RICHARD J. JOSE TO SING TUESDAY

AMERICA'S SWEETEST SINGER
TO RENDER "SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD" AT OPERA HOUSE NEXT WEEK.

Richard J. Jose, the world's sweetest contra-tenor singer, whose melodious voice has thrilled the hearts of the million of English speaking people, is to appear in this city Tuesday night, October 31st, singing those beautiful gems of song made immortal by him. There are few men, women or children of America who have not become familiar with the wonderful career of this noted man.

Throughout a long and wonderful stage career, Mr. Jose has always been identified with the big, high-priced attractions, as everybody knows—those charging $1.50 and $2.

However, the recent higher development and phenomenal popularity of the photo-play has given him man idea and the result is the happy combination of song and picture.

Mr. Jose accompanies and sings with his superb photo-drama masterpiece, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," in six parts, the first attraction at the New Madison Square Garden, New York. It is said nothing finer in motion picture creation has been produced. The story, in brief, is simply told. Tom and James, of the village, are in love with Mary, a beautiful girl, as shown and played by Mary Dean. There are realistic country scenes, concluding with an elaborate barn dance as the climax of an old-fashioned straw ride. At the supper which follows, the green-eyed monster Jealousy, enters the drama, causing the commission of a crime—the wrong man accused; the scenes shifted from the village to the great city and back again with thrilling, heart-throbbing, happy results that is everything to the screen that "Way Down East" was to the stage. Then came the reunion. The Christmas tree, the return of the long-absent son, the reconciliation between father and son, and between husband and wife are most effective.

There are numerous incidental features that are high above the ordinary standard. The two Lee children contribute a dainty diversion and there is the funny character, Cy, as played by the well-known Dick Lee. The cast in all includes thirty-two principals and 165 extra performers, who were required to perfect the production.

Surety bonds while you wait. See Chilcote. 14

Moving Pictures

Having recently established herself as one of the most brilliant actresses of the screen by her wonderful performance as a bold, bad bandit at the Star on Sunday night in the Lasky production of "The Love Mask," written especially for her by Cecil B. De Mille, director general of the Lasky company, and Jeanie McPherson, the author of "The Golden Chance." It is a Paramount picture. Dressed in true Western bandit style, the fair star drops from an overhanging limb to the top of a stage and holds up the passengers. Miss Ridgley and Wallace Reid, who is co-starred with her in this production, are supported by a cast of unusual excellence.

Cleo Madison, one of the greatest emotional actresses in photoplays, will

Lasky production, "The Golden Chance," beautiful Cleo Ridgley will formance as the wife in the Jesse L. be star of the Bluebird to be exhibited at the Orpheus Sunday and Monday, under the title of "The Chalice of Sorrow." The name of the play gives an idea of its tragic bent; the leading character, object of the craft and villainous intrigue of an influential Mexican, depicts a wide range of emotion, running from the heights of joy and happiness to the depths of tragic despair. The scene is laid across the border in the present day, and the Mexican situation falls under a new and illuminating research in "The Chalice of Sorrow." Chief in Miss Madison's support will be Wedgewood Nowell, who plays the villainous Mexican; Charles Cummings, John McDermott, Blanch White, Albert McQuarrie, Rhea Haines and Howard Crampton essaying other important characters in the picture narrative. There is reason to believe that "The Chalice of Sorrow" will be considered the best of the Bluebird series.
