FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

DRUGGIST SAYS LADIES ARE USING RECIPE OF SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre, and gives it an appearance of abundance. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

TARIFF COMMISSION A PRETENSE

ARE the democrats on the square with the tariff commission proposal incorporated in their new revenue bill? All their previous actions would indicate that they were not. If the democrats sincerely favored a tariff commission they need not have legislated out of existence the non-partisan tariff board started under the preceding republican administration. If the old tariff board did not suit them, the democrats could easily have reconstructed it when they enacted their Underwood tariff law. Yet, they not only did nothing of the kind, but they continued to discountenance and discredit the idea of tariff making by advice of non-partisan experts until now, when they suddenly reverse in the belief that they can make political capital by pretending to favor the tariff commission plan.

That it is all mere pretense we now have the proof in the boost given the new revenue measure in Mr. Bryan's Commencement over his name:

"The tariff commission," he says, "please a certain element and does no harm. Its tendency is to postpone a change in rates and that is at present desirable."

Mr. Bryan here lets the cat out of the bag, for, if "it pleases a certain element and does no harm," it is intended to do no good. Its purpose is, as he confesses, merely to provide an excuse for delay and to fool the people into thinking that they are to have scientific tariff revision from the democrats. No fairly informed person can be convinced that a tariff that will build up American industries in all parts of the country is attainable through a political party wholly sectional in its control and interests, as is the South-ridden democratic party. The only way to get an effective tariff commission is by restoring the republicans to power.

The Flag and the Man

Temporary Reverses Expected by British

By JOHN BUCHAN (England's foremost writer on military affairs. Written for the United Press)

LONDON, Aug. 7. (By mail)—When the bombardment ceased on the morning of July 1st, and the allied troops left their trenches in the big push on a twenty-five mile front, they did not expect an even, steady advance. A rigid line of German fortifications stretches from Nieport to the Aps. There are no gaps. The defense has its first position, consisting of several trench lines; an intermediate position, and a second and final position some way back, of the same type as the first. The labors of eighteen months have made each position a miracle of human ingenuity—a labyrinth of trenches and a subterranean city of dug-outs. No such front can be broken at the first attempt. The path of wisdom is to attack on a broad front and take the thing by steady stages—to capture one position at a time, and to attack with infantry only when the guns have done their work. In the area of attack, of which Albert is the point of division, the Germans on the north were prepared and the high plateau over which their lines ran was a formidable obstacle to any advance. In the southern part the ground was easier, the enemy weaker, and a real surprise was achieved.

The British objective in the north, the enemy's first position, except at one or two points, was not attained. Villages were blotted out, and miles of country reduced to the appearance of a plowed field by the allied bombardment, but the German guns, well hidden behind ridges, were intact, and before the hour came for the British to cross their parapets they opened a counter bombardment on the British first line. That line was largely destroyed but the British infantry, under a devastating artillery fire, advanced steadily across No Man's land between the lines.

Then the German first trenches awoke. Their occupants had retreated to the deepest dug-outs, sometimes fifty feet below the ground. They now appeared and manned their front lines, firing with machine guns and automatic rifles. Both sides showed the most conspicuous gallantry. The attack, as a whole, was broken up before it reached the German firing line. Whole battalions disappeared as fighting units. By the evening of the first day the enemy's position in the northern section was unshaken.

It was different in the south. There the allies had the benefit of a real surprise. The German reply to their bombardment was feeble. In some places the initial bombardment seemed to have destroyed resistance, and the attack advanced with scarcely a casualty across trenches filled with German dead. In a few hours the immediate objective was completely attained. All the German first position was carried on a front of more than twelve miles. One French regiment had only two wounded, and the casualties of one whole corps were under 800. The German losses were very high. Crossing the captured ground on the following day one walked among piles of German dead.

The first stage of the battle was beyond a doubt a great allied success. The objective was completely attained on an ample front, and the way prepared for the stroke against the final German position. Without the sacrifice in the north the success of the British right wing and the French would have been impossible.

We are only looking at the beginning of the greatest battle in history. It will be a slow and costly fight, for Germany knows it is her last stand. The allies will pursue their plan soberly and methodically, with no attempt at blind rushes or wild ventures. The German man-power is shrinking low. They have been compelled to send divisions from Verdun to help Hindenburg against Russia, and in providing reserves for the present battle they are driven to scrape up battalions from every part of their western front. Reserves obtained in this way, men already wearied with much fighting, must inevitably be a frail reed to lean upon. One battalion hurried up from the south was captured by the British an hour or two after it had detained. A French officer was asked about the capture of guns. He replied: "We do not want guns. Krupp can manufacture them faster than we can take them. But Krupp cannot manufacture men."

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

FLUSH YOUR KIDNEYS OCCASIONALLY IF YOU EAT MEAT REGULARLY

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders. Jad Salts is inexpensive, and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.
