Stars and Stripes Flew on His Ship

Captain John L. Duffy, commander of the American ship Chemung, which an Austrian submarine sunk off the coast of Spain, has just come back to the United States. When the submarine commander told him to haul down the American flag before the vessel was to be sunk Captain Duffy refused. He was taken to the submarine, and he saw the Austrian sink the ship with her flag still up. He was later landed in Spain, from which country he made his way to the United States.

SOCIETY

About 125 people, seventy of whom were from Klamath Falls, last night enjoyed a jolly dance at the Altamont ranch as guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Hannon and daughter, Bernadine. The town people made the trip in two big bobbeds, pulled by four horses on each; the sleigh ride furnished no small part of the evening's fun.

Music was furnished by the Barlow orchestra of Klamath Falls for most of the evening, but for the quadrills, which were hugely enjoyed by those who danced them and those watching, the music was played by two old-time violinists of the country. A light supper was served late in the evening, or early in the morning, and then came more dancing.

The Art Needle Work Club met this week at the home of Mrs. C. C. Hogue. All members of the club were present, and the afternoon was spent with the usual work, which was followed by a dainty luncheon. Dr. Bertha Sawyer was the only guest of the club. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Jennie Hurn, at Fifth and Pine streets.

Mrs. William Duncan was hostess to the Bridge Club at the home of Mrs. G. A. Krause on Thursday afternoon. An enjoyable afternoon at bridge was spent. High honors went to Mrs. Oscar Shive.

The Leisure Hour Club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. G. R. Manning in Hot Springs Addition. The afternoon was spent at bridge, and the honors went to Mrs. Bert Withrow. Those present were Mrs. Whitlock, Mrs. Whitman, Mrs. Bert Withrow, Mrs. Oscar Willey, Mrs. West, Mrs. Bridges, Mrs. H. C. McCarthy and Mrs. Townsend.

The dancing party given by the members of the high school basketball team on Thursday evening at the opera house was greatly enjoyed by forty-five couples. It was a high school alumni affair, and the proceeds went toward purchasing basketball suits for the team. The dance lasted until 1 o'clock. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Moving Pictures

Standish, an artist, uses Mary, his wife, as the model for his painting of the Madonna. When the connoisseur and the parishoner come to inspect the picture the connoisseur recognizes in the model an old paramour, and tells the husband so. The husband, while surprised, fails to disclose his identity, and the visitors purchase the picture. After their departure the artist upbraids his wife. She tells him of her long acquaintance with the connoisseur and how, for five years, she believed herself legally married to him. But the husband, unforgiving, turns her and her infant son out into the street. The mother leaves her baby on the steps of a monastery with a crucifix bearing her name. Then she enters a squalid resort known as the "House of Lost Souls," and becomes its reigning queen. Seventeen years later the boy is a novice in the monastery. Before becoming a monk he wants to see the world. Father Anthony gives consent, and the lad wanders into the "House of Lost Souls," of which his mother is now the proprietress. There the novice meets Lust, Rum, Passion, Avarice and Beauty. They try their wiles in vain. Finally he succumbs to Beauty. The proprietress enters their ribald revels, takes the lad to her room, and finding the crucifix, learns that he is her son. Without disclosing her identity, she tells him to go back. When he is gone she renounces her companions. Then she falls fainting. Five years later the boy is a parish priest. In a fearful storm an old hag enters the church. It is the mother. She sees above the altar the painting of the Madonna for which she posed, and recognizes her son by the crucifix he still wears. The son gives the mother absolution, as the Angel of Death enters and bears off her spirit. At the Star tonight.

Some of the largest settings ever erected in a motion picture studio were built by the Famous Players for their adaptation of E. Phillips Oppenheim's great novel, "The World's Great Snare," in which that foremost feature concern is starring Pauline Frederick, at the Star tonight. This Paramount picture represents the first work of Joseph Kaufman, the well known director, since joining the Famous Players staff, and it may unhesitatingly be stated that the production will reflect great credit upon the director and all those concerned with its adaptation.
