COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

DARKENS BEAUTIFULLY AND RESTORES ITS NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTRE AT ONCE

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the sage tea and sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application of two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

A SET-BACK FOR WILSON

THE recent primaries in Texas furnish anything but cheerful reading for administration supporters. Five members of congress who were seeking renomination and trying to ride to victory on the president's coat tails, were defeated, and the most pronounced critic of the administration in Texas—ex-Governor Colquitt—had a long lead on his rivals for the nomination for the United States senate.

In December, 1914, while he was still governor, and before the Mexican trouble had reached anything like its recent acute stage, Mr. Colquitt expressed his opinion of the Wilson administration, and in writing, "The Wilson administration," he wrote, has been the greatest failure in the history of the presidency. Its foreign policy has been imbecile. Its repeal of the Panama canal tolls exemption in violation of the party's national platform was another weak surrender to England. The Wilson-Bryan management of the Mexican affair has been an egregious failure. They landed an American army in Vera Cruz to force Huerta to salute the flag, and have brought it back without getting the salute. What did it accomplish? It set all Mexico aflame against the Americans, not only in Mexico, but in Texas. It brought on a reign of terror all along the Texas border. Wilson and Bryan have stood by encouraging one gang of bandits after another, while people were being butchered all over Mexico."

Nor did the governor confine his comments to the Mexican problem. "The administration," he wrote, "are bare-faced fakes so far as protecting the people from trust oppression is concerned. I am fully convinced the national election of 1916 will end the democratic regime."

Such language as this made Colquitt persona non grata to the administration, to put it mildly; and in the primary all that the president could do, and all that his numerous cabinet officers and other prime favorites from Texas could do, was done to beat the timorous ex-governor. The administration's first favorite was Congressman Bob Henry, but when it became evident that he was lagging in the race the White House changed its mind with usual facility, and transferred its affections and its support to Senator Culberson. Nevertheless, Colquitt leads Culberson by more than 20,000, and Henry is a bad third.

In addition, five democratic representatives who bore the distinction of being fair-haired boys at the White House, found themselves unable to get across for another term.

The result is not without its effect on Capitol Hill. Up there many a congressman who was planning to go back home and ask for another term on the ground that he had "stood by the president," is now wondering if he would be better off if he could find another slogan.

Italian People Respond to Calls of Great War

Fight Bravely in Face of Disheartening Military Maneuvers--Women With Fervor Take Places of Men at the Battle Front.

By JOHN J. HEARLEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

ROME, July 4.—(By mail)—The manner in which the people of Italy celebrated the first anniversary of the war recently offers a best impression of Italy's spirit. The event was everywhere celebrated with splendid shows of patriotic enthusiasm. The capital and other Italian cities made holidays to observe the occasion most fittingly. The Roman Corso staged a shortening, and a great procession of almost 200,000 people. The populace, the military and governmental and civic officialdom took part. Flag-bearing women and children mixed with the men and boys in the long march from the Piazza del Popolo to the Piazza Venezia. Broken veterans of 1870 in their tattered but treasured Garibaldian uniforms, toiled along with the marchers. Countless bands, all really musical, played the stirring martial music of Italy and her allies. The buildings, which aisled the route, were gay with the banners of England and France and the Italian tri-color.

The moment of the celebration made it the more remarkably significant. The Austrians had just begun their fierce offensive in the Trentino. They had even been successful in their initial movements. Their greater strength in cannon and the favoring topography of the battleground had been responsible. Rome, like the rest of Italy, was full of wild and generally exaggerated rumors. The gossip, usually calculated to dishearten a people, was current. Stories of enemy advances and alleged traitors in Italy's own camp, of alleged captures or annihilations of important generals and regiments, were on many tongues. Nothing, however, could dispirit the courageous people.

"Temporary reverses" only hardened their determination to win, and whipped their pride to greater efforts. Therefore they celebrated the anniversary by flinging into the face of the enemy not a decreasing, but an increasing enthusiasm for war. Much credit is due the country's women of the people. They responded nobly to the general call for self-sacrifice. Girls replaced the male conductors on the street cars and the male sweepers of the streets. In great measure the fields began to be tilled and the crops gathered by women. Other feminine substitutes, permitting able-bodied men to train for war, were employed. Even society gave up its money and its pleasures. Red Cross hospitals and war relief stations were established, and volunteer workers gathered by the thousands. Italian womanhood, which for years had been crying for industrial recognition, at last was recognized. Ardent suffragettes rejoiced and stored away arguments for future use. The "civil organization" included an entire system of organized activities. Girls who formerly frittered away their time on teas and parties, were impelled to patriotic pursuits. Others who had been too closely sheltered by old-fashioned parental care, followed their example. The poorer classes rivaled both in their devotion to duty. Italian maidenhood abandoned its lazy, dreamlike existence for a life of feverish activity.

Quickly but carefully trained nurses tended the wounded warriors at the town and city hospitals. Some of these were private villas donated to the Red Cross or the government by private philanthropies of individuals. Others were seminaries for priests, loaned by the pope. Educational and food centers for the relief of the families of soldiers were opened. All kinds of assistance was given to the needy families of men at the front. Special care of the children of the fighters and women about to become mothers was exercised. Employment was found for those who needed it. The home manufacture of military clothing was encouraged and aided.

Princess Doria offered a large part of her palace for use as a laboratory. Princess Alys Borghese established an economical kitchen in her private property, and took charge of it. So many as 122,000 meals have been served there in a single month.

Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, wife of the American ambassador to Italy, co-operated in these wartime works of mercy. Other residents of the American colony in the Italian kingdom lent willing hands. Many have sought the an balance in the very field of battle. Some temporarily have become Sisters of Mercy to facilitate the step. Others signed official documents, which have often become their death warrants. They were compelled to swear that they would be willing to die for the sake of duty and possibly be buried in "a soldier's unmarked grave." In no wise could the government be responsible for their patriotic martyrdom. In countless cases heroic nurses have given of their flesh and blood to save the wounded. Unflinchingly they have invited and undergone serious grafting operations.

Queen Helena has been the ruling spirit of all these activities. She generally has inspired and directed everything. She has had the ready assistance of the Queen Mother Marguerita. Both have labored unceasingly from the war's start for "Fair Italy's cause." Even now they continue to make their rounds to the Roman hospitals and hospitals in the vicinity almost daily. Everywhere they leave the sunshine of cheer and encouragement in their wake.

The king at the front and the royal family at home probably, more than anything else, have preserved the splendid morals of the Italian people.
