AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR TURNS GRAY, FADED HAIR DARK AND GLOSSY

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy, and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 16, 1916

THE SOLDIER VOTE

SENATOR JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS of Mississippi made a characteristic contribution to the debate on the army bill. He made a point of order and thus killed an amendment which would have given the guardsmen whom Wilson has sent to the border the right to vote in the November election.

His excuse was that the peculiar election laws of Mississippi, which assure to him his seat in the senate might be infringed. His real reason was that among the guardsmen who are doing duty down in Texas are some colored troops, to whom Mr. Williams would deny the right to vote anywhere, at any time and under any circumstances. And in order to exercise his prejudice in this regard he was ready to deny to some 70,000 or 80,000 white troops their right to vote, also.

This probably does not worry Senator excessively—for those guardsmen all come from the North, and the great bulk of them, presumably, are republicans in politics. And, in point of fact, Mississippi is not at all interested in this matter of the guardsmen voting, anyway. Of the thousands of men who have been called away from their pursuits to help bolster up the tottering Mexican policy of the administration, only 1,300 hail from the state of Mississippi, and even these are not on the border rendering that service which Wilson says is such an honor, but they are comfortably quartered in a concentration camp at home.

And even if they were in Texas, it would make no difference to the vote in Mississippi. That state, in 1914, cast less than 55,000 votes—and of these only a few more than 4,000 were republican; because the election laws of Mississippi, which Senator Williams is so valorous to preserve, are drawn so as to prevent the republicans of the state from exercising the suffrage.

And yet, casting only 55,000 votes and mobilizing, though not contributing, only 1,300 guardsmen, the state of Mississippi is represented in congress by eight representatives and has ten votes in the electoral college. The state of New Hampshire—which also mobilized—and sent—1,300 guardsmen—casts about 90,000 votes and has only two members of the house of representatives and only four votes in the electoral college. Nevertheless, not content with the advantage which this gives to him and to his party, Senator Williams of Mississippi would keep these New Hampshire guardsmen from voting.

England Can't Analyze Middle West Sentiment

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

MERCEDES, Tex., Aug. 16.—The Middle West. There's a name that sticks in the craw of British statesmen. All the rest of America the Britishers can analyze when they attempt to measure the pro or anti ally leanings of Americans. The Middle West stumps them. It isn't anti-ally, but it isn't anti-German, they say. What is it, then?

I have had this question asked me by such leading Englishmen as Sir William Tirrell and St. Loe Strachey, editor of The Spectator. An American in Europe for two years during the war couldn't answer the question. Here in Mercedes in the heart of the military district, where Middle West regiments of militia abound, you shortly discover why the Middle West has not taken sides in the European war. "So you were in the war in Europe?" a fleshy officer asks you. You'll find his type throughout the German army, also his broken English. "What side were you on?"

"Both sides," you say, and he smiles. His name is F. E. Resche, and as brigade commander of the three Minnesota regiments he has some 2,500 American soldiers under him.

"Look at his face and see if he doesn't look like an Englishman."

NO POLITICIANS ON COMMISSION

United Press Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16.—In naming the forthcoming tariff commission, the president, it is known today, is determined to get entirely out of a political atmosphere. The chances of any aspirant who is recommended by a politician will go glimmering.

President Wilson is said to have a constitutional aversion to appointing a man to a job when the man is recommended by a politician. The reason is that almost any senator or congressman will recommend a man if he comes from his district. Frequently the candidate may be personally unknown to the solon. He comes in for the regular form O. K., many times a rubber stamp affair that never comes to the congressman's attention at all. While the president was wrestling with the farm loan board he received several hundred recommendations. One day a group of congressmen came to the White House to recommend a certain man. Not one of them knew the man's full name or anything about him. One of the group desired him, and the rest were helping boost.

A senator was asked following a conference with the president if he at any time had added to the names on the prospective list of farm board experts. "Why, yea," the senator replied, "I believe I did recommend someone. It was several days ago, and I really paid no attention to it. I don't even remember the man's name, but he was from my district, I'm sure."

Examples of this kind are found in the filling of supreme court and cabinet vacancies, too. A hundred lawyers were recommended by political advisors for the place now occupied by Justice Brandies.

says Colonel H. V. Eva of the Second Minnesota regiment, into whose tent Resche has just come. "I was born in England, and I know an English face when I see one," continues the colonel.

Resche laughs heartily. "Come on, come on," he says, in his broken English to the colonel, who is his inferior. "Didn't you promise me you'd ride to town with me?" So the man who was born in England and the man who was born in Germany, both soldiers in Uncle Sam's army, ride away together in an automobile, laughing. A British statesman puzzling over the Middle West would have broken his thinking machine at the very sight.

When Private C. H. Stinger of Lexington, Nebraska, was drowned a few days ago, Colonel A. Eberby of the Fourth Nebraska found a diver from the British army in his regiment who volunteered to seek the body.

Kuan Zoo Lee of Korea and Kearney, Nebraska, is a member of company L, Fourth Nebraska. Omaha and Hastings companies have several Greeks on their rosters. Such men are likely to add to the neutrality of the Middle West.

In the Fourth Nebraska also is Winfield Haldt, who was on the Carib, sunk by a mine in the North Sea, when he and the crew, with the exception of three killed by the explosions, were picked up by the Germans and later released. He's a neutral type.

The First North Dakotas include large numbers of Scandinavians, and Colonel J. H. Frayne is said to be able to give orders in the Scandinavian tongue when necessary. Two hundred and eighty Quaker cavalrymen from Iowa add a further mixture to the mixed hue of the Middle West. An English statesman in Texas would shortly find an answer to his question as to why the Middle West is neutral.
