregon, the land grant counties, and the seaport districts 90 per cent of all proceeds from timber and land sales, passed the senate yesterday, it will be referred to a conference committee from the two houses to compromise the differences between the house and senate bills.

Chairman Ferris of the house committee is of the opinion the bill must become a law before June 9, and will co-operate with Senator Chamberlain in hurrying final action.

There is little or no prospect that the house will agree to all the senate amendments in their present form.

In lieu of the house plan of dividing the proceeds from the grant lands, the senate amendment provides that 10 per cent shall go to federal treasury, 10 per cent shall go to the reclamation fund for exclusive use on government irrigation projects in Oregon.

"Thirty per cent of the funds arising from sales of land and timber in Multnomah, Tillamook, Lane, Douglas and Coos counties shall be paid to those counties for roads and bridges, and 20 per cent thereof shall be paid to the respective port districts within the counties named for reducing the bonded indebtedness of those districts and for general harbor improvements, and where there is more than one port district in any county, the county court shall determine what portion of the fund shall be credited to the several port districts."

The amendment further provides that35 per cent of the proceeds in the other counties shall be paid to those counties for roads and highways, and the entire balance remaining in the land grant fund shall be paid into the state school fund. This means that the five counties in which the port districts lie will receive 50 per cent of the receipts in those counties; the other counties without port districts will get 35 per cent, and the state school fund will get, in the aggregate, a little more than 40 per cent of the total receipts.

The bill as reported also changes the plan of selling the timber. The senate bill vests the sale of timber exclusively in the hands of the secretary of the interior, cutting out the joint authority conferred by the house on the secretary of agriculture, and requires that all timber shall be sold for cash, and under competitive bids only. A separate bid is required for the timber on each 40-acre subdivision, but a purchaser can bid on as many 40-acre tracts as he likes.

Purchasers of timber will receive a patent for the same. The timber becomes taxable on sale.

Another new provision stipulates that "timber thus purchased may be cut and removed at any time within the discretion of the purchaser, and until it shall be removed the land upon which it stands shall be subject to the possession and control of the owner of the timber," but the purchaser can only use the land for purposes of protecting, cutting and removing the timber. Senator Chamberlain anticipates opposition to the timber sale amendment from the conservationists of the senate.

Another senate amendment gives preference right of entry to settlers who have resided on grant land since December 1, 1915, instead of since December 1, 1916, as provided in the house bill.

Just before passage of the bill by the senate yesterday, Senator Borah succeeded in securing an amendment lowering the time of residence required on a claim from six to three years.

Another amendment cuts out the house provision authorizing withdrawal of power sites in the land grant, but leaves the authority for disposing of that under whatever water power laws may be in force when they are applied for..

TENT LIFE IN TRAINING CAMPS TO MAKE MORE CAPABLE WOMEN

The woman's training camp idea, rapidly gaining popularity in the United States, received new impetus this week. At the woman's training camp just opened in Washington, where are gathered women from all over the country, Mrs. George Dewey, Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, Mrs. F. F. Fletcher and Mrs. Hugh L. Scott, wife of General Scott now conferring with the Mexicans, were prominent participants.

The president of the United States was present on the opening day, and addressed the camp. On this occasion Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Barnett and Mrs. Fletcher, representing the army, marine corps and navy, respectively, "manned" the lanyards and hauled the Stars and Stripes to the top of the flagstaff.

The physical side of the training camp idea is strongly emphasized in the national capital camp. Susanna Cocroft, the noted health expert of Chicago, an enthusiastic supporter of the camp idea, was one of the prominent women invited to talk to the "dimpled rookies."

"I believe in training camps for women," she said, "not because I believe that these will be put to the actual test of war. I hope that this war in Europe will teach us a lesson and that we will never have another. But because I believe every mother's son and daughter will be a better man and a better woman if they will give their time and thought and energy for a certain period of their lives, be it six months or a year, to something outside of their personal interest.

"We of America, in our smug self-complacency, have become too self-centered—purblind to other than self-interest. The consecration of devoting a definite part of our thought and life and energy to the nation would result in that nation's good, through the good to the individual citizen.

"The self-sacrifice, the surmounting of hardships, the learning to subdue self-will by putting oneself under discipline and guidance of others, the ability to see the good of the many as above the good of the one, means to build character. It means the making of men and women.

"To live in tents means to appreciate the value of fresh air. The physical training means the surmounting of minor ailments; it means a recognition of physical conquests over the physical self; it means better health, strength and vitality, and the power of resistance. All of these works for the greater good to the individual and to the nation. I should like to see a certain portion of every life given to active work, not idleness, in camp life under direct and definite training. Such training, such consecration, would make us realize broader issues; would awaken us to our own and our nation's responsibilities. Life, as we came from these camps, would take on a different aspect, greater freedom and greater enjoyment. We talk much of self development through unselfishness, but we do not put our ideas into actual practice."

Real Cold in South

According to a letter received from Charles N. Meyer, who is sojourning in the Monterey country, the potatoes growing between San Francisco and Monterey were all frozen, and the farmers there are replanting beans and other garden crops. He says hay is very short, some of the wheat crop was destroyed, while in the Santa Clara valley, young fruit trees were nipped by frost, and smudges are out every night in an effort to save part of the fruit.

JUMP FROM BED IN MORNING AND DRINK HOT WATER

Open sluices of system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter, says authority.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank each morning before breakfast, keeps us looking and feeling fit.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of peope who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, which will cost but little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.
