Dearest Public:

If your money is a gift you should worry. If you have to work for it, don't you think it is a nice idea to save when you get a chance?

You have that chance if you buy at my store, and you are not buying "a cat in a bag," and you take no chance, as everything I sell you is guaranteed by the maker, and I have no hesitancy in giving you my word that his is good.

The sale I am having is not an auction. It is a sale of as nice a stock of fine goods as ever came to this town. I need the money, and you are not "at yourself" if you don't see the prices I have on these things before you buy.

If you had looked September Morn over real close (maybe you did) you would have seen the lovely diamond on her hand. It was her engagement ring, given her by August, and he got it here, and you bet it's a good one. We have a number more of nice diamonds, and if you are interested in one it will pay you to see these.

And, Stella, we have a fire here all day, so come over.

INVESTIGATION OF VICE, FILM BASIS

THE LITTLE GIRL NEXT DOOR WAS SUGGESTED BY TESTIMONY BEFORE THE ILLINOIS COMMISSION ON VICE.

Manager J. V. Houston of the Houston opera house has secured for next Friday and Saturday the sensational film, "The Little Girl Next Door," a picture which depicts conditions surrounding young girls in cities and which preaches a moral sermon.

This film, based on the testimony of the Illinois vice investigation, has been suppressed by the censors at Seattle and other cities but has been endorsed by the press and pulpit.

Some of the scenes, it is said, rival the most lurid melo-dramas as thrillers, and yet the directors of the production are said to have followed the facts as faithfully as exhibition purposes would permit. Some of the scenes are laid in the same notorious resorts and dives in which the witnesses testified the incidents happened.

The stories told by the girl witnesses before the commission, including the white slave stories, were re-enacted. The scenes are laid all over the country. The reels are connected by a running story telling the history of one girl from her first false step to her appearance as a witness before the commission. The experiences through which she passed as well as those of other witnesses are told.

The state senate investigating body in its report recommended that its report be placed before the public in pictures. The report in written form, it was suggested, would only be read by

Record business is picking up strongly, most people realizing that they will receive more personal attention and service now than if they wait until the last day or so before buying.

Persons for whom we are post paying Records East as gifts to friends wish to be sure their packages arrive in plenty of time.

Many people do not realize that there are only ten more shopping days between now and Christmas Day.

While next door postoffice is a little out of the trend of general Christmas shopping. We try to compensate this by carrying by far the largest stock in Southeastern Oregon 12-11 delivers into sociological facts, physical, and persons especially interested in the vice problem from a standpoint of statistics. The senate passed a resolution authorizing the taking of a picture of that body in session to be used as a part of the vice film.

Vice conditions as they existed before the old Twenty-second street district was closed were portrayed as truthfully as possible in contrast to the desolate, bleak aspect of the blocks of closed and boarded resorts as they now are.

Hundreds of characters have taken part in the picturization. Scenes of the sessions of the commission in Chicago, Washington and other cities are shown. Vice President Marshall and Congressman Mann, who attended the sessions in Washington, were photographed.
