

Underground Cities Now Part of German Defenses

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent with the French Armies)

the existence of entire underground villages.
The caves, cellars and vaults, dug by the Huguenots in the province of Banterra both for refuge and for concealing their valuables, date back to the religious wars which were waged in France several centuries ago. The subterranean villages in the northern part of Picardy are of a more antique origin, and go back to feudal times.

As a rule, they are dug into solid rock, and the French general staff has reason to believe that their existence was not only long ago known to Germans, but long ago counted upon by the German general staff as a definite means for clinging onto the soil of France.

There is now every reason to believe that the series of underground villages in Picardy is to be utilized by the Germans in constituting a new line of defense against the Franco-British drive that has now pushed them entirely out of their three line trench defenses, which they had regarded as absolutely unshakable. By a combination of circumstances, the immense navigable canal which was being dug in the northern part of France when the war began, and which was to have been one of the greatest of the inland waterways of France, skirts the district of underground villages on the west, and constitutes an additional asset to the Germans for their new line of defense.

This canal, starting from Peronne, where it was to connect up with the Somme canal already in existence, traverses the northern half of the pathway of the allies' offensive, cutting the Bapaume Cambria road near Hovrine court.
At the moment war was declared this canal was practically completed, and ready to have the water turned in. At the foot of Mount Saint Quentin, the French have already reached the banks of this canal, and it has been ascertained that the Germans are utilizing the big ditch for their new line of defenses. This does not constitute a serious fact for the French general staff, as it is, of course, in possession of all the details of the canal's construction. What it does regret, however is that its occupation by the Germans will unquestionably force its complete destruction by the allies' heavy artillery and the years of time and millions of francs spent in its construction will be entirely wiped out.

Spanish Princes as Boy Scouts

PRINCE ALFONSO PRINCE JAIME

Prince Alfonso of the Asturias, nine years of age and heir to the throne of Spain, and his brother, Prince Jaime, eight years old, who is deaf and dumb, were prominent figures at a meeting of the Boy Scouts of Spain at Santander. Their mother, Queen Victoria, was the guest of honor.

Change in Status of Vatican Seen by Some

By JOHN HEARLEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Oct. 23.—(By mail)—In Germany a Jesuit, Rev. Franz Erhle, recently wrote an article, proposing a possible solution of "the Roman question." He suggests that the papacy be given the "proprietaryship" not the mere "occupancy" of the vatican properties, as now.

In local clerical circles the suggestion is viewed as highly significant. It may be Pope Benedict's plan for destroying the historic differences between the Italian government and the holy see some say. Others, however, declare that, if anything, it is only a papal balloon, sent up to see in what direction the wind is blowing. That the pope will be represented at the peace conference is the prevailing opinion here.

Father Erhle is no stranger to the papacy's affairs. Like the present pope, with whom he is said to be very friendly, he belongs to Rampolla's diplomatic school. In Leo's time he had great influence as the vatican librarian. He was later appointed to an important post in the bioethical institute here. His is characterized as the first definite scheme of settlement proposed in late years by a recognized clergyman. His holiness long ago forbade all such particular proposals, it is said. Before the war only general discussions of the subject were officially permitted.

Under the present law of guarantees the holy father is only privileged to occupy the vatican properties, the Jesuite writes. If the Italian government would substitute "proprietaryship" for "occupancy," he would implicitly become sovereign and independent he maintains.

Italy's fundamental law would have to be changed to permit this substitution. Foreign powers, being necessarily notified of this change, would be indirectly but officially informed of the papacy's sovereignty. All international debate on the question would thereby be obviated, Father Erhle concludes.

Several other possible solutions have come from less informed sources. One suggests that the holy father be given Trent as a place to re-establish the papacy. Although long in Austrian hands, Italy calls this present battlefield region its "unredeemed." Under such an arrangement an archbishop would rule over the Roman diocese and the pope would again be seen abroad. This suggestion, however, is not taken very seriously.

Another would grant him the Leonine City. This would embrace a portion of Rome, in the Trastevere district and a strip of land, reaching to the sea. A seaport town, probably Ostia, also would be included. This plan just now provokes far more emphatic official and popular opposition on the part of the Italians than Father Erhle's.

Wielder of Poison Pen and Victim

MRS. MARIE MOORE

John Henry Hell, principal of the Morgan Park High School in Chicago, has been dismissed and ordered to leave the city, as a result of his admission he wrote many letters to and about Mrs. Marie Moore, a school teacher. It was suggested as his reason for writing the letters he was in love with her and was trying to separate her from her husband and friends so she would have to rely on him, though she had spurned him.

New Harvard Gridiron Star

EDWARD L. CASEY HARVARD

Eddie Casey, half back, is the new hero of Harvard. He is hailed as the successor of Brinkley and Mahan. Anyway, though some football experts doubt if he is or will be as good as either, the men of Harvard have a new star to bow to.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

FLUSH YOUR KIDNEYS OCCASIONALLY IF YOU EAT MEAT REGULARLY

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Most forms of uric acid which clog the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.
The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with bicarbonate and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.
Jad Salts is inexpensive, and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

We Thank You

Well, me and Hughes ran, but we put on the britchin' at the wrong time. We ain't a bit mad and think you made a fine choice. We wish, at this time, to extend to you our hearty appreciation for your generous but seldom support.

Mr. Short is a gentleman, and you did well to choose him. He made a good, clean campaign, and if he does as he has told you, he will be of much benefit to us all.
I am a "wheel horse" when it comes to running, but I might be able to do some good pulling for him at that.
I am sending my pick, shovel, hoe and goat out to the "Short House," but I don't know at this time whether Chas. has sent his "animal" and other paraphernalia down to the White House or not.

Sugar Beet Seeds Imported

Great activity in the sugar beet industry in this country is foreshadowed by the recent record breaking imports of sugar beet seeds. Figures made public by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce indicate that for the nine months ended September 30, 1918, the imports of seed reached a total of 18,500,000 pounds, which is 1,000,000 more pounds than were imported during the complete calendar years 1913 and 1914, and nearly double those for the full year 1912.
