TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

EAT LESS MEAT IF YOU FEEL BACKAGHY OR HAVE BLADDER TROUBLE

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then set fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

American Boxer Got It in "Capoeiragem" Game

By H. B. ROBERTSON

(United Press Staff Correspondent) RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 20.—(By Mail)—A wandering American athlete "barnstormed" into this city to "cop a little easy money" and got a broken jaw for his pains. He was a good boxer. He said so himself. He said it in the newspapers and offered $200 gold to whoever would stay ten rounds with him. Nothing doing. The "box" is a game foreign to Brazil. Well, he could wrestle. He offered the same prize to whosoever would remain fifteen minutes with him on the mat. Again nothing doing. The full Nelson, hammerlock, and toe holds are mythical propositions to Brazil. The third challenge offered the purse for any style of fighting which the Brazilian athletes would be pleased to name. Then there was something doing. In a packed theater the boxer-wrestler stepped out to meet the "come-on." They shook hands, backed away and closed. The boxer's right shot to where the Brazilian's jaw should have been. It was not there. The other's open left hand came back to the boxer's face and swung him a fraction of an inch off his balance. The Brazilian dropped onto his hands with the agility of a cat. His right foot swept under the boxer, and as he fell the left foot caught him full on the neck and jaw. About a month later the American athlete was discharged from the hospital. The lump on his jaw where the compound fracture healed was put there by "capoeiragem," the "manly art of self-defense," as the Brazilian understands it. "Capoeiragem" originated with the negro slaves in the Brazil of the old days, and it is the only game played in this country that is of truly national origin. Played or fought as the runaway slaves, cornered by their pursuers fought it, "capoeiragem" was bloody and often fatal to both opponents. When in deadly earnest, the "capoeira" held a knife or razor between his toes, a trick easily managed by those who ran barefoot all their lives and who practiced the game from infancy. Today the game has developed into a science, is taught in the gymnasium, and is one of the school boys' chief amusement during play hours. There are no fouls. No part of the body is free from attack, and every part of the body is in full play. As a means of self-defense, its supporters claim it is more efficient than boxing.

Miss Tsalina Redfeather, a Creek Indian, who says she is a direct descendant of Tecumseh, has captured official and social Washington by her delightful singing of Indian songs. She was reared in Oklahoma, and was fortunate enough to attract the attention of a philanthropist who provided for her education. She has justified the confidence of her patron by earning and paying back practically all the money advanced for her education, and is giving promise of a brilliant career.

DANCED BEFORE ITALY'S QUEEN

SALESMAN FOR ARTIFICIAL LEG CONCERN DANCES "GAME LEG" "ROT" BEFORE QUEEN HELENE, THINKING HER NURSE.

By JOHN H. HEARLEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Nov. 15.—(By Mail)—How an American salesman tried to sell a wooden leg to the Queen of Italy under the impression that she was a Red Cross nurse was told here today for the first time.

C. C. Swain, a breezy drummer for an artificial limb maker of Washington, D. C., had been doing his best to place an order with the hospital committee representing the Italian government. Just as he was on the verge of giving the gentlemen up as bad prospects he came a most charming black-eyed nurse, and Charlie, taking heart, started all over again for her benefit. "It's all a question of getting used to it," said Swain. "See, I can spin around on mine like a top!" Swain suited the action to the word. For Swain's best sample was his own left leg.

Swain unwound every inch of his line of talk. Over the mysterious frowns and restlessness of the committee he gave her much unsolicited information. He told her of his climb to the skyscraping dome of St. Peter's. If she didn't believe it, she could ask the guide who had seen his performance and had received his card. Afterward, he caught up a chair and danced the "grizzly bear," gliding gradually into a "hesitation." He ended his dancing spree with a bit of the "tangl."

Apparently amazed and amused at his stunts, the black-eyed nurse made her thanks and disappeared. The American salesman, thereupon, turned again to the committee. He met a thundering storm of wrath. "Fool! fool!" roared the chorus of voices: "didn't you know that was Her Majesty, Helene, Queen of Italy?" "Holy smoke!" sighed Swain. "To think I had a golden opportunity and used it like a nickle-plated one!"

Only Major General of Civil War in Germany

By CARL W. ACKERMAN (United Press Staff Correspondent)

DUISBURG, Germany, Nov. 10. (By Mail)—In a little apartment on Hindenburgstrasse today sits an old American general, who is waiting for the war to end so he can return to the United States.

This aged hero of Lincoln's day is Major General Osterhaus, only surviving major general of the Civil war, father of Admiral Osterhaus of the United States navy and grandfather of Lieutenant Osterhaus, U. S. N. Major General Osterhaus will soon be 95. The general, whose hair and beard are creamy white, sat in his library reading war news when American newspapermen called today to pay their respects. He is vigorous and alert and appears still to be in his seventies. His joy at seeing Americans was great and he beamed with happiness. Repeatedly he asked that his greetings be sent to America and to say that he was "going back as soon as the war was ended."

Major General Osterhaus discussed many phases of the war with the greatest zeal. He is a great admirer of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and he believes the war would have been ended long ago if Hindenburg had been made chief of the general staff at the beginning. "Hindenburg is the greatest general the world has produced," he said. "He would have defeated Napoleon the first day." Major General Osterhaus' library is like an old Civil War museum. One of his desks, I believe, was given to him by President Johnson. On his desk were autograph photos of Lincoln, Johnson and other American statesmen of the Civil war period. He has the keenest recollection of frequent meetings with Lincoln and members of his cabinet. Johnson appointed him American consul at Havre, France, after the Civil war. Before that he was the first governor general of Louisiana after the state was admitted to the Union.

Boxes for Hunters Placed MUNISING, Mich., Dec. 14.—Food boxes for lost hunters are being spread throughout Northern Wisconsin woods today as a result of the recent tragedy of a Chicago hunter who was lost in the woods for four days and found nearly starved. In addition to the boxes containing food, there are knives, forks, spoons and matches. Hunters are asked to report anyone tampering with the food boxes. There are about 10,000 hunters in the woods here trying to bag deer.
