Radical President Is Still Man of Mystery

By CHAS. P. STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 18.—(By Mail.)—"Man of Mystery" is a threadbare expression which should have been saved for Hipolite Irigoyen, first radical president of Argentine. People supposed they would "get in line" on Irigoyen after he took office, but he is as much a mystery as ever.

Irigoyen was elected president of Argentine on no platform. He made no promises. As radical party leader he professed no purpose beyond getting a fair national election. It is generally agreed that he got it. It was at this election that Irigoyen was chosen president.

It was assumed that Irigoyen would outline a policy in his inaugural address. He made no inaugural address. It was expected he would explain himself through a manifesto. He had issued no manifesto.

It was surmised that the make-up of his cabinet would give the public some inkling concerning his plans. The consensus of opinion is that his cabinet, as subsequently constituted, consists of eight rubber stamps, each bearing the impress:

"Hipolito Irigoyen."

A little "who's who" of this cabinet follows:

Carlos A. Becu, Minister of Foreign affairs. Professor of international law in the Buenos Aires University, corporation attorney and author of certain works referring disrespectfully to the "A-B-C" combination, whose only "reason to be," if it has one, is declared to be that of checking "the robberies of the United States in Latin America."

Domingo E. Salaberry, Minister of Finance. Multi-millionaire and lawyer who has, however, devoted most of his time to managing his huge castle interests.

Elpidio Gonzales, Minister of War. Lawyer and radical party leader in the State of Cordoba.

Federico Alvares de Toledo Jr., Minister of Marine. Civil engineer and millionaire.

Ramon Gomez, Minister of the Interior. Lawyer and radical party leader in the State of Santiago del Estero.

Hondrio Pueyrredon, Minister of Agriculture. Lawyer, millionaire and descendant of one of the leading families of Argentine.

Jose Salinas, Minister of Justice and Public Instruction. Government inspector of schools in the State of Jujuy.

Pablo Torello, Minister of Public Works. Ex-newspaperman, lawyer and millionaire.

These men are all radicals. With one exception, they are Irigoenists first and radicals afterward.

The exception is Becu. Becu is a real radical, and a good many people question whether he will stay long in the cabinet. He is believed to have been the president's one sop to his party's wishes.

Salaberry is recognized as an able financier. Times are hard in Argentine now. It is expected that the post-war readjustment period will be a very difficult one for the country.

There are a few guesses concerning Irigoyen, but they are nothing better than guesses.

He is one of the most taciturn of men. The conservative press of Argentine hints that this is because he has nothing to say. It is trying to fasten on him the name of "King Midas," partly because everything the king touched turned to gold and partly because of his reputedly long ears.

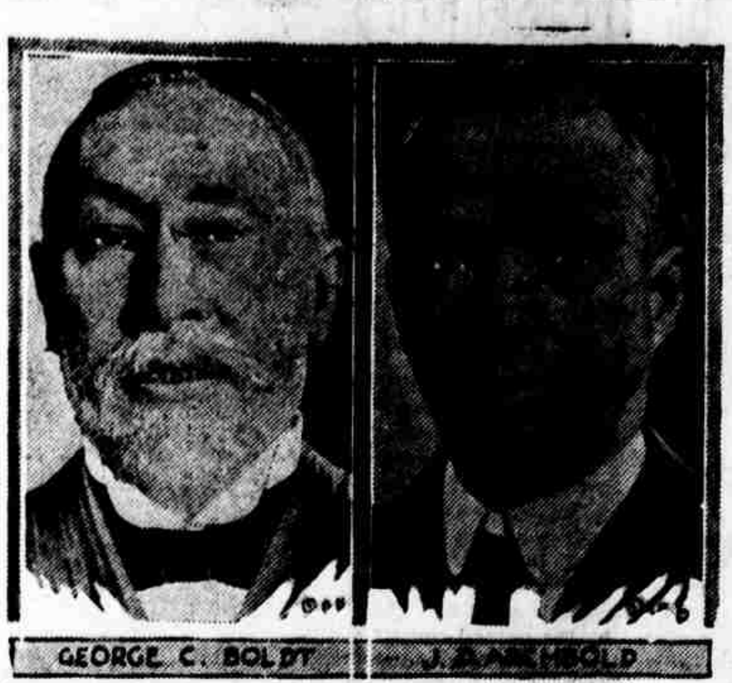
Germans profess to thing that the president is friendly toward the central powers, but they can point to nothing he has ever said or done in support of this theory.

Some people express the opinion that he was elected as the representative of the Argentine land holders, just as they contend that his predecessory, Dr. de la Plaza, upheld the banking interests. This surmise seems to rest on on more tangible information than that Irigoyen is himself a large land owner.

It is reported that the church, a state institution, was pro-Irigoyen at the last election, helped the radical candidate greatly at the polls and is well pleased to see him in the "Casa Dodanda," or Argentine White House. Irigoyen is known to have been liberal in his donations to the church, but he is understood to be personally agnostically inclined.

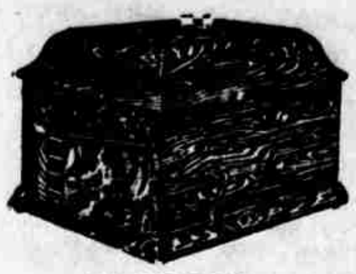
The president, who is now very rich, was poor when he was young. It is understood that he gained his foothold on borrowed capital, used shrewdly in land speculation.

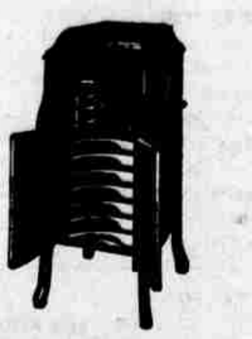
Millionaires Who Began Poor Die on Same Day



George C. Boldt, owner of the Waldorf-Astoria and Bellevue-Stratford hotels, worth between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000, began life sixty-five years ago . His first work was as a waiter. He died an hour later than Mr. Archbold. He died at 6 o'clock a. m. December 5.

John D. Archbold, president of the Standard Oil company, worth between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000, began life sixty-eight years ago. His first job paid him $1.50 a week. He died at 5 o'clock on the morning of December 5, just an hour before Mr. Bolt died.





Pay Day Christmas Specials

Each Victrola is a Christmas Special because it is the only present suitable for all the family.

A Victrola educates your family in music and entertains yourself and your friends at the same time.

Just think! By paying 75 cents to a dollar and a quarter a week (monthly terms if you wish) you make this best of gifts your very own.

Many people "blow in" foolishly every month twice the sum that would pay for a Victrola, and they have nothing to show where the pay check has gone.

Only nine more shopping days until Christmas, so come in the first evening possible, and we will play the different models for you.

All Standard Makes—Largest Stock.

It pays to walk a little further and visit the store next door to the postoffice.

Open late evenings.

There will be no disappointment at the Star tonight. After a delay of one week, "The Man from Bitter Root" will positively appear. Wm.. Fox precents William Farnum in that stirring storiy of the big outdoors. Farnum is no molly-coddle; he is virile, red-blooded, courageous product of the West, saving a mine for the sister of a dead partner. He is a man of action and decision. Star tonight only.

WORDEN WHISPERINGS

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Tower were week-end Christmas shoppers in Klamath Falls.

Champ McCollom is erecting a building to house the recently-purchased Ford.

D. P. Dougherty is hibernating in the coyote section of Bear valley.

Al Downing is building a comfortable cottage on his 320-acre tract near Miller lake.

Elmer Gordon has filled several barrels with choice home-grown pork.

A religious revival under the auspices of the M. E. church will enliven Worden this week.

Our school under the instruction of Miss Sullivan is second to none.

Ralph Tice is goatless. His entire band wandered away, leaving no trace of its whereafouts.

The ever-genial Major Mattoon, of the Keno-Worden star route, gave a sleighing party last Saturday.

Dr. Atkinson of Dorris was called Sunday morning to administer to the wants of Baby Owen.

H. L. Veit is visiting Roseburg and other places of interest in the Umpqua and Rogue River valleys.

Our town has been dubbed the bachelors' retreat, but at that R. O. Vincent enjoys the winning ways of an up-to-the-minute chef.

A. W. Shur is overhauling his trapping paraphernalia preparatory to a winter's outing among the fur-bearers of Klamath.

Lyle Gordon, who has charge of the railroad pumping stations at Mt. Hebron, Worden and Chiloquin, has no time to write love letters.

Raise Own Chickens

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—"Raise chickens in your backyard if you would cut the high cost of living," said Theodore Hewes, secretary of the Poultry Show which opened here today. "The increase in the price of dressed poultry has not yet equalled that of pork or beef, and it is a commodity that can be produced at home," he added. "A few fowls in the backyard, fed largely from the waste from your table, not only produce delicious meat but supply fresh eggs, a luxury which few can afford when they must buy them."

Six Cent Movie Next

DETROIT, Dec. 13.—The "six-cent movie" has come into existence in Detroit. A local theater has added one cent to its former admission of five cents because of a 20 per cent increase of films. The managers report no decrease in attendance.

SHIPPINGTON SIDELIGHTS

The ice on the lake is about four inches thick and the icemen are making preparations to put up a large amount.

Notwithstanding the fact that there is about two inches of snow on the ice, Sunday saw the lake swarming with skaters.

The steamers Masama annd Eagle are froze in at the other end of the lake and will probably not be heard of again before the 1st of March.

The Johnson sawmill has closed for the winter and the Pelican City mill will close soon.

Messrs. Calkins and Hamilton are getting ready to "putt out" their motor boats—the Spray, Curlew and Oakland.

Every Sunday many fishermen are out fishing, but, as they return home in the evening, it is not hard to see that they have had the usual "fisherman's luck."

St. Cloud is still setting up on the hill, but the commodore must be froze up because nobody has seen him for a week.

Mr. DeChaine has his dairy buildings well under way and will soon move his dairy over from Pelican City, where it is now situated.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffing, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.—Adv.
