U.S. Army to Have Land Dreadnought Tank Cars

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21.—Twenty-seven caterpillar tractors, similar to those converted into "land dreadnought tanks" by the British in northern France, will soon be a part of the United States army's war paraphernalia. The same Peoria, Illinois, firm which supplied the British with the engines for the armored fighting monsters, has contracted to build the huge tractors for this government. They are to be delivered within ninety days.

fish "tanks", it is unlikely this will be done.

"Conditions here would not call for such engines of war," said Colonel Rice. "In the first place, it is not likely that war in America would develop into trench warfare because of the enormous distances, except where it would be confined to local territories."

The tractors bought for the United States army are to be used to haul big guns. They will be armored and probably will carry rapid firing guns, but more for defense than offense. They are much similar to the ordinary farm tractors except that they were more powerfully constructed.

Moving Pictures

It is a far cry from the tender little Japanese Cho-Cho-San of "Madame Butterfly" to the heroic figure of "Poor Little Pappina" but the art of the Famous Players star has enabled her to bridge that gap and to make of the near-Italian girl, who lives as a boy, one of the greatest characterizations of her long list of successes. In this Paramount picture, which is the feature at the Star today and tomorrow, Miss Pickford gives an entirely different interpretation from anything that she has ever attempted.
