FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW
DRUGGIST SAYS LADIES ARE USING RECIPE OF SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old time recipe. Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre, and gives it an appearance of abundance. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

ROAD MONEY WASTED

REVISION of the road laws of the state and adoption of a business system in road construction, is recommended in a statement issued by Engineer Lewis, in which it is claimed that about $6,000,000 is wasted yearly on roads in Oregon. He points out that the counties of the state are expending in a haphazard manner from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 annually on approximately 27,000 miles of road. This sum of money, he says, is expended by 105 county judges and commissioners, thirty-five county surveyors, four roadmasters, 86 road supervisors and the highway commission, and while "in general these men are honest, they are disorganized."

"Frequent changes in office, occasional recalls and reorganizations make it very difficult for the public to profit by past experience," he continues. "Having only limited powers and without any substantial policy to adhere to, these state and county officials are dragged around by interested property owners, enthusiastic citizens who have pet projects, or by designing contractors and material men, and forced to spend public money on small, disconnected, hastily considered, inadequately financed, unrelated projects, without regard to the larger plans of interest to the whole people."

"We must have a definite plan adopted by the legislature defining the principal routes for inter-county and inter-state traffic as state routes," he says in suggesting remedies. "Whenever a section or portion of a state route has been permanently improved by the state it should thereafter be taken over and maintained as a state road at the expense of the state, the county to care for such a road prior to its becoming a state road. The main county roads should be built and maintained under the general direction of the county courts. These roads will serve as feeders to the main or trunk lines which carry the concentrated traffic. The local or district roads should be largely under district control. Different standards should be provided for each class, and sufficient overhead supervision had to insure that these standards be followed at least on inter-county and inter-state routes."

The Pacific highway, he declares, would be of strategic value in case of invasion of the coast, and he calls attention to the fact that while it is about 50 per cent complete in Washington and California, Oregon has scarcely made a beginning. The Columbia River highway is an important road, but only partially completed, and the proposed cross-state route from Portland across the Cascade range up to the John Day Valley would open a great undeveloped section of the state to auto truck traffic, he says.

POSTMASTERS IN MEET AT DAYTON

SPECIAL MOTION PICTURES WILL SHOW ALL STAGES THROUGH WHICH A LETTER GOES UNTIL ITS DELIVERY

United Press Service
DAYTON, O., Sept. 21.—Five hundred members of the National League of Postmasters are here today in annual convention. The association includes postmasters of the third and fourth class of all the postoffices in the country. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General James I. Blakelee of Washington, D. C., will address the mail shuffling gentlemen. A motion picture showing the various stages through which a letter goes from the time it is dropped into the mail box by the sender until it is delivered at its destination, will be shown. The general public will be admitted to this exhibition. The meetings are being held in the Y. M. C. A. building.

United Press Service
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 21.—When the bankers of the nation get together for their annual convention five days hence, "Uncle Billy" Witham of Atlanta, who owns 154 little country banks down South, and gets lots of fun and some money out of running them, will be here. "Sorry I can't bring all the boys this time," Uncle Billy told a member of the American Bankers' Association, referring to the 154 managers of his 154 banks, "but you see, we all just had a sort of outing and convention combined in New York a short time ago, so I'll have to leave 'em to tend to business for awhile, I guess. "You see, a convention is just like Barnum's circus with us; once every six or seven years is often enough to indulge in either one."

"Uncle Billy's" banks are scattered through Georgia and Florida. He said the motto for all of them is "Safety first and success."

The American Bankers' Association convention will meet here from September 25 to 29, inclusive.
