Liquor Shipments Grow Large Illicit Traffic is Expected

District Attorney of Multnomah County Calls Attention of Governor to What May be Expected After "Bone Dry" Law is Effective

SALEM, Jan. 16.—Predicting that there will be enormous illicit liquor importations into the state from California after the "bone dry" amendment becomes operative, District Attorney Evans, of Multnomah county, in a letter to Governor Withycombe, suggests that he prepare for the regulation of the traffic at or near the California-Oregon line. He also declares that the importations under the present law have been on a big scale, and that, had it not been for the activities of the federal officers the run would have gone beyond the control of the prosecuting officers of the state. Replying, Governor Withycombe said that he stood ready to co-operate to the fullest extent in enforcing the prohibition law, and that he was asking for a $5000 appropriation for special agents.

"Large quantities of liquor are coming into Oregon illegally by four principal methods," says District Attorney Evans' letter in part: "First—By way of various steamer lines entering the Columbia. This route principally concerns the authorities of Clatsop, Columbia and Multnomah counties, and is being fairly well taken care of locally. "Second—By the bringing in of trunks and suitcases, both by railroad and pullman employees, and by passengers on the Southern Pacific route. So far as the Pullman people are concerned, pending prosecutions in this county are looked to for a decided improvement of conditions, and in addition thereto, I have taken up, with the superintendent of the Pullman company here, the situation and expect material assistance. "Third—By mislabeled freight shipments coming in over the Southern Pacific. "Fourth—By importation in automobiles and other vehicles."

Impossible to Check Shipments. "It is impossible to check the shipments at the point of arrival for the reason that the portion of the liquor which is finally destined to Portland is put off at any of a large number of stations as far south as Salem and then brought into the city by devious routes," continues the letter, after giving specific instances of how liquor is smuggled into the state in suitcases. "Likewise with the importations by automobile, which, of course, are at a minimum at this time of the year, but undoubtedly will increase by leaps and bounds with the coming open weather and the operation of the so-called bone-dry law. Liquor is Misbranded

"As an instance of how the freight service is abused in this manner, I learned only recently of a shipment of purported household goods from Hornbrook to Portland, which, as a matter of fact, was nothing but whiskey. "With the coming abolition of the mail order privilege, there would be left two large establishments at Hornbrook and one at Hill, Cal., with no legitimate business with residents of Oregon. If they continue in business, as I consider extremely likely, it will be solely for the purpose of sending illicit shipments into this state surreptitiously. Judging from the amount of illegal business done by these houses when a reasonable amount is permitted to be brought in legally, there will be an enormous contraband trade of this nature when the legal importation is abolished." District Attorney Evans suggests that officers be selected to travel continuously upon the trains between Hornbrook and Ashland, and that they also spend more or less of the time in Hornbrook and other wet towns near the state line.

Letters from the People

Editor Herald: The remarks of P. W. Snyder, in a late issue of the Herald, seem to me to be along the right line. A country and community such as we have in Klamath county and adjacent territory should support a snappy and up-to-date fair. As to the scope of such a fair, I agree with Mr. Snyder in putting no territorial boundaries, but in organization, it seems to me, would be best along county lines, as our county court would surely be of great help in getting such an organization on its feet. The interest and impetus given to better stock growing by keen competition in the judging rings of county fairs is very great. In our section of the state, where stock raising is of primary importance, this would be of great value, because of the better grade of stock it would cause the farmers and stockmen to raise. It would cause the introduction of pure bred sires where now the scrub is all too common. Stock raisers from other states would be made welcome, and if they brought specimens of stock that would win the prize money, we would be the gainer, because of the better ideas their well bred and well cared for stock would have given us. Probably in a lesser degree it would be the same with grain, vegetables, and all other produce which the farmers raise. Get the farmers to competing with each other in grain growing, and better bred grain with larger yields will be the result. With the fair as a central idea, we could enlarge upon it and add to it the gaieties of a harvest festival, and the friendly pleasures of a home-coming week. With the afternoons given over to stock judging contests, vaquero sports of all kinds, horse racing, etc., we could have a celebration that would be an enjoyment and profit to all. A. L. MARSHALL.

one darned hole after another. And in our tin roofs, rowboats, pavements, stowpans, stomachs and bank accounts we find them. Holes, holes, holes. Coal holes, rat holes, post holes, nail holes and mud holes; these are but a few of many. Yet let us not condemn the hole indiscriminately. Else how would we get our foot in our shoes? Or strain our cranberries? What would our gold links be without them? And where would we go from cyclones? The hole subject is done. The world is, as you might say, full of them; and we mortals must deal with each hole as we come to it.

LEADERS OF CENTRAL POWERS MEET TODAY

LIKE ELECTRIC BUTTON ON TOES TELLS WHY A CORN IS SO PAINFUL AND SAYS CUTTING MAKES THEM GROW.

Press an electric button and you form a contact with a live wire which rings the bell. When your shoes press against your corn it pushes its sharp roots down upon a sensitive nerve and you get a shock of pain. Instead of trimming your corns, which merely makes them grow, just step into any drug store and ask for a quarter of an ounce of freezone. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. A few drops applied directly upon a tender, aching corn stops the soreness instantly, and soon the corn shrivels up so it lifts right out, root and all, without pain. This drug is harmless and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissue or skin. Paid adv.

HOLES

Theoretically the hole is a void, a vacancy, nothing. Practically it is one of the most troublesome things in life. We dodge holes from the cradle to the grave, or, nineteen-seventeen speaking, from the pacifier to the crematory. Take the merest infant. One of the first things it does is to discover the hole in its face and try to climb in it. Life, particularly with socks, is just
