

TEDDY NAMED, BUT MAY NOT OPPOSE HUGHES IN FALL

BIG CHANCE FOR A ONE-MAN FUSION

Attitude of Roosevelt, Who Was Nominated as Presidential Candidate Today by Progressives Indicates That He May Throw Over Chance for Personal Glory in Interests of Bigger, Better Nation

United Press Service
CHICAGO, June 10.—Roosevelt was nominated by acclamation as presidential candidate by the progressives. Roosevelt refuses to accept the nomination at this time, and sent the following telegram to the convention: "I cannot accept at this time. I don't know the republican candidate's attitude toward vital questions of the day, and therefore, if you desire an immediate decision, I must decline the nomination."

The progressives nominated Captain John M. Parker of Louisiana as vice president, also by acclamation. A resolution empowering the national committee to fill any vacancy on the ticket, in the event of Roosevelt declining to run, was adopted before the sine die adjournment. Roosevelt's nomination by acclamation followed shortly after Roosevelt sent the convention a telegram urging a compromise on Lodge. Bainbridge Colby of New Jersey nominated Roosevelt, and Governor Johnson seconded it. Chairman Robins then suspended the rules, and the nomination was made and the result announced within one minute.

A wild demonstration resulted, the delegates cheering and parading. Chairman Perkins of the progressive national committee worked until the last minute for a compromise. Roosevelt's nomination was announced at 12:33, or two minutes after the republicans nominated Hughes.

camp on the 1st and reports it possible to go that far with a machine. On the morning of the 5th he will commence the work of clearing and repairing the road to the Rogue river entrance of the park, seven miles from headquarters. The season will be late, and to hasten matters Mr. Parkhurst will visit the park about the middle of the month with a crew of men who will try to open the roads so that a party of tourists, due to arrive at the lodge on the 29th, may be taken proper care of. Mrs. Momyer has joined her husband at headquarters, where he has been on duty since the first of February. Mr. Steel visited the park two months ago, at which time the snow was eleven feet deep, and expects to formulate his plans for the season.—Ashland Tidings.

HUGHES RESIGNS AND WIRES ACCEPTANCE

United Press Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—Charles Evans Hughes today resigned as associate justice of the supreme court. His resignation was accepted by President Wilson.

Hughes then sent Chairman Harding of the republican national convention a telegram stating that he did not desire the nomination and preferred to remain on the bench, "but at this critical time in our nation's history, I realize it is your right to summon and my paramount duty is to respond."

In an endorsement of the republican platform, Hughes said he favors the maintenance of American rights on land and sea. He branded the administration's Mexican policy as vacillating, and charged the administration with subordinating the high responsibility of foreign diplomatic intercourse to partisan requirements, "presenting to the world a humiliating spectacle."

Hughes declared for undivided Americanism, preparedness in every branch of the army and navy, and he condemned the administration for "inexcusable neglect in this matter." He advocates economical preparedness in foreign trade expansion.

Regarding the Mexican situation, Hughes writes: "We interfered there without consistency, and while we were seeking to dictate where we were utterly unconcerned, we failed utterly to appreciate and discharge our plain duty to our citizens."

In regard to diplomatic intercourse, he says: "Belated efforts have not availed in the restoration of the prestige and influence of our nation so unfortunately sacrificed. Brave words have been used, but they have been stripped of their force by indecision."

"I desire to see diplomacy restored to its rightful standard, to have no more sacrifices of national interests to partisan expediency; to maintain our rights under international law, insisting upon all neutral rights, and fully performing our international obligations, and, by clear correctness, in justice to our position, dignify our place among nations."

"I stand for Americanism," said he, "knowing no ulterior purposes, a patriotism single and complete. We have one country, and undivided allegiance is intolerable."

Hughes advocated a thorough industrial and economic preparedness as well as a war preparedness.

"In view of our abiding ideals, there is no danger of militarism in this country," said the statement. "We demand adequate provision for national defense. We must have the strength of self respect in our demands, the strength of an efficient nation, ready to meet any emergency."

The justice says the nation must provide for an enduring prosperity basis by an intelligent use of congressional powers. Concluding, he sincerely hopes:

"That all differences will be forgotten, and that we will have united effort in a patriotic realization of our national need and opportunity."

HUGHES NAMED AS PRESIDENT; CHAS. FAIRBANKS VICE

FAIRBANKS MAY NOT ACCEPT THE PLACE

Third Ballot Results in Nomination of Justice as Presidential Candidate, and Congratulatory Notification is Sent to Washington by the Convention's Chairman—Berkett Second for Vice President

United Press Service
CHICAGO, June 10.—At 12:33 the republicans nominated Charles E. Hughes as the republican candidate for the presidency. This was on the third ballot, and the official count showed: Hughes, 94 1/2; Roosevelt, 13 1/2; Weeks, 3; LaFollette, 2; DuPont, 6; Lodge, 7.

Hughes' selection followed Roosevelt's final attempt to secure Lodge as a compromise candidate. Weeks, Sherman, Burton, DuPont, Cummins, Root and Fairbanks all withdrew. Oregon, Nevada and California voted solidly for Hughes.

Chairman Harding wired Hughes: "With deliberation and enthusiasm, which under the condition could not be any more complimentary, with unanimity never exceeded, you have been nominated by the republicans of the nation as their candidate for president. Voicing the sentiment of the convention, I congratulate you and the country upon the convention's outcome."

Hughes' nomination was made unanimous. The convention applauded Roosevelt's telegram for a reunion of the party.

After the nomination, the delegates paraded the aisles and wild demonstration took place.

John Wanamaker nominated Charles K. Fairbanks as vice president at 1:22. The vote was:

Fairbanks, 83; Burkett of Nebraska, 108; Webster, 2; Burton, 1; Borah, 2.

Upon motion of the Ohio delegation, the nomination was made unanimous.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 10.—Fairbanks stated today that he is not sure whether he will accept the vice presidential nomination.

If someone could take station above the lobby of Congress hotel, here is about the noise he would hear: "Burr—burr—woosh—hooray for Teddy. It can't be done—whointhefuck—had eleven years him already so—we want Teddy—Fairbanks? Sure; wear a Root button? Burr—boom—CRASH—ouch—and I says to Crass"—and so on ad infinitum.

Roosevelt Endeavored to Compromise on Lodge

CHICAGO, June 10.—Colonel Roosevelt, in an effort to bring about harmony between the two conventions, sent a telegram to both today, urging a compromise upon Henry Cabot Lodge. Neither convention would give any serious consideration to this at all.

"I am a progressive; Lodge isn't," said Johnson of California. "Lodge does not represent a single part of the progressive party's faith. He will never do."

"Why didn't the Colonel suggest Fenrose?" asked Gifford Pinchot. "He would be just as acceptable."

The telegram was received with hoots by the progressive convention. "I understand you had your last conference today with the republican conference, but that your committee is still unsettled. For months I have thought over this matter, and tried to find a common standing ground. Can't Rats are the most expensive animal which man maintains.

It is estimated that the average manure pile will breed 900,000 flies per ton.

Anse Cornell will not be here for tomorrow's game with the Orland team. Big Dick Nelson arrives tonight, however, and he will go in at second tomorrow, Greenwood moving over to short position.

Bigbee says he is as fit as a fiddle for the game, and the pep the other players have been showing in nightly practice proves the Klamath Falls contingent to be in perfect shape. Word from Orland indicates that they have need of being tip-top, as the visiting team has an awful record of victories, and comes to Klamath Falls with the intention of effectually breaking up Klamath's championship aspirations.

Bly Stockmen Organize to Combat Ground Squirrels

Because of the unusual numbers of ground squirrels this year, threatening the rich meadows where Bly stockmen pasture their horses and cattle, a movement was launched at Bly yesterday to wage a systematic war upon these animals. This promises to do much toward the elimination of the squirrels, and later on eradicate coyotes and jackrabbits.

County Agriculturist H. Roland Olafson went to Bly yesterday, where a meeting was held, at which the Bly Stockmen's Club was formed. Officers elected were: Frank Obenshain, president; A. Lundy, vice president; A. D. Hamaker, secretary-treasurer and poison mixer. Olafson talked of rodent control methods with those attending the meeting, and he mixed a quantity of poison to be used. He states that the squirrels are to be seen by the thousand in the meadows around Bly, and that they are thicker there than they have ever been.

Later on, when the squirrels have been successfully thinned out, the club will take up the matter of jack rabbit extermination. Coyotes will also be given attention then.

According to Bly people, there is still rabies in that section. Cattle die frequently from the dread malady, and there are still coyotes around. Bly stockmen say the rabies menace is far from ended, and they urge the continuance of the extra bounty by the county court for quite a while longer.
