Moving Pictures

In presenting to the American public Nance O'Neill in "The Witch," William Fox believes that he is giving to the screen one of the greatest productions yet filmed by his vast organization. The part of Zora, as played by Miss O'Neill in "The Witch" is the part whereby she made famous Sardou's remarkable emotional play "The Sorceress." Naturally, to be cast in a character so long and so wonderfully played by her, makes this picture of even greater importance than it would be under different conditions. To this remarkable production of "The Sorceress" will be added all of the unusual situations and surroundings that it is possible to get into a picture and so impossible to get on the real stage. Mr. Frank Powell, director, spared no time nor expense in order to turn out the most finished production possible on the screen. Villages were built, forests were blown up with dynamite, great battle scenes were put on at an unlimited expense, and months were consumed in rehearsals and filming the various scenes. This production at the Star tonight.

Midland Farmers Visit.

Henry Anderson and James Jory, farmers of the Midland district, bought supplies of local merchants today.

AMERICAN LADY CORSETS

SEASON 1916-17

Again American Lady Corsets are presented—this season, as usual fresh with new ideas to make them the leaders in design—buy American Lady Corsets and you have authentic style, added to superior quality, perfect workmanship and absolutely faultless fitting. American Lady Corsets are the last word in style and detail—They distinctly shape the form, affording always that individuality of corsetry, so essential to correct dressers.

Model 646

Designed for slender or medium adult figures or for somewhat developed girl figures. Bust is very low. Corset is higher through the shoulders. Skirt medium in length, cut out in front. Corset gives a good straight front, flat back, nipped waist, round hip effect. Hip is semi-free. There is rubber in the back, allowing expansion in sitting, rubber in front, affording ease to the top of the corset. Brocade, white of pink, 20.30, $3.50.

Model 442

Parisian model type, for slender and medium adult figure, or the somewhat developed girl's figure. Corset shows extremely low bust, just a trifle higher in shoulder. The boning is light weight with a very free hip effect. The corset is not confining at all, yet it gives excellent lines. Because of its character this corset is especially appropriate for evening wear, dancing, etc. Brocade, white or pink, 19.50, $2.50.
