How a Shot Rises from a 12-Inch Mortar

This is a remarkable piece of photography, actually showing a twelve-inch shell leaving a mortar at Fortress Monroe. The first picture shows the shell about out of the mouth of the mortar. The second shows it clear, and the third has caught it in the air beyond the burst of smoke. The camera was operated with the same electric button which set off the shot.

scenic and sportsman's attractions, including Crater Lake, cannot be excelled in the world. The Oregon, California & Eastern project provides lines from Bend to Klamath Falls, Lakeview and Crane, with short branches to Burns, Bonanza and The Narrows. The total mileage is 424 miles. The lines to be connected and, if they so desire, to be afforded the change from branches to more or less important through lines are the Oregon Trunk (Hill line) and the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company (Harriman line) at Bend, the Union Pacific at Crane, the Southern Pacific at Klamath Falls and the Nevada, California & Oregon at Lakeview. The total cost of the Oregon, California & Eastern, owing to absence of high mountain ranges, large streams or other engineering difficulties, will be only $15,000 per mile, or about $6,000,000 for the entire system, a considerable portion of which, with right of way and terminals, already has been pledged by the communities interested. Climatic conditions favor economical operations. — Portland Oregonian.

Moving Pictures Strahorn Road Is Independent Continued from Page 1 worked their way up through the canyons to this central plateau. I have thus made the 400 miles of surveys to connect them, and have conducted the right of way and terminal work independently and at my own expense, looking forward to important participation in ownership in the property by those having most at stake locally and at Portland and San Francisco when my preliminary work is complete. "My opinion is that the vast increase of business following the development of resources through such construction, in which all these connecting lines would participate, would far outweigh any disadvantages of re-routing or loss of traffic from either or any of the lines to the others, and would merit their hearty co-operation. "After a careful study of that great region for several years I am convinced that it contains as great a diversity and volume of resources as any of similar extent between the Rocky and Cascade mountains. I am including the Klamath, Harney, Goose Lake, Surprise Valley and Upper Deschutes sections and the territory that lies between them, a territory as large as the state of Ohio, with no rail facilities except at the outer edges. "Good authorities claim an ultimate capacity of 100,000,000 bushels of grain a year on lands in that region located from 25 to 150 miles from the nearest railroad. Nothing can be done with these lands under present conditions. It is well known that a large percentage of the very rich irrigable and marsh lands, amounting altogether to about 2,000,000 acres, and now being reclaimed, cannot be adequately utilized, if at all, without the construction of these railroads. "The 50,000,000,000 feet of Western white pine tributary to these proposed lines is only tapped at the extreme northern and extreme southern edges. There is great wealth in metals and mineral salts, and the latter have been sufficiently developed to guarantee a large tonnage. The Table with 2 columns: ASSETS—Actual and Contingent and LIABILITIES—Actual and Contingent. Rows include Present mid year value of future net contributions, Funds available for Claim, Liens, Loans and Interest, and TOTAL.

The above valuation indicates that, on the basis of the National Fraternal Congress table of mortality with interest at 4 per cent, the future assessments of the society, at the net rates now being collected, together with the now invested assets are sufficient to meet all obligations as they mature by their terms, with a margin of safety of $91,898.02 (or 4.9 per cent) over and above the statutory standards. The above valuation is dated December 31, 1915. MILES M. DAWSON, Actuary.

Noted Tenor to Sing at the Opera House Tonight

Richard J. Jose, the sweet voiced contra-tenor, will appear at the opera house this evening in person, and during the presentation of the six-part photo-play, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," will introduce a series of those grand old songs which his voice has made immortal throughout the world. The unique novelty of having the singer appear in person as well as on the screen was first introduced by Mr. Jose in New York a little over a year ago and made an instantaneous hit. "Silver Threads Among the Gold," with Richard Jose, was the attraction selected to open Madison Square Garden, New York, which is known as the greatest picture house in the entire world, seating 12,000 people. The appearance here this evening of the noted singer, in conjunction with the interesting feature photo-drama, will no doubt create unbounded interest, and the local management, in anticipation of a capacity audience, has arranged for a special reserved seat sale for the occasion, reservation for which can be made now at the opera house.
