Good Land Drainage Means Better Crops

State Drainage Association Plans Aggressive Campaign to Reclaim Wet Lands of This State

CORVALLIS, Jan. 26.—The Oregon State Drainage Association has approved a plan to print the biennial reports and stenographic records of meetings held last two years, and thus give other persons interested in better drainage an opportunity to learn something of the methods and results of drainage on wet lands and alkaline irrigated lands. "The drainage sentiment is growing very fast now, and calls for assistance in planning and carrying on the work are greater than at any time heretofore," says W. L. Powers, head of irrigation and drainage work at the Agricultural College and secretary of the state association. "More real progress was made at the recent meeting held here than at any previous meeting."

The general movement for agricultural lime has developed the fact that drainage is indispensable to the use of agricultural lime, and that any lime movement to succeed must first prepare the way by suitable drainage. The extent of general interest is seen in the fact that the 5,000 edition of the college bulletin on drainage issued last July is just about exhausted. The state association is comprised of six districts with directors as follows: Wm. Hanley of Burns, Central Oregon; A. A. McHaffey of Klamath Falls, Walter Pierce of La Grande, B. Beals of Tillamook, Wm. Egan of Gervais, T. G. Smith of Echo, C. C. Chapman, director at large. The officers are I. N. Edwards of Monroe, president; W. L. Powers of Corvallis, secretary, and J. E. Larson of Corvallis, chairman program committee.

Quails have become almost domesticated hereabouts, coming to the barn yards regularly for sustenance. They are plentiful, and go unmolessted. D. P. Daugherty is constructing farm gates which open upward, in place of swinging aside, thus eliminating snow shoveling. The utility and small cost will appeal to ranchers and stockmen.

STATE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY NOW HAS 67,000 VOLUMES The library of the State University at Eugene contained on January 1st a total of 67,909 volumes, 9,494 additions having been made during 1916. The use of the library during 1916 increased 35 per cent over 1915.

Respirator Saves French Form the German Gases

The newest invention of the French to save their soldiers from the deadly gas the Germans turn loose in the trenches is a respirator attached to the mask. If a soldier is overcome he need not breathe the gas for some time anyway. Air is supplied to him pure through the respirator, and he thus has a much greater chance to save his life.

Free Rose Slip Offer Again Made by State U.

Six Thousand Clippings Will Be Ready February 1 for Shipment--Eastern Oregon Consignment Later UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Jan. 26.—February 1st will see 6,000 hardy rose clippings ready to send out for planting on Oregon lawns.

This practice was begun in 1914, when H. M. Fisher, superintendent of grounds, instead of throwing away the tops clipped from the University's fine rose hedges, put them in the ground, where almost all took root. A circular letter was then sent to the high schools, announcing that the University would be glad to send from twelve to twenty cuttings to any school that cared to write for a shipment.

Since then this yearly custom has added to the beauty of many school lawns. Last year there were 4,000 slips available, but so many requests came in that a number had to be held over until this winter. For the 1917 supply only two applications have come in so far: One from H. C. Technaz, principal of the Long Creek high school, and the other from H. H. Hoffman, superintendent of schools at Heppner. The usual deluge of requests is expected, however, as soon as announcement of the slips is made.

Mr. Fisher has had letters from all parts of the state, proclaiming distinct success in the growing of these roses from cuttings. Eastern Oregon shipments will be delayed as long as possible, in order to escape the coldest weather. Mr. Fisher says he has never had such a lot of vigorous shrubs as this year, and that even last fall the slips for this year's shipping were loaded with bloom.

Orders will be filed in the order of receipt. The slips are, of course, do-nated.

Whenever I feel any signs of this trouble coming on, I use Doan's Kidney Pills for a few days and they never fail to give me quick relief and make
