Klamath Grows Beets Contain High Percentage Sugar

Secretary Elder of Klamath Water Users Association Reports on Results of Many Experiments on Klamath Project in 1916

The following is the report of Albert E. Elder, secretary of Klamath Water Users Association, on the experiments with sugar beets on the Klamath project in 1916:

During the year 1916 the Utah and Idaho beet sugar manufacturers distributed beet seed to a number of the farmers of the Klamath Valley for the purpose of securing first hand information as to the sugar contents of sugar beets grown here. The board of directors of the Klamath Water Users Association, believing that the Klamath Valley would produce a beet of first class sugar contents determined to obtain all the data possible from the samples grown in 1916. Accordingly the undersigned was authorized to secure samples from all the growers possible. Mr. Camp, project manager, gladly furnished his car and his own time, and in two days trip over the valley the following samples were secured, and thereafter tested by the Agricultural Department of the University of California. The following tabulated report shows the results of our effort in this respect:

The following information was asked of the farmers who grew the beets:

- Name of grower. Postoffice. Area planted. Amount of seed planted. Date planted. Date plants sprouted. Date thinned.

- Date first cultivation. Date second cultivation. Date third cultivation. Date fourth cultivation. Date fifth cultivation. Date sixth cultivation. Date first irrigation. Date second irrigation. Date third irrigation. Date fourth irrigation. Date harvested. Signature of grower.

Unfortunately, however, we were unable to secure but little of this information, and in the absence of this the value of the tabulated report is somewhat lessened.

Nevertheless the percentage of sugar shown in the samples secured is exceedingly gratifying. It is reported

Can't Get Big Men to Take Government Jobs

By ROBERT J. BENDER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—The high cost of prosperity in the country is hitting President Wilson. He can't get men he wants for big jobs now at his disposal. Business men are making too much money in their regular pursuits to willingly yield them in favor of some board or commission upon which the president wishes them to serve.

A mere $7,500, at one time considered a princely sum per annum for any man, is now regarded as too paltry to appeal to many men the president desires to serve the country.

That's what makes selection of different committees at the president's disposal very difficult. It has held up completion of the tariff commission for weeks. It delayed selection of the shipping board. Each member of

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

DRUGGIST SAYS LADIES ARE USING RECIPE OF SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre, and gives it an appearance of abundance. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

ed that in Idaho the current price paid for beets yielding 13 per cent of sugar is $7 per ton. The accompanying report compared with the percentage shows that out of seventeen samples but one fell below 13 per cent, and that one was 13.55 per cent, while two samples showed better than 14 per cent; four better than 15 per cent; two better than 16 per cent; one better than 17 per cent; three better than 18 per cent; one better than 20 per cent, and one better than 21 per cent.

The acreage planted by each farmer was about one tenth of an acre, and the reported yields for this area ranged from one ton to three tons; one, however, reported not over one-half ton, with about one-fourth stand. There was probably not sufficient data collected to furnish a very reliable guide as to the best time to plant.

The three samples giving the best test were planted May 1, 12 and 24 respectively. Samples 1 and 3, giving over 18 per cent sugar, were planted June 10 and 24. The experience of 1916 tends to show that nothing was gained by planting before May.

The date of thinning and the dates and numbers of times cultivated and irrigated, very important factors in beet growing, were secured only in a few instances, and little can, therefore, be said in this respect.

The tabulated report rather emphasizes the fact that the best sugar test is found in beets running from about one-half to not to exceed one and a quarter pounds in weight. The average weight of beets giving the best test was considerably under one pound. Where there was any quantity to select from the larger beets were uniformly rejected. In one case, however, where all the beets were large, No. 2, the average being over two pounds per beet, a very good test was given. In the few instances where the smaller beets did not give as large a test as others, the factor of soil, manner and method of cultivation, etc., would probably give an explanation.

While the four largest tests were grown upon what would probably be classed as the heavier sandy soils, yet the extreme sandy soils gave very favorable tests.

Yours for a beet factory, ALBERT E. ELDER, Secretary Klamath Water Users Association.

WASHINGTON, D. LIKE ELECTRIC BUTTON ON TOES TELLS WHY A CORN IS SO PAINFUL AND SAYS CUTTING MAKES THEM GROW.

Press an electric button and you form a contact with a live wire which rings the bell. When your shoes press against your corn it pushes its sharp roots down upon a sensitive nerve and you get a shock of pain.

Instead of trimming your corns, which merely makes them grow, just step into any drug store and ask for a quarter of an ounce of freezone. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. A few drops applied directly upon a tender, aching corn stops the soreness instantly, and soon the corn shrivels up so it lifts right out, root and all, without pain. This drug is harmless and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissue or skin. Paid adv.
